Germans Slay 9 Czechs; Seize 1,200 Students

SHUT SCHOOLS FOR 3 YEARS TO END RESISTANCE

Benes' Followers Blamed for Plot.

BERLIN, Nov. 17 (AP).—Nine students of Prague universities and academies were executed by German firing squads today as ringleaders in a series of rebellious demonstrations Wednesday in the German protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia.

The shooting of the nine was reported by DNB, German official news agency. Other news filtering into Berlin provided sketchy details of the events in the capital of the former Czecho-Slovak republic.

Czech Academies Closed.

DNB said that in addition to the executions other extraordinary measures, including arrest of a large number of persons and the closing for three years of Czech academies, had been taken.

Earlier dispatches from Prague had disclosed that élite Hitler Guards had occupied Czech high schools and the Karlovy Technical institute and hauled away 1,200 students, both boys and girls. Their destinations were not disclosed. These dispatches said shots were heard at Masaryk college, but that apparently no one was wounded.

Raid Printing Shop.

Telephone communication with Prague was haphazard. It was established during one call, however, that reports in informed Prague circles were that the executions followed revelations made after a raid on an illegal printing establishment in the home of a former Czech government official. This call was interrupted.

DNB said that extraordinary measures were taken after the students, described as "Benes followers" assaulted Germans. Dr. Eduard Benes, last president of Czecho-Slovakia, now is living in exile in Paris.

News Agency's Communique.

The news agency's communique said:

"For some time a group of Czech intellectuals associated with the fugitive former President Benes have sought to disturb peace and order in the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia with greater or smaller demonstrations of resistance.

"Investigation established that the leaders of these actions of resistance were to be found particularly in colleges and academies.

"In consequence of the fact that on Oct. 28 and Nov. 15 these elements assaulted individual Germans the Czech academies were closed for three years, nine perpetrators shot and a large number of participants arrested."

Says Czechs Back Germans.

The authoritative commentary Diensts aus Deutschland acknowledged that the students were executed.

It insisted, however, that measures to keep order were approved "by the whole Czech people which desires to be protected against excesses of the misled youthful element."

The commentary added that it was a small group of agitating intellectuals inspired from abroad.

It seemed certain that German police and military forces in the protectorate would be able to quell an effort at rebellion. Armored cars manned by Hitler Guards patroled Prague streets during the day. The security forces there are in command of Sepp Dietrich, trusted friend of Adolf Hitler.

Czechs Defy German Ban.

Czechs celebrated the 21st anniversary of the founding of the Czechoslovak republic on Oct. 28 in defiance of a German ban on public demonstrations. Patriotic citizens, wearing their national colors, massed in the center of Prague.

Several clashes with police resulted and many arrests were made. One report at the time said 800 persons had been taken to police headquarters. Two persons were known to have died of injuries received during the day.

The funeral of one of these victims, a Czech student, on Nov. 15, was made the occasion for a second mass demonstration. Approximately 2,000 students demonstrated against the German protectorate government and 18 were arrested.

DIVERSION OF CIO FUNDS FOR RED ACTIVITIES TOLD

Dies Hears Ousted Head of Union.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Alphonso Malachi, former president of the Armour & Co. local of the Packinghouse Workers' Organizing committee, an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, told yesterday how funds of the union were diverted to communist activities. Malachi was a witness before Congressman Martin Dies, chairman of the congressional committee on un-American activities, at a closed hearing in the Sherman hotel.

Malachi said the constitution of the union he formerly headed was written at communist headquarters and that no one but members of the communist party could be organizers for the C. I. O. union.

Records Brought In.

Walter Stabrawa, who was identified as secretary-treasurer of the P. W. O. C., brought in the books and records of his union. Another witness was Dr. Renzo Sereno, termed a student of Fascist activities. Dies announced Herbert March and Henry Johnson, officials of the P. W. O. C., would appear today.

Chairman Dies said the day's testimony would not be made public until all the witnesses have been heard and he would withhold a statement of what had been gathered until his inquiry here is complete.

It was learned, however, that Malachi testified that policies of the C. I. O. union were discussed by the communist members at caucuses before they were presented to the union for adoption. Malachi, a Negro, said he is an ex-communist.

Statement Tells of Expulsion.

Don Harris, national director of the PWOC, issued a statement in the anteroom in which he charged that Malachi was expelled by the local union after he had admitted meeting in secret with the head of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, and had admitted having withheld union funds.

Malachi, in his testimony, said he had been expelled because communist leaders had written a speech for him to make, of which he refused to read certain parts, after which charges were made against him. He said that he got no salary or travel expense money in two years except a $97 loan for expenses, and that this was made the basis of fund diversion charges.

Expenses for Red Activities.

Records and canceled checks brought into the hearing, and the testimony of Malachi, is was learned, indicated that the union had met the expenses of delegates to the American League for Peace and Democracy. In his testimony before the Dies committee weeks ago, Earl Browder, communist party head, termed the league as one of his transmission belts.

The books showed that payments of $20 a week had been paid to one union official with the notation, "for gas and meals of two policemen. Other canceled checks totaling some $200 were for activities in the communist May day parade. The records, it was learned, showed payments made to a communist organ, some of them marked as loans. It is said to be the first time the Dies committee has obtained books and records showing funds or loans given to communist activities.

No Bearing on Labor Dispute.

Before opening his hearing, Dies said his visit to Chicago had no bearing on the struggle now on for the election next Tuesday to determine which labor group shall be bargaining agent for employés in the Chicago plants of Armour & Co. In this the opponents are the Amalgamated Meat Cutters, an A. F. of L. affiliate,

12,000 Crush to See Italian Art Treasures

Masterpieces in Color

The 28 Italian masterpieces on exhibit at the Art institute will be available in reproduction to all Chicagoans even after the originals have been returned to Italy. Permission has been given to reproduce them with The Tribune color camera, and the first of a series will be printed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of Dec. 10.

More than 12,000 persons crowded into the Art institute last night for the formal opening of a display of Italian masterpieces. The crush was described as the greatest in the history of the institution, and the doors were kept open until long past midnight so that all could have a view of the pictures.

No such throng had been anticipated. The 15,000 members of the institute had been invited to attend, but the management had no inkling that four-fifths of them would respond. Plans had been made to close at 10:30 p. m. The exhibition of the $150,000,000 collection will be open to the public today.

Hundreds Wait in Line.

"This is no reception, this is a football scrimmage," said Daniel Catton Rich, director of fine arts of the Art institute, while guards at the door and in the five galleries which house the collection called to the waiting hundreds: "Don't push; take your time; every one will be admitted."

Most of the 12,000 who attended will have to pay at least one more visit to the galleries if they really want to see the paintings and sculpture, for it was impossible to obtain more than a casual look at them last night.

In charge of the reception was Chauncey McCormick, vice president of the Art institute and the man described by Mayor Kelly last night as the one who did all the work of bringing the exhibition from the San Francisco fair. The 21 Italian Renaissance paintings and seven pieces of sculpture are stopping off in Chicago until Jan. 9 on their way back to Italy. It is probable they will never leave Italy again, and they will not be shown elsewhere in the United States.

Opening Ceremony Held.

While the thousands were crowding in and trying to look at the masterpieces last night ceremonies were held which included brief addresses by Potter Palmer, president of the institute; Senator James M. Slattery, who delivered a message from Gov. Horner; Mayor Kelly, who read a telegram from Ambassador Ascanio Colonna in Washington, D. C., and the Italian consul general in Chicago, Dr. Emilio Manfredi. The gentlemen who are responsible for the masterpieces lent by the Italian government and whom Mr. McCormick described as "important and worried men" last night, were introduced and gave the Fascist salute. They are Commander Eugenio Ventura and Prof. Guilio Argan. Hilde Reggiani, Italian opera singer, sang an aria.

Sponsors met the Italian guests for after dinner coffee in gallery 45, where the institute's own Italian masterpieces hang, preceding the opening ceremonies.

AT LEAST 10 DROWN AS BOATS COLLIDE IN NORTH CAROLINA

Beaufort, N. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—At least 10 persons were known to have drowned tonight in a boat collision in the inland waterway six miles north of here.

The drowning victims were aboard the fishing vessel Southland, proceeding from Ocracoke to Morehead City with 300,000 menhaden fish. She went to the bottom after colliding with the tugboat Especo, towing the barge Espee No. 4, bound from Wilmington to Hopewell, Va.

The identified dead were E. J. Fulcher and Charlie Fulcher, brothers, and three Negroes, Robert Lee, Isaac Clarriby, and Joseph Eagles. The other dead were Negroes. None of the Especo's crew was hurt.

Sheriff C. G. Holland said a mixup in signals apparently caused the collision. Menhaden, 12 to 16 inches long, swim in vast schools and are seined by the ton for fertilizer and for their oil.

Safety Expert Plans Safety Drunk Today

Richard S. Kaplan, president of the Gary Safety council, is looking forward bravely to his martyrdom today. He has volunteered, for the sake of science, to sit down with a quart of whisky and drink until he is blotto.

"This may seem strange to some folk," said Mr. Kaplan last night, "but something of much importance is to be settled. The police have a test by which they claim they can tell whether a person is intoxicated. Judge William Fletcher of the Gary City court doesn't think the test is accurate.

It's for Science, Sir!

"I propose to end this controversy. I'll take a couple of drinks. Then a policeman will try me out on a little balloon into which I'll blow my breath. After that I will take a couple more drinks, then another test. This will go on indefinitely until the test shows I'm well jingled.

"I'll supply the whisky, and it will be high grade. The police will have orders to watch me—the experiment will be in the Gary police station—and if I get out of hand they will sit on me. I want it understood that I am not a heavy drinker and that my attitude, at least for the first few drinks, will be strictly scientific."

Among those who have promised to watch are Judge Fletcher, Chief of Police William J. Linn, representatives of the state police, and Andrew Skinta, a member of the safety council.

Drunk-O-Meter to Test Results.

The police will use a drunk-o-meter to test the results. This is a device by which a person's breath is analyzed and the percentage of alcohol in the blood is determined. When the alcoholic content passes .15 of 1 per cent the subject is considered to be drunk. Judge Fletcher has indicated that he will be satisfied to take the police tests as evidence if they show up well on Kaplan.

"I expect to be sick afterward," said Kaplan, "but I'm resigned to that."

His daughter June, 16 years old, said she and her mother approved of the experiment because it is for science.

"And I think I'll go over to lend him my moral support," she added; "physical support, too, if he needs it."

Fires 7 Shots at Robber in Holdup Battle

A boy, 13 years old, saw his father killed by a bandit last night. Without hesitating, the boy picked up his father's pistol and shot the killer three times. The shooting took place in a grocery at 369 East 54th street.

The man slain was Vito Addante, a war veteran. The son was Pasquale Addante, known as Patsy to his friends.

The boy was reading a school book behind the counter in the store when the robber, a Negro with long hair, appeared. In the rear of the store were Addante, 42; his wife, Rose, 29; two other children, Alfred, 12, and Lucy, 8, and two men.

The robber walked behind the counter and poked a revolver against Patsy. "Give me your money," he demanded. The boy protested. "Go away," he said. "We haven't much money here; you wouldn't take it, would you?"

Grocer Opens Fire.

The gunman forced the boy to indicate the cash drawer, from which he took $10. Just then Mrs. Addante, hearing the conversation, stepped thru the door leading to the rear living quarters. Alfred and Lucy were at her skirts. Seeing the robber, she cried out, "Don't hurt my son!"

Just then Addante came out. He shouted to his wife to "push the kids on the floor." Then he raised his pistol, a small caliber gun containing nine bullets, and fired once at the robber. At the same moment the latter let go a fusillade at Addante.

Boy Takes Up Fight.

As Addante fell, with a bullet near his heart, the boy, a seventh grade pupil at St. Anne's school, took up his fight. He crawled three feet to the fallen gun. Then he rose shooting. The bandit was already at the door, but the boy sent three shots at him.

Crying in pain, the murderer staggered out the door. Pasquale followed him. Outside, and only 20 feet away, the boy stopped, took aim, and fired four more shots at the man, who returned two shots, both of which missed. At this moment Mrs. Addante ran out and pulled her son back into the store.

The bandit disappeared. About five minutes later he appeared at the Provident hospital, 426 East 51st street, four blocks away. He was admitted to the receiving room by Nurse Elizabeth Reed, colored. She made a cursory examination and found he had been shot in the left side—a possibly fatal wound—the left knee, and the left arm. The robber was talkative.

Killer Runs Into Park.

"I just shot a man," he said, "and I'd like to give myself up, but I'm afraid I'll get the chair."

Before Miss Reed could summon a surgeon, there was a commotion at the receiving room door, as Addante, already dead, was being brought in. The killer, fearing police might be with the body, cried to the nurse, "I've got to go now!" He half staggered and half ran out, and was last seen heading into nearby Washington park.

Squads were sent to the park district and told not to take any chance in trying to arrest the slayer who presumably was still armed. Early today he was still being sought. Police said if he were seriously wounded he might be found after daybreak.

Gives Unemotional Account.

The Addante boy, in relating his story to Sergt. John Allen of the Wabash avenue station, gave an unemotional account.

"When I saw my dad on the floor all I could think of was to kill the man who shot him," he said. "I crawled on the floor to the gun, picked it up, and started firing. It was the first time I had ever shot a gun in my life. I thought he was already wounded by my dad, but I know I wounded him once or twice."

He was asked if he was afraid. He said, "No." His language was rather precise, and police described him as an intelligent, as well as a courageous, boy.

In praising the boy as a hero, the JOBS INCREASE; SO DOES RELIEF LOAD; ASK WHY?

Four Reasons Given by Officials.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Thousands of workers are being called back to jobs by the sweeping rise in reemployment. But the relief load is going up, not down. Here are the figures:

Raymond Hilliard.

An estimated 200,000 workers in Illinois were reemployed between September, 1938, and September, 1939. Approximately 10,000 additional relief cases—27,000 persons—went on the rolls in the same period.

In Cook county, 92,000 persons went back to work in the 12 month period. However, 13,000 more relief cases—29,000 persons—were added to the county relief rolls in the year.

By last September, in spite of small monthly reductions during the latter half of the year, the state relief load stood at 187,000 cases or 500,000 persons. This compares with 177,000 cases or 473,000 persons in September, 1938.

What Causes This Lag?

And so yesterday the question was being asked: Why this lag in cutting relief? A reporter asked the question of those most likely to know the answer. Their answers indicated that the following are the main factors in the situation:

1. Relatives of indigents are shirking their legal responsibility—the support of these needy—and are getting away with it.
2. WPA employment has shrunk 49 per cent—from 248,000 to 125,000—in the year ending last Sept. 15.
3. Private employers don't like relief-ers. They take first the jobless who have continued to stay off the dole and, as a second choice, WPA workers. Relief clients come last.
4. New business with its consequential industrial activity is absorbed in part by regular part time employés who are given more hours of work each week.

Employment in Illinois increased from 2,100,000 to 2,300,000 in the year ending in September, and in Cook county from 1,208,000 to 1,300,000.

Changed Attitude of Relatives.

Scant attention has been paid by social workers and public officials to the first reason up to the present. Authorities explained this by saying that the changed attitude toward needy relatives has come about gradually during the last decade, adding that the importance of the factor has been generally overlooked in the cross-currents of the relief problem.

Raymond M. Hilliard, attorney for the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, who took this view, urged that greater efforts be made to enforce the century old law providing that close relatives must support indigents if able to do so.

"There should be a thoro examination of all relief cases to determine which could be removed thru application of the law," Hilliard said. "One step in this direction would be to change the present system so that IERC lawyers can go directly to the County court instead of having to work thru the county bureau of public welfare."

Lyons Asks for Information.

Leo M. Lyons, executive head of the IERC and the Chicago Relief administration, disagreed with Hilliard.

"A few cases may be getting by us, and I will welcome any information that would enable us to correct such conditions," he said.

Joseph L. Moss, director of the county bureau of public welfare, agreed with Hilliard that many persons no longer believe they need to help indigent relatives.

"The trend dates back to the first unemployment relief program," Moss said. "Many persons say it is more democratic to spread the load. It is argued that a worker's children should be given the benefit of his earnings, rather than other relatives.

"It is not only relatives whose attitude has changed. I have letters from employers to former workers who had been receiving some aid from the companies, informing them that they should get old age assistance instead."

Wilfred S. Reynolds, head of the Council of Social Agencies and predecessor of Lyons in the IERC, said:

"The general idea has taken hold in the public mind that there is government money available for the needy, so why support one's relatives? There remain many people caring for relatives, but their resistance is being broken down, rapidly."

Joel Hunter, head of the United Charities of Chicago, and former executive director of the federal social security board in Washington, said:

"In the last ten years there has advanced an inclination to let George do it. Everybody knows now that millions of dollars are being spent by government for various kinds of relief. A sense of responsibility seems to be drifting away from many families."

Same Law for 100 Years.

The state law to enforce support by responsible relatives remains practically the same as it was more than a hundred years ago. First the parents are liable for support, then children, brothers, sisters, grandparents, and grandchildren, in that order. Such cases are handled thru the county bureau of public welfare in Cook county. Downstate the proceedings are to be instituted by state's attorneys and overseers of the poor.

Records show that the cases brought to court under this law are a drop in the bucket compared to the staggering total of public aid. In 1938 there were 300 new cases brought to the Cook county bureau, of which only 10 were taken to court. Agreed orders were entered in 19 cases. During 10 months of the current fiscal year there were 250 new cases, with court hearings in 3 and agreed orders in 36.

Other Factors in Situation.

None of the other factors causing the relief reductions to lag offers much hope of solution on a county or state-wide basis, authorities said.

As to the WPA shrinkage, it is controled by Washington officialdom. Less federal funds are available for WPA program than last year. This required slashing the WPA rolls in half for Illinois.

Indications are that bottom has been reached, however, and nearly 30,000 more jobs may be filled in the next few months. In Chicago the cut reached its height—58 per cent—because of the city's inability to provide sufficient money for material and equipment on WPA projects.

Mayor Kelly has obtained the approval of Gov. Horner for the use of some state relief funds to bridge the city's shortage. It is expected that 10,000 reliefers soon will be transferred to WPA under this arrangement.

Efficient Workers Wanted.

Private employers want the most efficient workers they can find. There are several reasons why the employés are not sought on relief rolls. One reason is that the jobless person who is not receiving aid is apt to be more resourceful, employers said. Even if out of regular employment he usually has had odd jobs that preserved his working skills, they said.

The average WPA worker has an edge on the reliefer, too. To get on WPA he has had to show that he is able bodied, at least. As relief rolls dwindled from the all-time peak of 1935 those left on the rolls tended to be the least able and least skilled, IERC officials said.

Employers said efficiency is also the core of the fourth and final factor, the increased use of their part time workers. When there is more work to be done the hours of employment of regular workers is increased in preference to seeking new help. The regular help is more experienced.

If industrial activity continues to increase, this demand for labor will overflow to a greater extent, making more jobs available, the employers explained. Why this has not happened is shown by the fact that in September the average work week for all classes of employment was only 38.9 hours.

TAMMANY WINS 14 OF 21 SEATS IN CITY COUNCIL

New York, Nov. 17 [Special].—Altho they gained only two of the five Manhattan seats, Tammany Democrats were swept into commanding control of the New York city council today as the complicated proportional representation count was completed on balloting done Nov. 7.

Completion today of the count in Brooklyn, most populous of the city's five boroughs, gave the Democrats 14 of the 21 council seats. With this two-thirds majority they can override any vetoes of Mayor Fiorello La Guardia and ends any semblance of the "fusion administration" control based on a Republican, independent, and American Labor party coalition.

There are two Republicans, two Laborites, two Fusionists and one Independent in the new council, aside from the Democrats. The Independent is Alfred E. Smith Jr., admittedly carried in by the magic of the name of New York's former governor and Democratic presidential nominee in 1928. The younger Smith's victory in his first try for political office was the biggest surprise of the election.

Judge Imposes $450 Fine on Gambler at Champaign

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 17 [Special].—A fine of $450, the largest recommended in the Champaign gambling trials, was imposed this morning by Circuit Judge Ben F. Anderson, Charleston, when he overruled a motion for a new trial in the case of Roy M. [Riley] Sharp of Champaign, who was charged with keeping a common gambling house.

LEGAL STRUGGLE IS STARTED OVER O'HARE'S FUNDS

Claimants Will Fight for Cached Money.

A legal battle over funds that Edward J. O'Hare, slain front man for the Capone syndicate, is believed to have held for former Boston politicians was begun here yesterday. It began after O'Hare's will was filed and his estate, estimated at between $300,000 and $500,000, was admitted to probate.

There are a number of claimants for the funds O'Hare is believed to have held. One of the first in the field was the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance company. Chicago attorneys for the concern filed suit in the Circuit court to collect a $204,231 judgment against Edmund L. Dolan, a former Boston city treasurer and a friend of O'Hare. Dolan is serving a two and a half year sentence in the Boston city jail for contempt of court.

The judgment, which already had been obtained in a Massachusetts court, was for Dolan's alleged defalcations while city treasurer. The company made good most of the loss and now seeks to collect [illegible] of Dolan's assets that it can find. Attorney Harold L. Ross, who filed the suit here, said he is prepared to levy claims on any of Dolan's money that may be in O'Hare's estate.

Holdings Put at $90,000.

Ross indicated that the insurance company believes the $25,000 found Thursday in a safe deposit box in the First National bank that had been carried on the bank's books as that of "John Walter, in care of E. J. O'Hare," was Dolan's money. He also informed state's attorney's investigators that it is believed O'Hare held approximately $90,000 for Dolan.

A second claimant to cached funds was J. Walter Quinn, former head of the Legal Securities company of Boston, another friend of O'Hare. Quinn also is serving a two and a half year contempt sentence with Dolan. Both charges grew out of alleged attempts to bribe jurors in May, 1938, in a trial in which Dolan was charged with larceny of the city's money.

Attorney Robert Robinson of Boston, who arrived in Chicago yesterday, appeared at First National bank and declared that Quinn was the mysterious "John Walter" in whose name the safe deposit box had been held. Robinson had a power of attorney from Quinn and a key to the box.

Attorney Tells of Deposit.

Questioned by state's attorney's investigators, Robinson said his client had deposited the money here because he had known he was going to be jailed in Boston. O'Hare, the lawyer said, had agreed to pay the rental on the box as a favor to Quinn. Robinson then repeated his story to the grand jury, which is investigating the O'Hare slaying.

Returning then to the bank, Robinson asked for the money. The bank, however, announced that a third claimant, the Northern Trust company co-executor of the O'Hare estate, also was claiming the funds. Bank officials said they would retain the money until the proper owner was decided by the courts.

The Northern Trust company and Charles E. Richardson, a friend of O'Hare, were named executors in O'Hare's will.

Trust Fund Established.

O'Hare's will created a trust from which his sister, Mrs. Catherine Burris, 138 South 18th avenue, Maywood, is to receive $600 annually. The remainder of the income from the trust is to be divided among O'Hare's three children, Patricia Ann, Marilyn Jane, and Edward H. O'Hare.

O'Hare, who was president of Sportsman's Park race track, was slain Nov. 8 while riding in his car at Ogden avenue and Rockwell street. Two shotgun assassins in another car killed him.

During the day state's attorney's investigators said it had been established that as late as 1935 O'Hare had given Al Capone's Florida home as his own address when in the south.

Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland, whose real estate deals with O'Hare and other associates also are being investigated, has not yet made a report on these transactions to the state's attorney. The judge will be given until Monday to make this report. Judge Holland's associates on the Municipal bench discussed his connection with O'Hare at a meeting yesterday, but decided to take no action until the police and state's attorney's investigation is completed.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

Would you care to serve on a murder trial jury?

Where Answered.

In the Illinois Central station.

The Answers.

Sam Shapiro, New York, salesman.—If I were called, I should not hesitate to serve. It is my conviction that a man who deliberately murders deserves the death penalty, so on the capital punishment score I would have no qualms against voting for a conviction.

Peggy Pembroke, 417 North Sawyer avenue, clerk.—I don't believe in capital punishment. I wouldn't want any share in the responsibility of sending a person to his death. It seems to me a life sentence to prison in the case of murder satisfies justice.

Fred Olson, 543 Madison street, cab driver.—That depends on the case. I'll admit I wouldn't care to be on the jury for one of these gangster killings like the O'Hare case, but I'd be willing to serve otherwise. If I were on trial myself I'd like to have a few ladies on the jury.

Hazel Ford, 307 North Austin boulevard, salesgirl.—No. I'll have to admit that I would do everything I could to shed the responsibility. But it's a good thing every one doesn't feel the same way. I believe justice demands that a murderer be executed.

Harry Jacyszyn, 1014 Erie street, cab driver.—Yes. Why not? I've never been called, but I wouldn't try to get out of jury duty. The idea of the death penalty wouldn't bother me. If the evidence proved guilt I would not hesitate to vote for conviction.

BOARDING SCHOOL OPERATORS HELD 'AFTER BEATINGS

Fanwood, N. J., Nov. 17 [Special].—A secluded boarding school for children in Fanwood today gave up a story of merciless beatings.

After seeing two small boys with welts covering their bodies, County Prosecutor Abe J. David ordered the arrest of Nelson Anderson, 51 years old, operator of the school, and his wife, Helen Gildersleeve Anderson, 50. Anderson has a police record in New York.

Ralph Esposito, 9 years old, and John L. Skinner Jr., 5, sobbed a story of having been beaten by Mrs. Anderson with a carpet beater, a brush, and a broom handle. The Skinner boy said scalding water was poured on his face and soap flakes forced into his mouth.

Mrs. Anderson admitted that she struck Ralph with a carpet beater, but only to improve his school work. "I always tried to strike him on the back," she said. "However, I may have hit him on the arms when he squirmed."

The Andersons were paroled in the custody of their attorney for a later arraignment. They had conducted the school for seven years, charging parents from $50 to $75 a month.

DIES AT HER WORK.

Mrs. Mary Lee, 64 years old, 1738 Hudson avenue, a kitchen worker at the Fair store in the loop, died of a heart attack while at work yesterday.

EX-CLIENT REGARDS RELIEF AS A LOAN—AND HE'S GOOD PAY

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 17 (AP).—An aged man walked into the office of Sam Houston Allen, county director of the state relief administration.

"I came into this world without debt, and I want to go out that way," he told Allen.

The man had received $288 as a destitute unemployed person during 1935 and 1936.

"I've got a job now as a carpenter at $75 a month, and I want to pay the state back," he said. Arrangements were made for him to make payments of $10 a month.

Fined $390 for Injuring Boy, 10, and Striking Girl

Fines totaling $390 were assessed yesterday against Simon Harmustiak, 67 years old, 906 North Washtenaw avenue, in the Racine avenue court. He was defendant on two charges of assault and battery. Testimony showed that Harmustiak struck Sheldon Arbelt, 10 years old, 843 North Washtenaw avenue, knocking him off a porch and fracturing his arm. He also was accused of striking a girl 15 years old. Unable to pay the fines, Harmustiak will have to serve 195 days in the Bridewell.

CHICAGO PUBLIC FIGURE TARGET OF CAPONE RAGE

Murphy Reveals Phobia of Ex-Gang Chief.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—Al Capone, notorious outlaw of the prohibition era, who is in a Baltimore hospital undergoing treatment for a mental disease, has a violent phobia against a public figure in Chicago, whom he is determined shall die.

This was disclosed today by Attorney General Frank Murphy as he announced that the former Chicago gang leader is no longer under federal surveillance. Murphy at first declined to comment on reports that Capone discloses a desire to kill the public figure during his rages, but later said: "It wouldn't be anything peculiar if he did," considering the nature of his illness.

Speculate on Identity.

In official circles here, it was agreed that the Chicago public official might be either A. P. Madden, special agent in charge of the intelligence unit of the bureau of internal revenue at Chicago, who gathered the evidence which sent the gangster to prison, or Dwight Green, one of the assistant prosecutors who helped United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson win Capone's conviction in 1931.

Officials entertained no fears that Capone will personally carry out the threats made during his periods of violence. Altho he is legally free to go about as he pleases, they said, he is under the shadow of a greater sentence than that he received for income tax evasion—death from paresis, a mental disorder arising from syphilis, which is commonly known as softening of the brain.

Will Take Fever Treatment.

At the Union Memorial hospital in Baltimore Capone is preparing to undergo the recently discovered malarial fever treatment for paresis. He was brought to the hospital yesterday from the federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa.

He arrived at the latter institution after a secret trip across the country from Terminal Island prison, Los Angeles. Capone had served 7 years 6 months and 15 days of an 11 year sentence, chiefly at Alcatraz.

At the hospital late today Dr. Joseph Earl Moore, noted syphilologist who is treating Capone, gave reporters a bulletin on his patient's condition. It read:

"The patient, Alphonse Capone, is chronically, not acutely, ill. His condition is not likely to change from day to day."

Suggests Informing Press.

The bulletin was given out at the suggestion of the attorney general after the physician had reported that the hospital was being besieged by newspaper men and photographers.

Dr. Moore also released a statement from John Capone, brother of Al, who was attending college while his brother was bossing his underworld empire, in which he said members of the Capone family were with the patient, but that his illness was so serious that he could not receive other visitors.

The government's interest in Capone, Murphy said, will only be revived if he reverts to his former illegal activities.

The department has under surveillance certain persons, Murphy would not name, in Miami, Fla., where Capone has a $100,000 island villa to which he intends to go on his release from the Baltimore hospital.

"We are going to be sure that there will be no renewal of activities of a crowd that once gathered about him," Murphy said.

GREEN IS NOT CONCERNED.

Dwight H. Green, told of Capone's desire to kill a certain public official, said in Chicago last night that he "was not concerned," and added that "it is understandable that a gangster might feel a desire to kill a man who helped send him to prison." Mr. Green said he had not received any threats since the Capone trial.

Reported Red Citizen

[Acme Photo.]

Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens, American imprisoned in soviet Russia for 18 months, has become a citizen of that country, Moscow hears.

Miami, Fla., Nov. 17 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Boerger of Miami learned from a press dispatch for the first time today that their daughter, Ruth Marie Rubens, was reported to have become a Russian citizen.

[Moscow dispatches yesterday said Mrs. Rubens was believed to have settled in the Ukraine. She was freed June 10 after having spent 18 months in prison. Arrested as a suspected spy, Mrs. Rubens finally was convicted of entering Russia on a false passport. Nothing has been learned of her husband's fate. He was arrested with her.]

Mrs. Boerger said her daughter probably renounced her American citizenship to avoid trial in America on a charge of obtaining a passport fraudulently. Mrs. Rubens' daughter, Ruth, 9 years old, has been living with the Boergers here.

SISTER OF KIDNAP SLAYING VICTIM WEEPS ON STAND

Russell Confession Read to Federal Jury.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

Bette Jean Hamilton, fluffy haired university co-ed, broke down and wept on the witness stand in federal court yesterday when she was shown clothing and jewelry belonging to her slain brother, Billy Scott Hamilton.

Ralph Scott, uncle of victim.

Her testimony climaxed the third day of the kidnap murder trial of Jack Russell, Oklahoma outlaw, who is accused of killing Hamilton last July 14 after kidnaping him near Pittsburg, Kas., and forcing him to drive to a deserted pasture lane near Ringwood, Ill., in McHenry county. The government demands Russell's death in the electric chair under the Lindbergh law.

Government Rests Case.

The government rested its case late yesterday. The defense will begin its testimony when the trial is resumed Monday, and Russell is expected to testify Monday afternoon. The case, before Judge Charles E. Woodward, is expected to go to the jury of seven women and five men late Tuesday. This is the first mixed jury in the history of Cook county qualified to impose the death penalty.

Bette Jean Hamilton is a junior at the University of Arkansas. On the witness stand yesterday she was dressed in somber black, wearing toeless pumps and a silver fox fur. She identified her brother's belongings which were found after the slaying in Russell's hotel hideout in Kenosha, Wis.

Father Identifies Watch.

Her father, Fred C. Hamilton, followed her to the stand. His face was drawn and white, and his voice quavered uncertainly. Handed a wrist watch which was found on the body, he said quietly:

"Yes, that's Billy's. It was my present to him when he graduated from high school."

Ralph Scott, the slain man's uncle, was then called to identify Hamilton's zipper brief case which Russell had when he was captured in Arkansas on July 18. The government prosecutors contend that the brief case ties the defendant to the murder as well as to several other crimes he allegedly committed after he escaped a week previously from the Oklahoma state prison, where he was serving 10 years for robbery.

Confession Read to Jury.

The jury also heard the government attorneys, A. Bradley Eben and Martin Ward, read Russell's 26 page confession, in which he described in detail how Hamilton was slain. This disclosed that the victim, a 23 year old milling salesman, was shot down while making a brave bid for freedom after being held prisoner for nearly two days. Both were sitting in the salesman's car, according to the statement, when Hamilton suddenly lunged for Russell's revolver.

"I felt Hamilton grab the gun," Russell stated in the confession. He had the barrel and I had the stock. He was trying to jump out of the car. Then the gun exploded and the bullet hit him in the head."

Earlier yesterday Sheriff Champ Crawford of Franklin county, Ark., drawled out the story of how he and a deputy, Richard Hill, tricked Russell into a peaceful surrender in a tourist camp near the village of Cass. They got their first information that the camp visitor might be Russell from the camp proprietor, Champ Turner, and together went to the camp disguised as fishermen.

Sees Gasoline Leaking.

"When we got to his cabin I saw gasoline was leaking out of his car," said Sheriff Crawford. "I called to him: 'Say, mister, better park on even ground; you're losing all your gas.'

"He said 'Thanks,' and came outside. Well, sir, then I was in an awful pickle. I had my overalls over my gun and couldn't get to it. I went around behind the cabin and tugged until I had 't out. Then I put it on him."

On cross examination, the defense counsel, Attorney Sarah Sandor, asked whether the sheriff hadn't kept a key taken from the defendant after the capture.

"Oh, sure," the witness replied with a friendly smile. "Jack said he wouldn't need it. My 14 year old son's got it now. Wears it for a watch fob. Mighty proud of it too, he is."

LEGAL LOOPHOLE OPENED FOR 300 INDIANA CONVICTS

Judge Upholds Plea Based on 1857 Law.

A decision which, if sustained, will open the way to freedom for more than 300 Indiana convicts, was handed down yesterday by T. C. Mullen, sitting as a special judge in the La Porte County Superior court at Michigan City.

John N. Sullivan.

John N. Sullivan, 45 years old, Indianapolis robber, who sued for his liberty, was released from the Indiana state penitentiary at Michigan City as a result of Mullen's ruling. The attorney general's office immediately appealed to the State Supreme court. Lawyers for other convicts imprisoned under circumstances similar to Sullivan's began preparing petitions for hearings.

The point at issue concerns parolees who are returned to prison under new sentences for new crimes. The question, broadly, is whether the convicts should serve out their original and new sentences consecutively or concurrently.

Case Based on Old Law.

Attorney Oscar B. Thiel of Gary represented Sullivan. He based his case on a law 82 years old—a section of the Indiana penal code enacted in 1857.

Sullivan was first sentenced on Feb. 24, 1930, to 1 to 10 years in prison for grand larceny. In February, 1932, he was paroled. While on parole he was arrested and convicted again of robbery and grand larceny. So on Oct. 21, 1932, he was returned to prison both as a parole violator and under a new sentence, of a fiat 10 years, for the second crime.

The parole board than gave him a "set" of three years—ruled that he must serve three more years on his original sentence, before beginning to serve the new 10 year term. "Sets" of 1 to 5 years are customary, parole officials said.

When Did Term Start.

According to the parole board ruling, then, Sullivan did not begin serving his second sentence until Oct. 24, 1935. Attorney Thiel contended that the second sentence began running out on Oct. 24, 1932, when Sullivan was returned to prison.

His client, he argued, had now served 7 years and nearly a month and was entitled to three years and three months off for good behavior. Hence, he said, Sullivan had spent almost four months in prison that he should have spent as a free man.

The 1857 penal code upheld Thiel. The state then referred to the 1897 reformatory act, creating the state reformatory at Pendleton and listing rules for its operation. This law says: "Any prisoner at large, or paroled criminal committed for a new crime shall be subject to serve a second sentence to begin at the termination of his liability under the former sentence."

Applied Only to Reformatory.

This law has been commonly construed to apply to both the reformatory and state prison. Judge Mullen held, however, that it seemed the intent of the legislature was to apply this law only to the reformatory.

Mullen is a Michigan City attorney, appointed by the state Supreme court clerk when Sullivan's attorney asked for a special judge in place of Judge Russell W. Smith.

Arraigned in Ballot Inquiry

Below are pictured nine of the twelve women who were arraigned before County Judge Jarecki yesterday on charges of vote fraud. All were polling place officials in April 4 mayoralty election.

Four Change Pleas

Four election officials of the 52d precinct of the 11th ward, who had been on trial this week on ballot fraud charges, changed their pleas to guilty yesterday before County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki. They are Harry Beck, 2632 Lowe avenue, Republican judge; Joseph Leonardin, 2631 Lowe avenue, Republican clerk; Miss Ann Turrisi, 637 West 26th street, and Mrs. Gladys Spizzirri, 2723 Union avenue, Democratic judges.

Twelve women and 14 men, who were polling place officials in the April 4 mayoral election, then were arraigned before Judge Jarecki. Twenty-one were arrested Thursday night and the others surrendered in court. Bonds were set at $1,000 and the hearings were continued to Monday.

Investigators for the board of election commissioners and the state's attorney's office last night were seeking to serve warrants on nine other officials.

BOY, 13, WOUNDS FATHER'S SLAYER IN STORE HOLDUP

Fires 7 Shots at Robber After Killing.

police said he was a true son of his murdered father, a hero in his own right. Only last February the elder Addante shot and killed a two gun bandit in the store.

Widow Grief Stricken.

Mrs. Addante, grief stricken over the murder of her husband, said her three children had been saving for the last year to buy a present for their father on his birthday next Thursday.

Addante had operated his grocery in 54th street for the last six years. It was his hope to get out of that business and move into a new home. The living quarters in back of the store were too crowded.

Last night's fatal robbery was Addante's fourth experience with bandits. Last Dec. 23 he was robbed of $5 by the same bandit, Mrs. Addante said, who killed her husband last night. On last Jan. 4 a bandit held Addante up again. Exactly a month later the same man—Wilbur Barnwell, colored, confronted Addante with two revolvers and demanded money. Addante came up shooting and killed Barnwell.

CHICAGO FLYER KILLED AS TWO PLANES COLLIDE

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Nov. 17 (AP).—Lieut. Phillip Potter, 22 years old, a member of the United States air corps reserve, was killed today when his plane fell after its tail was torn off by the propeller of a second plane in formation flight. The second ship landed safely at Albrook field. Lieut. Potter's listed residence was Chicago.

Lieut. Phillip Potter.

STUDIED IN WISCONSIN.

Lieut. Potter was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron S. Potter, 6710 Chappel avenue. Mr. Potter has been with Armour & Co. for 26 years, most of the time as a foreign representative. Phillip was born in London and spent his boyhood in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

He came to the United States to attend St. John's Military academy, Delafield, Wis., and then enrolled at Lawrence college in Appleton, Wis. He dropped his studies and enrolled as a student flyer at Kelly field. He won his commission last February.

Because he spoke Spanish and Portuguese, Lieut. Potter was sent to the Canal Zone last September. At the same time his father was transferred to Armour's Chicago offices. The Potters missed seeing their son by four days—they had not seen him for three years when they received news of his death yesterday.

HIT BY TRAIN AND INJURED.

Thomas Evans, 43 years old, 7105 Stewart avenue, was seriously injured yesterday when a Rock Island train struck him near the Harlem avenue station in Tinley Park. Evans is a car inspector for the railroad.

KIDNAP COUPLE; COMPEL THEM TO AID IN HOLDUPS

A young man and a young woman were kidnaped in their own car by three gunmen early today and forced to act as lookouts for them in two robberies. The victims of this strange experience were John Kuswara, 26 years old, 4916 West 30th street, Cicero, a clerk, and Miss Betty Bower, 18, of 642 North Lorel avenue, a beauty parlor operator.

They were sitting in their car at Harlem and Ogden avenues, near Stickney, when the bandits appeared. The robbers, after taking $1 from Kuswara, drove him and Miss Bower to a tavern at 3600 Wolfram street, owned by John Warczynski.

The bandits ordered Miss Bower to stay in the car and directed Kuswara to stay at the front of the tavern and keep the door open. He did so, while the three were holding up Warczynski and getting $40. This procedure was repeated in a tavern holdup at Huron and Leavitt streets. The gunmen then drove Kuswara and Miss Bower to 18th street and Washtenaw, where they put them out of the car. One gave Kuswara $2.50, which represented a profit of $1.50 for his enforced part in the robberies.

Killer's Route

The route of the bandit who killed Vito Addante in his grocery store (1) last night, whence he fled after Addante's son opened fire on him. The bandit then went to the Provident hospital (2). He fled from the hospital before he could get treatment and ran into Washington park, where police were seeking him early today.

BLAZE PROBERS GET THEIR MAN; HE'S JUST A BOY

Donald [Skippy] Drew, was picked up yesterday by Detectives Maurice Mahoney and Walter Radomski of the Chicago Lawn police on suspicion of having set a fire in a basement at 3319 West 62d place. After admitting his guilt he was sent to the Juvenile home for further questioning. Police said that ordinarily he would have been turned over to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester E. Drew, 3439 West 63d place, but that he had been pretty busy lately getting into other mischief in the neighborhood. Skippy is 6 years old and is in the second grade.

BLAST KILLS 1, 14 ARE INJURED IN KANSAS CITY

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 17 (AP).—One person was killed and 14 injured late today in an explosion in the basement of the Grand Avenue Temple building, a 12 story office structure.

Mrs. Lee Hardwick, 23 years old, daughter-in-law of Fire Chief T. J. Hardwick, died several hours after the explosion, which witnesses said seemed to lift, then drop the building.

Richard Steele, 19, elevator operator, was injured seriously. Steele said he and another employé were changing their clothes after the day's work when some coins fell from his pocket and rolled under a table. "I struck a match to hunt for them and the explosion followed," he said.

Hours after the explosion firemen probed into gas mains to determine whether they were leaking.

POLLY WINGS HER WAY OUT OF WINDOW AND TOWARD A LAW COURT

Mrs. Clara Lang of 2429 Fullerton avenue appealed to the Shakespeare avenue police yesterday for aid in getting possession of a parrot that flew out of her window July 10.

She said the parrot had remained at large until a week ago, when it was tempted—with gifts of fruit and nuts—into the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Hilpert, 3318 Kimball avenue. Mrs. Hilpert, she added, refused to surrender the parrot.

Sergt. Drury Rowan investigated. Mrs. Hilpert said she intended to keep Polly because the parrot had reverted to the status of wild game before she caught it. Mrs. Lang said she would go to court to decide the issue.

DIVERSION OF CIO FUNDS FOR REDS' ACTIVITIES TOLD

Dies Committee Gets Records from Union.

and the Packinghouse Workers, a C. I. O. affiliate. Dies said he had been in ignorance of the impending election and that his hearing concerned the progress of communism, Fascism, and Nazism. He said he was not investigating any labor union.

"I am resuming executive hearings where I left off a short time ago when I heard a number of witnesses in Chicago," said Dies. "I have received some important testimony with regard to Fascist activities which involves certain newspapers, organizations, and individuals. I am here strictly for the purpose of ascertaining the facts on charges the committee has received with respect to communist, Fascist, and Nazi activities in this vicinity. Until all have been heard, the testimony will not be made public."

Charlotte Carr of Hull House has volunteered to appear before the committee today as a character witness for Henry Johnson, assistant national director of the PWOC. Johnson and Herbert Marsh, district director, who are expected to be called today, have been assailed in Amalgamated literature on charges of communism.

In a recent statement Johnson countered with a criticism of the Dies committee as supported by tory Democrats and reactionary Republicans.

Tells of Fascist Activity.

Dr. Sereno, who is from Italy and is now at the University of Chicago, it was learned, testified that Fascist propaganda methods here followed the model in Italy. He said he has made research and has learned that organizations of Black Shirts are being set up in several centers, that a Fascist youth movement has been started, and that some of the activities are promoted by some consular offices.

Dies expressed a belief that many indictments and convictions would result from the work of his committee, which he said ends Jan. 3. He said the department of justice is working on indictments based on violations of passport regulations and mishandling of organization funds. Most of the indictments, he said, probably would be returned in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, and on the west coast. He spoke of the west coast as the worst spot in America for subversive activities.

HADLEY CHARGES RED PROPAGANDA PERILS FREEDOM

A warning that communistic propaganda in this country threatens both freedom and Christianity was given last night by Charles W. Hadley, Republican candidate for attorney general.

Hadley, speaking in the Union Avenue Methodist church, 6000 Union avenue, cited congressional investigation disclosures in support of his statement that many communist sympathizers already are installed in government positions.

Hadley said communists had fomented strife among workers, advocated destruction of the government by force, and invaded the school system and churches.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sacksteder, 45 years old, of Louisville, Ky., leaped to her death last night from the eighth floor apartment of her divorced husband at 550 Arlington place after a dramatic conference over his love for another woman, who also was present.

The story of the plunge was told to Lieut. John T. O'Malley of the Sheffield avenue station by Abner F. Sacksteder, midwest manager for a lithographing house, and Miss Helen Hacker, 31, of St. Louis, Mo., a divorcée. Miss Hacker and Sacksteder have been friends for several years. The Sacksteders were divorced in September.

Mrs. Sacksteder visited her former husband last night to effect a reconciliation. Miss Hacker, who is staying at the Croydon hotel, was summoned. The three discussed Sacksteder's affections. Finally Mrs. Sacksteder demanded that her ex-husband choose between her and Miss Hacker. He indicated, he told police, he loved Miss Hacker, whereupon, he said, his ex-wife made two attempts to jump out the window, succeeding the second time.

WOMAN, 53, BUYS POP STOLEN BY 3 BOYS; JAILED

Mrs. Mary Baron, 53 years old, who likes to drink pop, was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail yesterday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors. Three boys of 16 told Judge Harold P. O'Connell they stole pop from delivery trucks and supplied Mrs. Baron with several bottles daily "just like a milkman."

"They charged me only 2 or 3 cents a bottle, but I never thought they had stolen it," said Mrs. Baron. "Did I resell the pop? No, I drank it. I like it."

Mrs. Baron lives at 12056 Michigan avenue. The boys will be arraigned in juvenile court today.

Held in Bonds of $100,000 After Assault on 2 Women

Charles Atlast, colored, 22 years old, 3171 Ellis avenue, was ordered held to the grand jury yesterday in total bonds of $100,000 by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in felony court on charges of mayhem, assault to kill, and assault with intent to rob. He was arrested Oct. 26 after he had attacked two white women with a knife.

DEWEY, ON STAND AT KUHN'S TRIAL, DENOUNCES BUND

Called in Defense Efforts to Show Persecution.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 17.—A stream of public officials, including District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey and Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, was summoned to the witness stand at the larceny trial of German-American Bund Leader Fritz Kuhn today in an effort to bolster the defense contention the case is built on political persecution.

Thomas E. Dewey.

Dewey, the oft-mentioned possibility for the Republican presidential nomination next year, expressed the belief the bund is a potential threat to civil liberties and preservation of the American system. He emphatically denied, however, that his personal feelings had caused him to prosecute the chief of the pro-Nazi organization.

La Guardia, who has heaped anathema on Fuehrer Hitler and the Nazis on more than one occasion, settled himself in the witness chair, but never got a chance to tell his story to the jury. General Sessions Judge James G. Wallace decided the defense line of questioning was irrelevant.

Court Rules Out Question.

Defense Attorney Peter L. F. Sabbatino asked the mayor whether he had written a letter to the state department requesting a passport be withheld from Kuhn. The court declared this had nothing to do with the charges against the defendant, who is under indictment on accusations of plundering the bund's treasury to the extent of $1,800 in order to meet personal expenses, including payment of bills for women friends.

One of these women, Mrs. Virginia Cogswell, one time beauty contest winner and nine times married, admitted in an interview today she had been an "intimate friend" of the beefy bund leader, but said this was sort of an espionage rôle. She said she strung along with him in order to tell the government what he was up to. According to testimony in the trial, Kuhn paid a $60 medical bill for her on one occasion.

Other Officials Summoned.

Among the officials who appeared on the stand in answer to defense subpenas were: Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine, Chief Assistant United States Attorney Mathias F. Correa, Commissioner of Investigation William B. Herlands, City Treasurer Almerindo Portfolio, and Assistant District Attorneys Sol Gelb and Frank Severance.

Examination of Valentine, Correa, and Portfolio was excluded as immaterial by the court, while Dewey's assistants merely supported his testimony that the Kuhn case had been prepared in the same routine fashion as other larceny cases in the district attorney's office.

When Sabbatino persisted in pursuing a line of questioning over the court's objections during Herlands' appearance, Judge Wallace threatened him with a contempt citation and excused the witness. The defense attorney apologized and nothing further was heard about the contempt action.

Dewey Brings Out Crowd.

Calling of Dewey, the racket busting prosecutor, brought out the biggest crowd of the trial. Part of the examination of Dewey by Sabbatino was as follows:

Q.—Did you have a personal animus against this defendant? A.—I should say in answer to your question that, never having seen the man or ever having had any acquaintance with him, it would have been impossible for me to have any personal animus. Yet, on the other hand, I must say I regarded him as a nuisance to the community and probably a threat to civil liberties and the proper preservation of the American system if he should become more important than he was.

Q.—As a matter of fact, you have got a very strong hatred against the German-American bund? A.—It is very difficult to call it hatred when it is really merely contempt.

Judge Admonishes Jury.

At this point the judge admonished the jury that the personal feelings of the district attorney were not to be considered as evidence. Sabbatino wanted to know Mayor La Guardia's part in the prosecution.

Q.—Of course you wrote to Mayor La Guardia about it—you wrote to Mayor La Guardia about this case, did you not? A.—I answered a letter from the mayor to me.

Q.—Have you the mayor's letter here? A.—I have.

Dewey produced the mayor's letter and his reply. Sabbatino offered them in evidence to support his contention that "certain forces have created a situation in which they seek the destruction of this defendant." The defense attorney quickly added he meant "no personal reflection on Mr. Dewey."

"I scarcely need your apology, Mr. Sabbatino," snapped Dewey.

La Guardia's Letter Read.

Read to the jury, La Guardia's letter to Dewey turned out to be a formal note transmitting reports from Commissioner of Investigation Herlands regarding a tax investigation of bund individuals and concerns. The mayor suggested the district attorney take whatever "prosecuting action" appeared appropriate.

The mayor's letter to "Dear Tom" was dated May 17, 1939, and Dewey's reply to "Dear Fiorello" was written on the following day. Dewey informed the mayor he would look into the misdemeanors in connection with the alleged tax violations and pointed out he was already inquiring into "alleged substantial felonies" by the bund.

Dewey also handed over the copy of a cartoon from the Portland Oregonian, sent to him by La Guardia. This depicted La Guardia and Dewey pulling on either arm of Bund Leader Kuhn and the caption read: "I saw him first."

Dewey's Reply Disclosed.

La Guardia's note accompanying the cartoon said: "You can have him." To this Dewey had replied: "I don't want him, either. I think the ash can is the best place for him." On the stand today Dewey interpreted this as "a contemptuous, humorous reference."

Sabbatino recalled that at the time of Kuhn's indictment last May 25 Dewey was quoted as calling the bund leader a "common thief." He asked whether Dewey made the assertion.

"I certainly did," declared Dewey in a firm voice.

MONDAY MORNING MOB MEMBER OUT ON BOND; ANOTHER'S WIFE HELD

Chester Kosola, 4746 South Ada street, one of the four members of the Monday morning mob, an alleged robbery gang accused of 10 armored car holdups, was released from the detective bureau last night on a $10,000 bond. It was furnished by John Tizeciak, 4759 South Ada street, a tavern owner, who said he is a Democratic precinct captain. Kosola was booked on a charge of robbery.

Mrs. Edith Dunne.

Kosola, James Dunne, Frank Wilson, and Frank Pauley, all ex-convicts, were arrested Wednesday. Police said they lay in wait for armored cars making rounds on Monday mornings and had taken from $600 to $5,500 in each of 10 robberies over a period of 13 months.

Yesterday a squad under Sergt. John Hanrahan seized Mrs. Edith Dunne, 28 years old, wife of James, after they found a package she had left in the basement of a tavern at 5515 Harper avenue contained five sticks of dynamite. She refused to answer questions and was held at the detective bureau.

12 CONGRESSMEN IN PANAMA TO STUDY DEFENSES

BALBOA, C. Z., Nov. 17.—Five United States senators and seven representatives received a 17 gun salute when they landed at Albrook field today after a flight thru Central America. Thirteen started, but Representative William D. Byron [D., Md.] stayed in San José, Costa Rica. He will be brought here by a bomber of the Panama canal forces.

Members of the military affairs committee, returned against the congressmen will carry out a four day inspection of the canal, with emphasis upon what additional defenses might be necessary.

They were welcomed by Maj. Gen. David Stone, commanding the Panama canal department, and Ambassador William Dawson.

INDICT BROWDER SECOND TIME ON PASSPORT CHARGE

New York, Nov. 17 (AP).—Earl Browder, general secretary of the communist party in the United States, was indicted for the second time by a federal grand jury today for allegedly having made false statements to procure passports and for using these passports. The new indictment charged that Browder used the name of "Albert Henry Richards" on one occasion. In the first indictment, returned against the communist leader last month, it was charged he used the name of "Nicholas Dozenberg" and "George Morris." Browder is free under $7,500 bail on the first indictment.

GERMANS HASTEN MANUFACTURE OF SYNTHETIC FUEL

Seek to Increase Supply of Gasoline.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—Despite Germany's trade agreement with Russia, under which the reich expects to receive a large amount of oil, Germany is further adding to its supply of gasoline by increasing the manufacture of a synthetic substitute on a large scale.

Financial circles said that the Krupp works are issuing new bonds aggregating $16,000,000 for this purpose. The Krupp works is one of the last German concerns whose funds are controled entirely by the family of the original founder.

Berlin financial circles said a number of other large armaments factories, coal and gas firms, have been invited to float a large loan to finance the building of a new plant to produce synthetic gas.

The Essener hard coal company recently issued $4,000,000 in bonds to fulfill a suggestion by the government to manufacturers for the new substitute fuel.

Urge Ban on Lumber Cargoes.

BERLIN, Nov. 17 (AP).—Germany is seriously considering placing all shipments of lumber on the contraband list even if apparently destined for neutral ports, authorized sources said.

The reason for the lumber ban, these sources asserted, is Great Britain's attempt to prevent neutrals from shipping anything whatsoever to Germany regardless of whether it is contraband.

A campaign for tightening lumber regulations was started by the Voelkischer Beobachter, official central organ of the Nazi party.

Says Ships Claim U. S. as Goal.

The Beobachter declared many lumber carrying freighters formerly plying between England and the northern states now are headed to neutral ports. The paper said some ships even claim the United States as their destination altho not equipped for transocean travel.

Authorized sources said that the Beobachter editorial was not official, but that the government has evidence proving the newspaper's argument.

115,000 GERMANS REMOVED FROM POLISH UKRAINE

MOSCOW, Nov. 17 (AP).—Repatriation of about 115,000 Germans from the western Ukraine, recently Polish but now Russian territory, has begun, informed sources said today.

A German commission left Moscow yesterday after conferences with Russian officials, in which details were reported to have been worked out.

Informed persons said nearly 1,000,000 persons would be withdrawn from the German part of Poland to Russia. They will include Ukrainians, Ruthenians, White Russians, Russian Jews, and communists.

British toQuit SummerTime Sunday, Advance Blackouts

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Blackouts will be blacker and earlier beginning Sunday, when summer time will be replaced by Greenwich [Standard] time. Blackout periods then will begin at 4:35 p. m. as compared with 5:36 now. Many business houses will have to close earlier, permitting their employés to go home before dark.

FRANCE IMPOSES 15% TAX ON MEN NOT IN THE ARMY

General Salary Tax Is Boosted, Too.

PARIS, Nov. 17 (AP).—The French government today issued a new decree raising the general salary tax from 3 per cent to 5 per cent. It also decreed that in addition to the regular income tax, men between 18 and 49 who have not been mobilized will have to pay a 15 per cent war chest tax, effective Jan. 1.

Finance Minister Paul Reynaud outlined before the finance committee of the chamber of deputies a 1940 civil budget of 79,000,000,000 francs [about $1,759,000,000] which he asserted receipts would balance.

Lull on Western Front.

France will also have an extraordinary budget which adds 40 per cent to the total ordinary budget on civil and military needs. This has been set provisionally at 349,000,000,000 francs [about $7,770,800,000].

The lull continued on the western front. The night communique told merely of "local activity of units in contact and artillery." The morning report said the entire front passed a quiet night.

[The German communique yesterday said, "In the west, with minor local artillery annoyance fire, no noteworthy fighting activity."]

Two Raid Alarms.

German airplanes continued their flights over southeastern France. An air alarm was signaled at Lyon at 9:30 a. m. and ended one hour and 40 minutes later. Another, at Marseilles, lasted from 11:35 a. m. to 12:15 p. m.

BRITAIN, FRANCE PROTEST SERBIAN MINERALCONTROL

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Nov. 17.—Sharp British and French protests are understood to have delayed the appointment by the Jugo-Slav government of a committee to control the production and exportation of Jugo-Slavia's minerals, including copper, zinc, lead, and iron pyrites, produced in British and French controled mines.

The reason for the protest is believed to be the determination of London and Paris to prevent minerals from reaching Germany. Jugo-Slavia, however, is anxious to maintain at least the pre-war level of exports of minerals to Germany. The latter, unlike Britain and France, appears to be in a position to supply the type of armaments most urgently required by Jugo-Slavia.

If the committee is formed, the British and French governments will propose calling a round table conference in Belgrade of the Jugo-Slav mineral producing interests and a representative of the government.

Second Temblor in 3 Days Shakes Baltimore Area

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 17 (AP).—A second earthquake in 72 hours—this time apparently localized in an area immediately north of Baltimore—produced more dish rattling and furniture moving tonight, but property damage was slight.

Sharp Quake in Montana.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 17 (AP).—A sharp earth tremor was felt here at 11:38 o'clock tonight [12:38 a. m. Saturday, Chicago time]. The quake lasted only two seconds. There were no immediate reports of damage.

ENGLAND ADOPTS U. S. AS ALLY AND AWAITS QUICK AID

Kermit Roosevelt Quoted as Saying We Will Go In.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRISTOL, England, Nov. 17.—All eyes in England are turned across the Atlantic ocean to the United States of America. One might say that the United States has become England's favorite dominion.

That is the impression that grows as one travels about Great Britain. Everywhere the people are praising the value of the aid which the United States can give. America's eventual participation in the war is expected with confidence.

The change in designation of cousins across the Atlantic is noticeable in this war. In the last war it was "the Americans." In this war American is referred to almost exclusively as 'the States," and rarely properly as the United States.

Cites Kermit Roosevelt.

I picked up a local Bristol paper this morning and saw this headline: "Americans in Khaki. Theodore Roosevelt's Son Among Them." The article began by referring to the period of the world war when "the States" were too proud to fight, but when, nevertheless, Americans were volunteering. It ended up by saying that Kermit Roosevelt, now a British major, "does not conceal his admiration for his distinguished relative [President Franklin D. Roosevelt] and thinks that the United States eventually will come into this fight. But he is possibly prejudiced by his ancestry. The Roosevelts have family graves in Highgate cemetery."

One gets the impression also now that just as there was a cordial entente in the world war, there is an entente between England and the United States in this war—at any rate that they are proceeding on that basis here.

Prof. R. B. Mowat of Bristol university has just published a book on the subject, which, in fact, he, calls "American Entente." He traces the history of relations between "the States" and Great Britain.

Says Entente Exists.

"There are signs," he concludes, "that in all regions [of the United States] opinion is coming around to the view that the world is now so small that even the United States would not be safe if the rest fell into confusion."

Prof. Mowat, who holds the chair of history at Bristol, adds that "there never has been any proclamation of the British-American entente. Nevertheless, a British-American entente in effect exists and it has come into existence as did the Franco-British one—that is, by a paring away of outstanding political grounds of difference."

The professor contends that there are no political subjects of controversy, terrestrial or maritime, between Great Britain and the United States, and that henceforth the foreign policies of the two countries are rapidly integrating.

Calls Ties "Beacon of Hope."

"The foreign office and department of state," he says, "have many things to keep in mind, but in the bewildering mass of business which presses on them from the rest of the world amid doubts, suspicions, and guesses of diplomatic affairs, almost amounting to a 'fog of war,' the clarity of British-American relations, almost amounting to mutual confidence, is one of the beacons of hope for the future."

The future of whom the professor does not specify.

One person to whom I talked today predicted that the United States would be in this war within a year's time.

To me that caused less worry than finding a hotel room. Hotels here have been commandeered by the government and one must scurry around in the blackout to find a place to sleep if he or she is a stranger in Bristol. Daylight reveals Bristol to be a pretty nice town on the edge of what is known as the West Country. Altho it is an area for evacuation and considered "safe," it is sandbagged and has air raid precautions.

Expects Baby

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Crown Princess Ingrid, as she appeared at social event in Chicago last spring.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Nov. 17.—Crown Prince Frederik and Crown Princess Ingrid today announced that they are expecting the birth of an heir. The newspaper Extrabladet said the birth is expected in the spring, possibly in April.

If the child is a boy he will be the heir to the throne after his father. If the baby is a girl, Frederik's younger brother, Knud, will remain second in the line of succession.

Frederik and the former Princess Ingrid of Sweden were married in Stockholm May 24, 1935. The child will be their first. Last spring they made a tour of the United States and in April spent three days in Chicago.

HOLT PROTESTS AMERICA GIVING BRITISH SHIP OIL

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—Senator Holt [D., W. Va.] demanded today that the United States navy give a complete explanation of why the British light cruiser Caradoc was allowed to load fuel at the San Diego, Cal., naval depot yesterday.

Holt, member of the senate naval affairs committee, said "there should be some exceptional reason for allowing armed warships of a belligerent to come into an American port, load oil, and then depart." He added that "it appears some public officials are trying to get this country involved."

Chairman Bloom [D., N. Y.] of the house foreign affairs committee, called attention to a section of the neutrality act allowing belligerent warships to enter American harbors. Under that section they must leave within 24 hours after taking aboard only enough fuel to carry them to the closest port of their country.

The Caradoc left San Diego last night, presumably for the Canadian base at Esquimault, B. C.

BRITAIN, FRANCE AGREE TO POOL ALL RESOURCES

Eliminate Competition in Buying War Supplies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Great Britain and France agreed upon a new measure of wartime collaboration in the economic sphere today. The supreme war council of the empires met in London and decided to set up an Anglo-French business partnership, in which they will pool the economic resources of the two countries.

The object is to eliminate competition and keep down prices on world markets for their war requirements and at the same time intensify economic warfare against Germany.

With the usual secrecy surrounding the council's movements, eight Anglo-French war leaders assembled in Downing street. The meeting lasted three hours.

Chamberlain's Gout Better.

Those representing France were Premier Edouard Daladier; Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, commander in chief of the British and French armies in France; Gen. Joseph Vuillemin, chief of the French air force, and Admiral Jean Darlan, commander of the French navy. England was represented by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, who is recovering from an attack of gout; Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax; Defense Minister Lord Chatfield, and Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood.

It was the first meeting of the council since Sept. 22. A communique was issued announcing that a joint Anglo-French council with six coördinating committees will be set up to figure out the needs, resources, and output of the two countries and to supervise the combined purchases on world markets.

The council's activities will cover aviation, munitions, war materials, food, oil, shipping, and economic war plans. Under the agreement, Anglo-French resources of raw materials, means of production, tonnage, etc., will be pooled and any reduction in imports of any particular commodity will be shared jointly.

The agreement aims to facilitate the prosecution of the war with a minimum of disturbance to their economic systems. It appears to cut out the risk of Britain and France seeking to outbid each other for raw materials and armaments, which both need, while their importers will be able to enter neutral markets against competitors with bigger orders backed by the combined purchasing power of the two countries.

Another object of the agreement is to simplify the convoy system. Valuable shipping space will be saved and benefits are anticipated for export trade, upon which Britain is vitally dependent. British and French salesmanship abroad expects to profit by the greater bargaining power represented in the Anglo-French business partnership.

LABOR CONSCRIPTION IN POLISH TERRITORY ORDERED BY GERMANY

CRACOW, Poland, Nov. 17.—Dr. Hans Frank, governor general of the German occupied Polish territory, today decreed the conscription of labor among the Polish population. The decree is based on the principle that every one who is capable is obligated to work. It also regulates work conditions. Refusal to coöperate, or insubordination, will bring "corresponding punishment." This decree, the semi-official news agency says, will give the Poles a chance to learn the blessing of work and "also to set aright the results of two decades of misuse of Polish economy by irresponsible Polish governments."

RUSSIA MAY USE BREMEN IN NEW SHIP LINE TO U. S.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Nov. 17.—A Norwegian traveler from Murmansk, Russia, reported, on reaching Bergen, Norway, that the German liner Bremen has been transferred to the Russian flag and that the soviets intend to open a new Atlantic line between Murmansk and New York with the Bremen.

A Norwegian pilot, who returned to Bergen after conducting the German liner New York to Ore Sund, said the New York now is safe in a German port.

The Bremen left New York after a two day delay for customs inspection on Aug. 30 and was not heard of for more than a month. The exact date of its arrival at Murmansk never was established officially, altho it was first reported seen there late in September. The liner New York also went to Murmansk from New York during the early days of the war. It was reported recently to have run the British blockade into the Baltic sea.

13 WESTERN ENGLAND TOWNS GET AIR RAID ALARMS; FIRST TIME

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP).—Great Britain's home defenses were stirred to action today by the first air raid alarms of the war on England's west coast. Alarms were sounded in 13 towns, but no bombs were dropped.

German planes flew over the Shetland Islands, north of Scotland, and over Lancashire, Cheshire, and North Wales. The raiders were driven off by anti-aircraft fire and British airmen. Lancashire is a shipping and industrial county, of which Liverpool and Manchester are the centers. Cheshire is across the Mersey river from Lancashire.

The air ministry announced that royal air force planes photographed an important German naval base. In their flight over northwestern Germany the planes encountered anti-aircraft fire.

Hawaii Forbids Japanese Warships to Carry Cargoes

HILO, Territory of Hawaii, Nov. 17 (AP).—New rules forbidding Japanese warships from carrying cargoes of any nature from Hawaii to Japan were posted today by customs authorities. The new regulations also prohibit armed Japanese sentries at American docks. Customs officials said the ban against armed sentries was the outgrowth of a recent incident in which an armed Japanese sentry slapped H. Stanley Wilson, American customs inspector here, because he refused to bow to the sentry before boarding the Japanese training cruiser Yakumo.

Pilot, 21, and Boy, 13, Die in Illinois Plane Crash

Olney, Ill., Nov. 17 (AP).—Two youths were killed today when their plane crashed into a field near here. The victims were Carl Berger, 21 years old, the pilot, and Truman Rodgers Jr., 13. A witness said the plane stalled at a height of about 200 feet.

German Vessels Reported Donning Italian Line's Colors

ONCE UPON A TIME . . .

By CALEB

THUS, beyond doubt, started the first tale ever told in the world—and full of tale-telling the world has been ever since. Nor will there ever be an ending—for millions of children are still coming into this storyful world; hence all the tales must be told all over again!

With which pre-eminently proper thought we remind ourselves of the fact that throughout America this has been National Book Week. Equally important to note, "Children's Book Week," as well. For where's there a friend to a book like a child?—ever dewy-fresh of mind, interested of spirit, keen of curiosity, matchless for credulity. Wonderful assets, always, for the special book that proves worthy of such priceless attention ingredients.

And three just such special books are before me as I write: typical of the treasure-trove now in our book section. One is that long-awaited collection of Tune-In Tales, by "Uncle Mal" of NBC fame—if you prefer specifics, Mr. Malcolm Claire. The second, equally delectable, is Ben and Me, An Astonishing Life of Benjamin Franklin, purporting to have been discovered—but indubitably edited and illustrated—by Robert Lawson; while the third is a different and gracious edition of Pilgrim's Progress, "Retold and Shortened for Modern Readers," by Mary Godolphin.

With such volumes in hand, even stern adults will juvenesce. And that's precisely my fear: that the youngsters will, if not on the alert, be curtailed of legitimate first-reading rights. Perhaps the solution—or am I promotive?—is a copy for each literate in the household; but at any rate, one rejoices to realize the mental fare which Bookland offers our children, this season, is that good! Tune-In Tales, for example, edited by Bernadine Bailey, author of Little Greta of Denmark, recounts many of the world's "real" stories in its series of twenty-nine . . . Napoleon, Parsifal, Raphael, Peter Cooper . . . and concludes more than fittingly with "The Story of Christmas." As for the early American mouse who took quill pen in hand to narrate his adventures with his master, the great Franklin—believing needs seeing! So, also, do the memorably picturized pages of Bunyan's 260-year-old classic, Pilgrim's Progress. . . .

Happy climax, of course, to our presentation of Children's Book Week, will be the personal appearances of Malcolm Claire and Robert Lawson this afternoon—"Uncle Mal" to chat and autograph; the illustrator of Ferdinand to do likewise. Next thing, assuredly, to being a child oneself is the privilege of glancing over Childhood's shoulder, in these bookish days, and being able still to share the anticipatory thrill of "Once upon a time—"

ENGLAND ORDERS BLACKOUT ALONG COAST OF AFRICA

Acts After Ship Is Sunk in Indian Ocean.

DURBAN, Union of South Africa, Nov. 17.—As a result of the sinking of the British tanker Africa Shell by a German raider in the Indian ocean Wednesday orders were issued today for a blackout of the entire east coast of Africa that is under British control. Tankers have been ordered to take new routes.

Air raid precaution plans for Nairobi, Kenya, have been completed. These include the appointment of European and native air raid wardens, the evacuation of schools, blackouts during air raids, demolition of wrecked buildings, and decontamination of streets if it becomes necessary.

Insist Raider Was Battleship.

Messages from Lourenco Marques, Mozambique, said the crew of the Africa Shell insist the sea raider was a German pocket battleship, the Deutschland or the Admiral Scheer. However, South African authorities believe the raider was an armed merchantman.

The Africa Shell was ordered to heave to by the firing of a shot across her bow, according to the crew. A German officer and a detachment of men boarded the tanker, seized all provisions and ordered the crew to take to lifeboats, but held the captain prisoner. The vessel then was sunk by two bombs that tore a big hole in the stern. The ship went down 180 miles northeast of Lourenco Marques in the Mozambique channel. This is an arm of the Indian ocean between the Portuguese colony of Mozambique and the French island of Madagascar.

The tanker's crewmen, who were landed on the Mozambique coast are expected to reach Lourenco Marques Sunday.

Seize 15 Finnish Ships.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 17.—German naval authorities, strengthening their control over Finnish shipping in the Baltic, have taken 15 steamers into German ports, mostly to Stettin, it was reported here today.

The ships have been retained for considerable time, it was said, altho their papers showed the cargoes were destined for neutral ports. The steamers Kopin Thorden and Hulda Thorden, en route from Finland to America, were held for more than a month in Stettin.

Most of the ships were captured south of Sweden, near Falsterbo, where because of shallow water they are obliged to leave Swedish territorial waters.

Seize Cargo of Newsprint.

LIMA, PERU, NOV. 17 (AP).—Agents of the Swedish steamer Valparaiso were advised today that the ship, carrying a cargo of newsprint, had been seized by the German navy and taken to a German port. The Valparaiso, 3,759 tons, left Gothenburg, Sweden, Oct. 15.

News of the seizure caused concern in publishing circles here since the available supply of newsprint has been running short. The cargo was consigned to Peru, Chile and other countries on the west coast of South America.

BRITISH-FRENCH SEA CONTROL HITS ITALIAN SHIPPING

ROME, Nov. 17.—The newspaper Telegrafo today described how the British and French are hampering Italian sea trade. One Italian ship was held up at Gibraltar for 29 days, the paper said. When finally it was released, the French picked it up and held it at Marseilles for 10 more days. The paper concluded that this showed a lack of cohesion between the two contraband control systems.

Other Italian vessels have been detained 23 and 25 days so that their cargoes deteriorated disastrously, Telegrafo said. One of the largest Atlantic liners, presumably the Conte di Savoia, was held at Gibraltar eight days, and another trans-Atlantic ship was held six days.

The newspaper Regime Fascista disclosed that Italian ships are indirectly serving Belgium and Holland. Goods coming thru the Suez canal is being unloaded at Italian ports and sent by rail to Belgium and Holland. That used to be a costly route, altho quicker. Under present conditions, however, it is cheaper and safer. Goods arrive within six days instead of two weeks.

QUIZ NOT NEEDED ON SHIP FAULTS, SAYS ROOSEVELT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—The assertion of Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] that a congressional investigation is needed to determine responsibility for the faulty design of some of the navy's new destroyers was discussed today by President Roosevelt at his press conference.

The President said the top-heaviness revealed on shakedown cruises has been remedied and the ships are now perfectly seaworthy. However, he is willing for congress to make its own investigation and will do nothing to prevent it, he said.

The story of the faulty designs, the President said, was neither startling nor worthy of a congressional investigation. There was a difference of opinion, he said, between naval and private architects as to the proper metacentric height of the vessels. He confessed he didn't know what metacentric height is. The dictionary defines it as 'the distance from the center of gravity to the highest part of the superstructure.

Peril China's Lifelines

Japanese troops have launched an offensive intended to sever Chinese supply lines to French Indo-China. Around Yamhsien (1) yesterday they were reported to be consolidating their forces preparatory to driving ahead (2) on line of march further indicated by arrows. Their ultimate destination is Chinese lifeline in Yunnan province.

CHINA HURLS ITS BEST TROOPS AT JAPS' OFFENSIVE

Seeks to Stem Attack on Lifelines.

HONGKONG, Nov. 17 (AP).—China today rushed some of her best troops, Kwangsi province units, to South Kwangtung province to stem the advance of Japanese forces driving toward the Chinese southwestern lifeline supply routes.

These troops, who had been operating in eastern Kwangtung, were dispatched to the areas west of Pakhoi, where the Japanese were pushing inland and northward toward the vital routes.

The Japanese said tonight that their forces were consolidating control of the area around Yamhsien, about 30 miles inland from the place where the Japanese landed Wednesday under covering fire from warships. The landing place was 45 miles west of Pakhoi, treaty port on the Gulf of Tongking.

Sixty Miles from Main Road.

The Japanese asserted they were straddling the road from Pakhoi to Nanning, Chinese army headquarters in Kwangsi. This would put the troops still at least 60 miles from the main motor and rail links between Kwangsi and French Indo-China.

The chief rail and motor lifeline at which the Japanese drive is aimed lies 600 difficult miles inland, in Yunnan province. The Japanese route to this goal lies across Kwangsi province.

The Chinese were destroying bridges and roads thru districts of Kwangtung threatened by the advancing Japanese, who were pushing northward west of Pakhoi. Chinese said Pakhoi still was in their hands and the Japanese made no claim to having captured it.

Jap-Red Relations Improve.

TOKIO, Nov. 17 (AP).—A foreign office spokesman asserted today relations between Japan and Russia had changed to a point where the situation was more favorable than ever before for resolving outstanding differences.

"Japan is sincerely anxious to ameliorate relations with the soviet," the spokesman asserted.

Some observers said they believed Japan might use the prospect of friendship with Russia as a means to put pressure on the United States of America and Great Britain for straightening out her problems with them.

RULE WAR PLANES CAN'T BE FLOWN OVER U. S. BORDER

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16 (AP).—American warplanes can be pushed or pulled across the border for delivery in Canada, government officials held informally today, but they can not be flown across under their own power. This is their conclusion after discussion of a problem raised by the neutrality act.

The officials contended that the export of airplanes to a belligerent is permitted under the neutrality act, but that under international law the flight of warplanes to a belligerent constitutes an "armed expedition."

It would be permissible, they say, to fly a plane to the Canadian border and then wheel it across. Shipment port by train is permitted. American planes may not be flown across the Atlantic from the United States for delivery to belligerents.

Canada to Use Tractors.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 17 [Special].—Comment here today on Washington reports that the new neutrality regulations would prevent American planes from being flown across the Canadian border was that tractors would be used to pull them across.

According to airmen here there is an airfield in Montana where even the use of tractors will be unnecessary. The field is right against the Canadian border, and has been continued on the other side by Canada.

BLAME YOUR LIVER IF—

If your liver doesn't secrete 20 to 30 ounces of bile every day into your intestines—constipation with its headaches, mental dullness and that "half-alive" feeling often result. So you see how important it is to keep bile flowing freely! And what finer aid could one desire than Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, used so successfully for years by Dr. F. M. Edwards for treating his patients for constipation and sluggish liver bile.

Olive Tablets are unsurpassed in effectiveness because they stimulate liver bile to help digest fatty foods, they tone up muscular intestinal action, at the same time help elimination. Being purely vegetable, Olive Tablets are wonderful! Test their supreme goodness TONIGHT! 15¢, 30¢, 60¢. All druggists.

URGES FEDERAL AID FOR CHICAGO SUPERHIGHWAYS

Suggests 50 Millions to Buy Rights of Way.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—Prospect of a 50 million dollar federal loan for Chicago superhighway construction was told by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States bureau of public roads, in an address here this afternoon before the American Automobile association's annual convention.

T. H. MacDonald. [Copyright: Harris & Ewing photo.]

The government official cited the Chicago projects to illustrate the operations of a national superhighway plan introduced at the last regular session of congress and to be pushed by President Roosevelt at the session to convene in January. Under this plan the Reconstruction Finance corporation would issue long term loans at low interest rates for the purchase of rights of way for major automobile routes approved by the bureau of public roads.

Five Superhighways.

"In Chicago, for example," said Mr. MacDonald, "five superhighways radiating from the loop to the city limits, including two on the lake front, are estimated to cost 125 million dollars, including 50 million dollars for rights of way. With federal money to buy the land, the improvements could be built with gasoline tax revenue at its present rate."

In an interview after his speech, the bureau chief said that to retire and to pay interest on a 50 million dollars loan for the Chicago projects would cost about 4.63 per cent or $2,315,000 a year for 30 years.

"Your local officials," he told this reporter, "require a large lump sum for right away to initiate construction. After they have the land, the current revenue from the gas tax comes as rapidly as it can be spent for building."

Association Indorses Plan.

Chicago and Cook county have planned to get such a large lump sum, 30 million dollars each, thru the sale of gas tax anticipation notes authorized by the legislature this year. The validity of this legislation, questioned by Attorney General John Cassidy, must be established by the Illinois Supreme court before the notes can be marketed.

The automobile association, ending its 27th annual meeting here tonight, adopted a resolution indorsing the MacDonald superhighway plan. Another resolution adopted condemned the use of gas tax money for realty promotions disguised as superhighway projects. Its author, Joseph J. Cavanagh, general manager of the Chicago Motor club, said he was inspired by his opposition to the Congress street plan pending before the Chicago council.

JURORS DEFEND LIBERAL AWARDS IN AIRPORT SUIT

Tried Their Best to Be Fair, They Say.

Members of a Circuit court jury told frankly yesterday why they voted condemnation awards totaling $51,120 to the owners of 33 parcels of property needed for expansion of Chicago airport. The awards—in some cases even more than asked by the owners—have been attacked by the city as grossly excessive.

Attorneys for the city will go before Judge D. J. Normoyle Nov. 27 to ask that the verdict be set aside and a new trial granted. City experts had valued the 33 parcels at $27,000. Experts for the owners had fixed a total of $61,000.

Deliberate for 16 Hours.

There were six women and six men on the jury. They heard the case for ten days, then deliberated for 16 hours before reaching their verdict.

Mrs. Ernestine Stout, 8524 Bishop street, one of the jurors, said the jury did its best to be fair.

"We kept figuring for all 16 hours. There were figures from five experts. It was like going back to school again—we didn't have any adding machines."

Mrs. Mary K. Fidler, 2718 Rosemont avenue, spoke similarly, saying: "I don't understand Mr. Grossman's criticism." [Joseph Grossman, assistant corporation counsel, attacked the awards as without "rhyme or reason."] "We gave our honest consideration to each parcel."

Tells of Instructions.

Another juror, Alexander Angeloff, 121 South Vail street, Arlington Heights, said: "The first day of the trial we visited the property. Later we were instructed by the court that we could give as much weight to our opinions of the value of the property as we did to that of the experts. In a few cases we thought that the values fixed by the owners' experts were not high enough. We were not instructed that we must not go above the estimates of the experts."

The other jurors, who all agreed the verdict was fair, were Mrs. Etta Steinle, 5043 Bernard street; Joseph P. Bermingham, 7543 South Honore street; James Bennett, 7616 West 62d street, Argo; Mrs. Jeanette Berkman, 1321 Touhy avenue; Karl Berger, 3249 North Albany avenue; Jeremiah Griffin [foreman], 4910 Van Buren street; Miss Irene Ray, 2327 North Newcastle avenue; Mrs. Julia Wacek, 6515 South Karlov avenue, and Walter Stetz, 4545 North Claremont avenue.

The trial was the second in the city's program to acquire land to relocate the tracks of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad, which now bisect the airport tract.

NEW FOG NOZZLE EATS SMOKE FOR SMOKE EATERS

James Gleason, chief engineer of the fire department, disclosed yesterday that the department has perfected a new type nozzle that has been found effective in cutting thru heavy smoke.

The device is known as the fog nozzle. It throws a spray much finer than the standard nozzle. In battling oil fires it has been discovered that the fine mist changes into steam quickly and blankets the flames.

COUNTY DECLINES MAYOR'S PLAN TO SETTLE FOR CASH

The county board yesterday declined the offer made Thursday by Mayor Kelly to take $2,000,000 and a vacant lot at 45th and Halsted streets in settlement of a $3,200,000 judgment for the city against the county. Commissioner Maurice F. Kavanagh, chairman of the board's finance committee, said that the $2,000,000 would have to be turned over in cash while payments on the full amount of the judgment can be spread over a 10 year period. The judgment is for the county's share of Municipal court costs since 1928.

MOTORIST IS SENT TO JAIL IN DRIVER LICENSE PERJURY

Convicted of False Oath on Physical Handicap.

The first Chicago motorist to be convicted of falsely swearing that he was in sound physical condition in applying for a state driver's license was sentenced yesterday to five days in the county jail by Judge Joseph B. Hermes in Safety court.

The driver, Peter Yucis, 64 years old, 29 West 104th place, was charged with perjury. He was found guilty by Judge Hermes in a bench trial. He already had served nine days in jail on a charge of reckless driving.

Yucis, according to previous testimony, filed an affidavit in connection with his application for a driver's license that he had no physical defects which might impair his driving. Later it was shown that he has been wearing braces on both legs for a number of years.

Driver to Lose License.

Stanley R. Kosinski, chief clerk of the auto division of the secretary of state's office here, said the record of Yucis' conviction will come to the office here thru the Springfield division and Yucis' driver's license will be canceled.

Kosinski said this was the first case of this kind to come to his attention.

The provision against issuing licenses to persons with physical defects was intended to bar the highways to drivers who are unable to control their cars properly. Moreover, persons who swear falsely in making out affidavits for driver's licenses are subject to loss of their licenses and to sentences for perjury. The driver's license law went into effect May 1.

Notary Public Censured.

In addition to sentencing Yucis, Judge Hermes censured Paul H. Melborn, 10134 Michigan avenue, a notary public who had notarized Yucis' application and affidavit. Melborn said he could not remember the entry with reference to physical disability.

Judge Hermes sentenced Mrs. Dorothy Allgood, 29 years old, of 3717 Ohio street, to five days in the county jail on a charge of reckless driving. Her driving privileges were suspended for 60 days. She was arrested early in the day after her automobile struck a car near 31st street and Union avenue.

Robert Doland, 22 years old, 1543 Warren boulevard, was sentenced to 15 days in jail and was prohibited from driving for six months on a charge of reckless driving growing out of an acident Nov. 3 at Ogden boulevard and Western avenue.

BYRD SHIP HITS PILINGS, BUT NO DAMAGE OCCURS

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP).—As if Admiral Richard E. Byrd's ponderous snow cruiser hadn't had trouble enough on land, the ship bearing it toward the antarctic met with mishap today.

The North Star, one of two expedition vessels, crashed into pilings as she docked to take on additional cargo. There was no serious damage. Indeed, Capt. Isak Lystad felt better about the whole thing as a result.

"The accident," declared the captain, "has established the seaworthiness of the ship—especially that she could plow her way thru ice floes."

Admiral Byrd was not at the dock, but he is expected to direct the loading of the two airplanes and other equipment tomorrow.

Heaviest piece of cargo is the giant 27 ton snowmobile, Penguin I., which will be used in overice trips by the expedition.

COUNTY HOSPITAL TO REGAIN A. M. A. INTERN APPROVAL

Commissioners Name New Medical Director.

The American Medical association soon will restore the Cook county hospital to its list of hospitals approved for internship. This became certain yesterday with the county board's appointment of Dr. Marshall Davison to succeed Dr. Karl A. Meyer as hospital medical director.

Dr. Marshall Davison. [Neidoff Photo.]

County commissioners, hospital officials and A. M. A. officials said the appointment will end the long controversy over administration of the county hospital.

Dr. Meyer was named medical superintendent of all county institutions. Thru him the medical work at County hospital, Oak Forest infirmary, and Psychopathic hospital will be coördinated. It is the plan to utilize Oak Forest as a convalescent hospital and to enlarge its medical and intern staffs.

Heads Hospital Staff.

Dr. Davison will become full time director of the county hospital medical staff. He will supervise medical records and will instruct interns and resident physicians.

Inadequacy in the training of interns has been the A. M. A.'s main criticism of the hospital, altho most of the 144 attending physicians at the hospital have maintained that the hospital's intern training is the best in the city.

The American Medical association removed the County hospital from its approved list in 1935, apparently because Dr. Meyer was accepting candidates for the intern civil service examination from the Chicago Medical college, which was on the A. M. A. blacklist. The hospital remained accredited for the training of resident physicians and nurses, however.

It was given a temporary reinstatement of one year in 1937 so County hospital interns could qualify for licenses to practice in states which required that they be from approved hospitals. The reinstatement lapsed, however, and for the last two years medical school graduates have interned at the hospital at their own risk.

Committee Makes Survey.

Meanwhile, charges of political connivance and incompetent administration in the hospital led to the appointment by the county board of a hospital survey committee, headed by Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of the Northwestern university medical school.

In September, 1937, the committee reported that the hospital was ill-equipped and poorly maintained. The committee recommended the appointment of a citizens' advisory council to instruct the county board on a program of improvements in medical service and building equipment.

The citizens' committee first was headed by D. F. Kelly and, upon the death of Kelly, by Charles H. Schweppe. The committee first attacked the problem of superintendency. This led to the appointment in 1938 by the board of Brig. Gen. Manus McCloskey as warden, succeeding Michael Zimmer.

Change Urged by Group.

Last winter the committee recommended that Dr. Davison be appointed full time medical director and that Dr. Meyer be placed in charge of medical care in all county institutions. The county board rejected the recommendation, but Clayton Smith, its president, later indicated the proposal might be accepted at the end of the fiscal year.

Davison's appointment yesterday was made with the understanding that both the A. M. A. and the American College of Surgeons, which had withdrawn approval of the hospital a year ago, would approve.

Dr. William D. Cutter, secretary of the A. M. A. council on medical education and hospitals, said:

"The appointment of Dr. Davison is evidently an effort to fulfill the recommendation of the American Medical association and the citizens' committee. No action can be taken by the council until its meeting Dec. 10."

Temporary Action Expected.

Indications were that the A. M. A. council would give temporary accredited standing for internship to the hospital pending the annual convention of the A. M. A. next June.

Dr. Malcolm MacEachern, associate director of the American College of Surgeons, said: "Our annual survey showed that the hospital is making fine progress. The appointment of Dr. Davison is no doubt a splendid move."

Dr. MacEachern indicated, however, that since the American College of Surgeons' accredited list is published annually on Oct. 1, the official restoration of the hospital would probably not take place until October, 1940.

Head of Surgical Department.

Dr. Davison, who is 43 years old, has practiced in Chicago for 19 years. He is head of the county hospital surgical department, associate professor of surgery at Northwestern, and a surgeon at University hospital.

He said he expects to take over his new position on an eight hour a day basis on Dec. 1. His salary is expected to be set at $7,500 in the 1940 budget now being prepared by the county board.

Dr. Meyer, a noted surgeon and also an associate professor of surgery at Northwestern, said he will continue to maintain his office in the county hospital. Whether his salary of $4,000 a year will be increased has not been decided, according to Frank Korytzka, chairman of the county board hospital committee. He has been on the county hospital staff for 18 years.

Artist Weds Model

Carl Hallsthammar, artist, and his bride, the former Miss Genevieve Grant, who was his model.

Carl Hallsthammar of 1638 Berwyn avenue, sculptor, who obtained a divorce on Tuesday, was married late yesterday in the Marriage court to Miss Genevieve Grant of 14 West Elm street. Hallsthammar is 42 years old; his bride, who posed several years ago for his prize winning statue, "Venus in Red Cherry," is 27.

The second Mrs. Hallsthammar is a professional model. She said she gave up a contract for movie appearances so she could be married. Hallsthammar, a native of Sweden, was the creator of the figures in the General Motors building at A Century of Progress exposition. His divorce from Mrs. Martha Hallsthammar was granted on the ground of desertion.

DIETITIAN FIGHTS BLAME IN DEATHS AT MANTENO QUIZ

Kitchen Kept Clean, She Tells Jurors.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Mrs. Lillian Williams, dietitian at Manteno State hospital, where nearly 10 per cent of the patients developed typhoid fever, yesterday defended the cleanliness of her kitchen. She was one of four witnesses before the special grand jury sitting at Kankakee which is investigating 53 typhoid deaths at the institution.

Paul Henrisey [top] and A. J. McNiel.

Other witnesses told of a petition for better food signed by 150 employés and addressed to Dr. Ralph T. Hinton, managing officer of the state hospital, who was suspended two weeks ago by Gov. Horner. It was understood no petition was filed on behalf of the 5,200 insane persons fed daily under Mrs. Williams' direction.

Defends Her Cook.

Mrs. Williams said her chief cook is a woman 80 years old who has been in the state's service for 50 years. She said the cook didn't have sufficient help or proper facilities, but she did keep the kitchen clean. If, as was told the jurors, a broom used on the floor was later used on kettles and cooking utensils, the fault was not hers, Mrs. Williams said. Some of the insane help in the kitchen, she explained, and the cook's alertness would have prevented one of them from using a broom on the utensils.

Outside the jury room Mrs. Williams said an effort was being made to shift blame to her kitchen for the typhoid epidemic, which, she said, was caused by pollution of drinking water supplied to patients and employés alike.

Testify About Deaths.

Other witnesses of the day were A. J. McNiel, health officer, police magistrate, and clerk of Manteno township, and Paul Henrisey, Manteno village clerk and registrar of deaths. They brought records showing that 49 persons died at the institution of typhoid fever during the epidemic, 2 of amebic dysentery, and 1 of bacillary dysentery. Typhoid deaths outside the institution brought the total to 53.

State's Attorney Samuel H. Shapiro of Kankakee county said the death records completed his evidence. Late in the day the six women and seventeen men comprising the grand jury announced they would meet again Monday and report to Circuit Judge Luther B. Bratton that evening.

ROSSI RIPS INTO HARRY BRIDGES OVER BIG STRIKE

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 17 [Special].—Mayor Angelo Rossi jumped into the San Francisco waterfront strike tieup today with a lashing attack upon Harry Bridges, west coast C. I. O. leader. This drew an immediate defense from officials of the union Bridges heads.

The mayor's attack was contained in a telegraphed plea to President Roosevelt. In it he charged that "the alien, Bridges, again has brought the port of San Francisco to the point of commercial strangulation and that San Francisco, with its merchants anxiously awaiting receipt of seaborne Christmas goods, is sick and tired of Bridges."

Longshoremen End Strike Without Boost in Wages

New York, Nov. 17 (AP).—Five thousand New York longshoremen who went on strike two weeks ago against coastwise steamship companies voted tonight to return to work without wage increases.

A. M. A. OUTLINES PLACE OF NATION IN MEDICAL CARE

8 Point Platform Stresses Local Control.

A comprehensive platform recommending the part which government should take in maintaining and improving the health of its citizens was adopted yesterday by trustees of the American Medical association. The platform, first in the association's history, warned that some measures often proposed for a national health program might be the first steps toward communism or a totalitarian state.

Dr. Nathan B. Van Etten.

The trustees expressed the hope that the platform might be of value to federal authorities in drafting health legislation. The Wagner federal health bill is now before a senate subcommittee.

Outlines Eight Planks.

The association's platform includes:

1. Establishment of an agency to coördinate and administer all medical and health functions of the federal government exclusive of the army and navy.

2. Allotment of such funds as congress may make available to any state in actual need.

3. Adoption of the principle that public health and medical service to the sick is primarily a local responsibility.

4. Development of a mechanism for expanding preventive medical services, with local determination of needs and control of administration.

5. Extension of medical care to the indigent, with local determination of needs and control of administration.

6. Utmost utilization of already established medical and hospital facilities in any extension of medical service to the people.

7. Continued development of the private practice of medicine subject to such changes as may be necessary to maintain the quality of such services and to increase their availability.

8. Expansion of public health and medical services consistent with the American system of democracy.

Announced to Convention.

Announcement of the platform was made by Dr. Nathan B. Van Etten of New York, president elect; Dr. Rock Sleyster, Wauwatosa, Wis., president, and Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical association, to 400 delegates to the annual convention of secretaries of state medical associations, meeting in A. M. A. headquarters.

Altho the platform must be submitted to the house of delegates for final approval, this is regarded as a formality. The 165 members of the house already have approved the principles which the platform embodies. The delegates are elected to represent each state medical group associated with the A. M. A.

Dr. Van Etten said that the association felt it was necessary that the association state its positive objectives in view of the probability of federal legislation.

See Peril in Compulsion.

In amplifying the individual planks of the new platform, the trustees asserted that the association had been advocating a single federal health agency since 1875, preferably with a secretary in the cabinet or a five or seven man commission at its head.

They asserted that compulsory insurance against sickness, which has been proposed as part of any national health program, was itself a step toward communism or totalitarianism, as was the sometimes advocated employment of all physicians by the state.

Altho the medical profession does not oppose congressional appropriation for medical purposes, said the trustees, there have been occasions when states sought aid without being in need, purely to take advantage of offers of federal funds.

The association urged that communities make every effort to meet public health needs from their own resources before applying to Washington. All funds should be locally administered to avoid inefficiency, the trustees explained.

SUIT AGAINST NLRB OVER ITS CHARGES OF STRIP TEASE IS HALTED

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 17 (AP).—Hearing of a libel suit based on National Labor Relations board charges that a Kentucky coal firm sponsored "strip tease" shows to divert miners from union meetings, was halted in United States Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals today after the court had termed the action in reality one against the United States government.

The board charged last year that the Clover Fork Coal company of Harlan county staged the shows after the United Mine Workers filed a complaint alleging unfair labor practices.

Presiding Judge C. C. Simons interrupted Cleon K. Calvert of counsel to observe:

"You are not suing individual members of the board. You are in effect suing the United States government. If judgment were given, from whom would you collect?"

PREDICT EARLY END OF CHRYSLER LABOR DISPUTE

Both Sides Hopeful of Settlement.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 17 (AP).—Settlement by possibly early next week of the Chrysler labor dispute keeping 100,000 workers idle was hinted in both corporation and C. I. O. quarters tonight, with a hopeful sign, too, from a federal mediator.

In guarded statements leaders of both sides, along with Conciliator James F. Dewey of the department of labor, indicated a belief that an end to the six-week-old quarrel might be reached within a few days.

Dewey, announcing negotiations would be resumed tomorrow morning, said he expected at that time to hear "proposals from each side on all matters necessary to end this difficulty." He said some tentative agreements had been reached today.

Some Serious Trading.

To a question whether Chrysler's own 58,000 workers could return to work by Monday, the corporation's vice president in charge of operations, Herman L. Weckler, replied: "Nothing is impossible."

To the same question, R. J. Thomas, president of the C. I. O.-United Automobile Workers, answered: "That's up to the corporation."

The conferees, Weckler said, have come down to "pretty serious trading," but he added that "every matter is contingent on something else and everything is tentative until the final decision is made."

Divided Into Two Groups.

Earlier today negotiators had been reported near a "showdown" in efforts at peace, and they had divided into two groups to facilitate discussions. Dewey met with three corporation and three union officials.

The other group, composed of lesser corporation officials and local union leaders, discussed seniority provisions with Arthur E. Raab, chairman of the state labor mediation board.

FILE WAGE LAW CHARGE AGAINST SEN. HARRY BYRD

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—The wage-hour administration said today that a charge of violating the wage-hour law had been filed against Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.].

Maj. Arthur Fletcher, chief of the enforcement section, said the complaint alleged that the senator had refused to comply with terms of the law in his apple packing and processing business near Winchester, Va. The complaint was filed by Thomas Reed, chairman of the "Committee on Fair Play for Workers" at Winchester.

At Winchester Byrd, who has been known as an opponent of New Deal policies, said that there was no foundation for the charges, which he said "obviously are inspired for political purposes." "So far as I am aware," he added, "the committee which filed the charge does not include a single employé of mine. The nonresident committee coöperating with the C. I. O. has deliberately and falsely misrepresented the facts as to my business, both as to the hours my employés work and the wages I pay.

"I pay wages higher than the average apple grower and farmer, and the hours I work my employés are no longer, but are generally shorter."

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike for another cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil and even second the arts of influence on the other."—From the Farewell Address.

DEMOCRACY ON OUR OWN FRONT.

Americans who are worrying about the future of democracy needn't cast their eyes overseas. They will find their destiny on the home front and not on the frontiers of France. If there is a long war in Europe and if the peoples of France and Great Britain win they may have an uphill job to get back the liberties they surrendered following the theory handed down to them that the way to fight a dictatorship is to adopt its methods. The prediction is that they probably will get them back, but that they may have a terrible time of it before they do.

It is frequently said, and it seems truthful, that no one can win a hard war. That is, the cost to the victor will be so great that no advantages will appear. An economic system may pull thru the strain of a war under rigid governmental controls which try to fix prices, regulate spending, determine hours, wages, and conditions of work, and dictate what shall be produced and consumed. The measures taken to prevent collapse mean servitude. An exhausted country, even if not defeated, has the necessity of continuing the controls when it is facing the ruin of its ecenomic system and the impoverishment of its people under debt, taxes, and inflation. The excuse of the dictator always is the chaos which he says would prevail without him.

We know that the recuperative powers of a productive people are often amazing, but there is also plenty of illustration of what happens to a country when its people despair of being able to meet their responsibilities or sustain themselves. Germany staggered thru this valley of despair before it fell into the arms of Hitler. Dictatorships are not easily overthrown when people have lost confidence in their ability to take care of themselves.

Here on democracy's American home front none of the problems which were so important to the American people in August of this year have changed their character because of European events since then. They have only become less distinct. They do not receive now the full attention which they had earlier in the year, and yet time is bringing to an issue the decisions which must be made, beginning very shortly, when the political processes of the United States take their scheduled course thru the preliminaries to conventions, into the conventions, and into the campaign which will prepare the voters to determine their own future.

Mr. Roosevelt has been making much of the war in Europe, of its uncertainties, and of the relation of the United States to this. He has tried to impress persons who will listen to him with the importance of adjourning politics and dismissing partisanship, and a number of foolish or misguided persons agree with him. There is nothing going on in Europe which, viewed from an American viewpoint, excuses any such adjournment. The chief concern of the United States at the present moment and for the next year is, and will be, the conduct of its own government and the direction of its political action.

We have a debt which without any war additions still causes concern not only because of what it amounts to now but because of the plans of the administration to increase it. We have a collectivist movement which still seeks to substitute the state for private enterprise and which still undertakes to impair profits and earning power. The planned society is still with us and if it calls attention to Europe that is only as a distraction to take the public mind off the most important public questions, which are internal. The problem of American democracy does not arise abroad. There is more danger to the republic in a first third term than in a second world war.

HOW ABOUT SOME ACTION?

Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland seeks to excuse his business partnership with the slain racketeer, O'Hare, by the plea that he thought O'Hare a respectable citizen because he didn't drink, smoke, or swear. Judge Holland should form a partnership with Adolf Hitler. In addition to possessing the O'Hare virtues Adolf is a vegetarian.

Taken at its face value, the judge's explanation would justify his removal from the Municipal court, on the ground that it is inadvisable to intrust the administration of justice to the simple minded. The judge is safe on that count, however, if not on others. No one believes him quite that simple minded.

O'Hare was well known for what he was. He came to Chicago to run a Capone dog track. His name was constantly coupled in the newspapers with Capone gang enterprises and Judge Holland is not one of the Municipal judges whose ability to read and write has been questioned. He knew into whose bed he was climbing. He has yet to offer a credible explanation of why he was there when the covers were thrown back.

Chief Justice Sonsteby, who failed to take any action in the McGarry case until the grand jury built a fire under him, is exhibiting a similarly blunted conscience in the Holland scandal. He refers to his colleague's liaison with the underworld as a legitimate business transaction. The public does not regard any connection of a Municipal judge with a gang fixer and a bookmaker as legitimate. Perhaps Judge Sonsteby chose the wrong adjective. Did he mean to say that Judge Holland's business connection was a normal one for the present personnel of the Municipal bench?

A NEW SUPREME COURT.

The death of Justice Pierce Butler will enable Mr. Roosevelt to make another appointment to the Supreme court. His appointees will then be five in number and will thus constitute the majority. Congress denied the President the right to pack the court, but as a consequence of resignations and deaths his object, so far as the temporary balance is concerned, has been attained.

It would be idle to pretend that the court, as it will shortly be composed, affords any such protection to the free institutions of this country as it formerly did. If Mr. Roosevelt can get his legislation thru congress, the Supreme bench will not be likely for the present at least to find that much of it contravenes the constitution. If the trend toward centralization of power in Washington, the trend toward dictatorship, is to be halted, congress must do it. The court can no longer be regarded as the people's strongest defense against government officials lusting for power to coerce and regulate conduct. Congress is now the chief and perhaps the only reliance.

Unless our liberties are to be lost, the changed nature of the court must be recognized and acted upon. Candidates for the house and the senate must be scrutinized with far more attention than formerly. As long as the Supreme court could be relied upon to check the excesses of executive ambition the damage that could be done by weaklings, wreckers, and blatherskites in congress was limited. Now it is almost unlimited. To avert the dangers, which were so clearly demonstrated at the time of the fight over the packing of the court, the people must now look to congress.

OBERLIN COMES TO TOWN.

The department of press relations of the University of Chicago, in an informative announcement that a game of football is to be played at Stagg field today, hopefully anticipates that by the coming of dusk the season of '39 will be measurably improved over that of '38, which was one game won, one tied, and six lost. A win this afternoon would give, as the department of press relations puts it, "a net gain of one-half a victory over last year's record."

Nothing in the great past of University of Chicago football has touched and nothing in the future will touch the scoring-by-opponents' record of the '39 team. Chicago has run up 262 points to 12 against itself and good naturedly takes some pride in the accomplishment. The team is game, the band is game, and the department of press relations is game. That proves that we're dealing with an institution of higher learning. The sports department is cool to this record, but then what does the sports department know about higher education?

Chicago's opponent this afternoon is Oberlin college of Ohio. Altho Oberlin is now a good small college team, its football, like Chicago's, has seen grander days. Ohio State university, present leader in the Big Ten conference, can remember the years when Oberlin used it for a breather in a hard schedule with little Ohio college teams. One of those little teams pushed Ohio State over twice in one season, which is a record that hasn't been equaled since. It is true that the undergraduates of this little school wondered when all the strangers who appeared on the team came to town. By midseason the boys would know most of the names if not the origins of their champions, who were seen only on the practice field and never in the classroom.

In those days a small college didn't try to mix higher education and football. The football players took a course in piano moving. Needless to say, this was back in the '90s and nothing in that glorious past is to be taken as applying to the present day small college teams. Needless to say, because they are not pushing their big brothers around now as they did then, although they play good football. It may also be remarked that at the University of Chicago there is an alumni movement on foot to establish a department of piano moving which will foster higher education on Saturday afternoons in October and November.

We can and do recommend today's game to sportsmen who like tradition in their sports. Two great football schools are meeting each other and our forecast for the game is Chicago 17 9-10, Oberlin 16 3-4. Don't ask how these scores can be made. Remember this game is at Stagg field.

Editorial of the Day

THUMB SUCKERS.

[Providence (R. I.) Bulletin.]

Here's iconoclasm for you! Mrs. Lois Murphy of Sarah Lawrence college says that thumb sucking is a sure sign of unnappiness. You can separate the contented youngster, says she, from the discontented by observing this habit.

We don't believe it. We've known a lot of thumb suckers first and last and they have all been models of contentment. Why, our Uncle Horace was the most contented baby for miles around and he sucked his thumb until it grew flat as a shovel, and his front teeth stuck out. Horse Teeth Horace, they called him. Sucked one thumb and hung onto his ear with the other.

There were those who said that Uncle Horace was so contented that he wasn't quite bright. But that's always the way. People who go about with long dismal faces, always looking on the gloomy side and not sucking their thumbs are supposed to be the deep ones. The happy ones are supposed to be shallow.

We never could see the sense in this, seeing how the one thing in life which both thumb suckers and non-thumb suckers seek is happiness and contentment. There is, to be sure, a race of melancholy Jacqueses who suck melancholy from a song [or from life itself] as a weasel sucks eggs. And they are, we suppose, contented in a sour, inverted sort of way.

But they're not to be envied. We never caught one of them sucking his thumb; and we've got to have a lot more data before we take Mrs. Murphy's word on this gravely important index to one of the deepest instincts in human nature.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By F. P. A.

OFF FOR A QUIET WEEK-END.

The last leaf in our season book of tickets to Stagg field will fall this afternoon, and if the cameras again show a cyclopean grandstand with only one man sitting in it, that will be us. . . . But maybe Prexy Hutchins will be there, too, suffering twice as dreadfully as ourself, because Oberlin is one of his alma mammies.

* * *

It's a safe bet that the sports department doesn't know whence came the name of Oberlin, and doesn't care, although you can win prizes on the "Information, Please" radio programs by asking such questions. It's in honor of Jean Frédéric Oberlin, a Lutheran clergyman of Alsace [1740-1826], who gained fame by social and educational reforms in his district. Among other things, he started infant education. Four towns in the United States are named after him.

* * *

Oberlin, O., was an important station on the "underground railroad" of the abolitionist period. It was also the fons et origo of the Anti-Saloon league. Oberlin college contributed co-eds to the brighter and bolder things of life. . . . Therefore we will call Chicago vs. Oberlin, an obscure football game that few will attend, the Battle of the Reformers.

* * *

The U. of C. games have been dropped from Big Ten bulletin boards this season. For reprisal we suggest that the board at Stagg field this afternoon shall give quarter by quarter scores for these games of today: Millikin vs. Illinois Wesleyan; Northeastern vs. Upsala; Marietta vs. Wittenberg; Slippery Rock Teachers vs. Edinboro Teachers. A photograph of it would make the big time pictorial weeklies.

EVENING IN NOVEMBER.

The autumn sun descends beyond the trees;
A brilliant crescent moon appears on high.
From out the south there wafts a gentle breeze;
A few soft fleecy clouds adorn the sky.
In tints of palest gold and pearly rose
The western firmament is seen to gleam;
And here and there a little leaf fire glows
Whose haze turns all the scene into a dream.
Homecoming workers swiftly stride along;
The children run to kiss their father dear,
While mother sets the table with a song;
And all is peace and quiet far and near.
The magic gloaming makes the old home street
Become a path where men and spirits meet.

Gaycelle.

The French Are a Logical People.

Charles S. Dewey told this to the Associated Traffic Clubs of America:

A Normandy village was required to provide 125 beds for evacués from Paris. Mrs. Dewey, on an inspection tour, found that a number of the beds were dirty, and spoke her mind on the subject to a French neighbor.

"That is all right," said the Frenchwoman. "Does it not stand to reason that a number of the evacués will be dirty? We will put the dirty evacués in the dirty beds and the clean evacués in the clean beds."

Antidote to Air Mindedness.

The most concise and lucid explanation I ever heard for being unair-conscious, or air-unconscious, was the remark of a man who was invited to fly over their farm by flying enthusiast relatives. The nonflyer looked up, squinted, looked down and remarked:

"I never lost anything up there."

ANOTHER GOOD MAN GOES EAST.

(Lines to the tune of a familiar song, in contemplation of removal to New York and residence not far from Riker's Island, a Manhattan dumping ground.)

Riker's Island, here I come!
Pick me out a cozy slum—
Each hour a sour
Smell takes the air.
Each morning at dawning
Garbage wagons from the Fair
Will park beside my new estate,
Just outside my garden gate.
Whalen sees they're never late—
Riker's Island, here I come!

Saturday's Mental Cases.

Football fans are always howling for touchdowns, but they stay away from the place where they can see them in abundance, which is Stagg field.

Football fans want to see titanic contests between mighty champions, but when these giants are so evenly matched that the score is 0 to 0, they complain about the dullness of the game.

Football fans believe everything they read about "All-American" players, although it is impossible for any "expert" to see more than 16 out of the 1,000 or more college teams in the country.

BROOKFIELD BALLAD—XX.

Among the creatures large and small
I like the beaver best of all.
He toils with tail and teeth and toes
And has no time for morbid woes.
Altho he's brother to the rat
We love him none the less for that
Because he never tries to shirk
But uncomplaining does his work.

A Toast to November.

I give you a jewel: Topaz in the early dawns, topaz in the twinkling poplar leaves, in the lichen on old logs and in the fallen brakes; topaz in the ground cherry and in corn husks blown about fields; topaz in the cider, in embers of the last bonfire, and in the sunset light reflected from the windows of the little church. I give you November.

S'Amuser.

We never dreamed that November would be a month to inspire poets, but it has turned the trick. Let us prepare to tell our grandchildren "1939 was the year of the golden November."

THE CROUPY TOT.

CROUP, particularly in young children, is alarming, always. Nevertheless, if one will refuse to become panic stricken and will proceed with remedial measures promptly, all will be well. As a rule the symptom will come on after the youngster has been tucked into bed for the night. Ordinarily the child will waken struggling and terrified, gasping for breath. Later the face may become deeply congested and the appearance may be that of one who is desperately ill.

Sometimes minor evidences of a cold will precede an attack and many authorities believe that an infection lies at the basis of each of these episodes. A running nose or some harshness of the voice may be recalled, altho it may have been so slight that little attention was paid to it. The first warning usually is the hollow, brassy cough that betokens trouble.

Older boys and girls are far more likely to present signs of irritation of the larynx with considerable hacking. This state of affairs may be observed for a day or two when there comes a marked increase in the huskiness, the child complaining of "tightness" in the throat and the upper portion of the chest. Many of these sufferers will be found sitting up in bed exhibiting a sharp, whistling inspiration that can be heard for quite some distance. In very severe cases suffocation seems imminent.

But recovery may be quite rapid, especially if the little one is plunged into a hot mustard bath or hot packs are applied to the region of the neck and upper chest. As the skin becomes red—fills with blood—the spasm releases and normal breathing is resumed. Generally there will be no further disturbance for the balance of the night, especially if a mild sedative, such as potassium bromide, is administered.

Strangely enough, during the daytime, while there may be some coughing, all distress vanishes, including hoarseness. With those who are prone to this disorder, special consideration should be given to the condition of the nose, throat, and larynx. Obvious indications of infection should be treated and mild gargles are of value if the tot is old enough to "perform."

Great care must be taken to rule out diphtheria, as the symptoms that have been enumerated many simulate accurately those cause by the "choker." The abruptness of the onset in croup, however, can scarcely be mistaken.

Some victims respond quickly to inhalations of steam and a croup kettle is a serviceable bit of household equipment. An ordinary tea kettle will do about as well altho it is less convenient. A paper megaphone or cone can be devised thru which the vapor is conveyed to the nose and mouth of the little patient. Many find tincture of benzoin compound helpful [a teaspoonful to a pint of boiling water] as this drug has a marked soothing effect.

Only occasionally will an emetic be needed and vomiting can be induced with syrup of ipecac, if necessary. No one has explained why this procedure serves so successfully, but subsequent to the emptying of the stomach the patient will usually drop off to sleep and pass the balance of the night in comfort. After the medicine has been given, a glass of water will render the operation more comfortable.

The child who is prone to develop these paroxysms should be the subject of far more solicitude than is required routinely. Every effort should be made to build resistance and not infrequently high vitamin feeding with minute quantities of iodine will be beneficial. If possible, the youngster should become accustomed to cold as it is thought that the cooler atmosphere of sleeping quarters may have something to do with the onset of the disorder. Make certain, however, that there are no direct drafts in the bedroom. Saturating the air with moisture may be included among our useful precautions.

WHEN TO ELEVATE.

R. M. writes: 1. In what specific ailments does the elevation of the feet and legs prove beneficial? 2. Would this posture help in diabetes or varicose veins?

REPLY.

1. In any condition where there is a disturbance in circulation, elevation of the feet helps the return flow of blood. Such conditions may be swelling from heart disease, injury, varicose veins, phlebitis, etc.

2. If the capillaries have become blocked or destroyed—as in severe and uncontroled diabetes—elevation of the feet—while helpful—may not be sufficient to restore circulation. Other methods may be required.

LIKE FATHER, ETC.

E. S. writes: Why are some babies well behaved from birth while others are always cross and fretful?

REPLY.

As a rule, a well baby is a good baby. Infants also react to noisy surroundings, irregular feeding habits, poor hygiene [wet diapers], hunger, etc. Remember the adage, "Like father, like son."

THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO

[From Tribune Files.]

Nov. 18, 1914.

[113th day of world war; 79th of present war.]

LONDON.—A launch from the United States cruiser Tennessee was fired upon by Turkish forts when it attempted to land at Vula, at the head of the Gulf of Smyrna. The Tennessee had been dispatched there to stop Turkish mistreatment of British, French, and Russian nationals. Commander Benton C. Decker informed the navy department at Washington that he intended to enter the gulf, despite opposition.

LONDON.—David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, informed the government that the first year of the war would cost $2,250,000,000, the most the empire ever had spent for a war. An emergency loan of $1,750,000,000 was launched, the income tax was doubled, and Britons were required to pay an additional cent a pint tax on beer.

NORTHERN FRANCE.—The allies gained slightly all along the western front, from Flanders southward to Verdun. The most marked successes were in the Argonne and on the heights of the river Meuse.

THINKS WE'RE ANTI-BRITISH.

Menomonie, Wis., Nov. 15.—Your editorial on the participation of American troops in France is most unfair. I cannot feel it is based on factual knowledge.

We can concede as correct your statement on the difficulties encountered by our military leaders in getting proper recognition for our troops upon arrival in France, and the ultimate victory won by Gen. Pershing on his insistence that our army remain an American army. But our troops did not win the war alone, as we so often hear. Had the allies not held for three years and weakened the enemy, our men could not have made the spectacular victories justly credited to them.

We, who were in France in 1927 when the American Legion held its 10th anniversary, know of the great admiration accorded the American soldier for his part in the war. We heard M. Poincaire, President Doumergue, Marshal Foch, and many other leaders acclaim our men. We heard the cheers of the hundreds of thousands of French people on the day of the big parade, as they shouted "Vive les Americaines."

In Great Britain the prince of Wales, the prime minister, Stanley Baldwin, Earl Haig, Earl Beatty, and many others acclaimed the valor of the American troops and their great contribution to the victory of the allied cause.

The anti-British coloring of The Tribune editorials has been the cause of much comment among people who have been Tribune readers for years.

CIVIL SERVICE NO HELP.

Pontiac, Ill., Nov. 15.—We read much about the collection of a Democratic slush fund even from those under civil service.

I was under civil service in 1934, working at the Pontiac reformatory, and was asked in no uncertain terms by F. Lynden Smith's henchman, Thomas B. Reed, to donate 5 per cent of my year's salary to the Illinois Iroquois club, then used by and for Gov. Horner and F. Lynden Smith to build up a war chest.

I quit working because I would not kick in to the fund. Being under civil service did not help me any.

MAKING NAVY DAY A SUCCESS.

Great Lakes, Ill., Nov. 13.—The observance of Navy day in Chicago and vicinity this year was the most successful ever held, and that success was due in no small part to the cooperation given to the navy council of Illinois by THE TRIBUNE. The Navy day publicity committee reported that Guy Murchie Jr. and John T. McCutcheon gave most valuable assistance, and Carey Orr's drawing on Navy day was appropriate to the occasion.

As commandant of the 9th Naval district I wish to add my sincere thanks for the assistance so ably rendered by the Tribune staff.

NOW IT'S BUTTERNUTS.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Maybe some of the people who have come to the rescue of J. T. M. in his search for apples can tell me where I can find butternuts, such as grandma used to have on the farm in Michigan. I notice Alexander Woollcott has them in his coffee cakes, but that is as near as I have got to them.

THOUGHTS ON THANKSGIVING.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—In a few days every American housewife will be busy planning her Thanksgiving dinner. The majority will have roast turkey; some will prefer goose, duck, or chicken, and still others, less fortunate, will be glad to have pot roast. But whatever it is, you can bet there will be plenty to eat in most every home.

But you'd never think it, to see so many long faces as so many people crabbing just because F. D. R. changed the date for Thanksgiving. What's wrong with that? This is still a free country and there's no law compelling any one to celebrate on the 23d.

If you don't like it, wait one more week—just seven days. Then go out and get the best turkey money can buy; prepare it with all the trimmings, finish with great slabs of golden pumpkin pie topped with luscious whipped cream—and don't forget to make plenty of coffee.

Eat until you are ready to burst, but for God's sake, be thankful. Be thankful you are living in a land of plenty instead of some war torn country where people hardly get enough to keep them alive. What if you were limited to lard sandwiches? What if you had to drink coffee made of roasted corn?

Every day is Thanksgiving day for me. Let it be one for you, too.

MRS. GEORGE LUERSSEN.

BUCKWHEAT CAKES.

Clinton, Ill., Nov. 15.—Along with all the wrangling about Bellflower and Rambo apples, I noticed E. B. O. mentions the old fashioned buckwheat cakes Ma used to "set" the night before. If E. B. O. is really interested and wants a recipe he can drop me a line. Will be glad to help him get started. It's not at all difficult and they really hit the spot on a cold morning.

R. N. TAYLOR.

EARLY RETIREMENT.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—Many men and women of 50 to 60 are able to retire but they plan to work until they are 65. They hope to do all their living after that. Too bad for them, as a great majority will not be alive at 70. Statistics prove this.

Then how foolish to work for 65 years anticipating five years of pleasure. No, better get a little something out of life each day, not by self-indulgence and purposeless living, but by having the feeling of contributing something to your fellow man and to your community.

If you live for yourself alone your life is wasted, selfish, boresome, useless. You will get out of it only in proportion to what you contribute. This is true at any age.

So think it over, middle aged folks. If you can retire at 50 or 55 better do it. You will then have 10, 15, or 20 years in which to be useful and happy. The world will benefit and your successor will benefit. You will be giving some one else a chance. Remember, "you can't take it with you."

POST-MERIDIAN.

IS IT PROPAGANDA?

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Why is it that we can't go to a movie any more without having war propaganda hurled at us from the stage and screen?

What gets me is that the majority of the audience seems to approve of it. At the State-Lake theater this week, after a selection by the orchestra, they suddenly broke into a military march and the screen was lowered. They showed pictures of marching troops and waving flags while the audience cheered lustily.

They never had such interludes before the war started, so who is sponsoring such stuff now? I am in favor of true and rotten tomatoes for the propaganda artists.

DIVISION OF ESTATE.

Chicago, Nov. 9 [Legal Friend of the People].—My father passed away two years ago and his entire estate went to my stepmother, who passed away one year ago, leaving an estate of $4,000 in stocks. She was married to my father 35 years, but had no children. My father had four children from his first marriage. Two of them are dead, one 20 years and the other 5 years, so there is only myself and my sister. I had both father and mother with me seven years. They paid a very small board as they had lost most of their money in the stock market.

1. My mother also left a will which read as follows: "I request that any money or holdings, such as stocks, bonds, or shares which remain after my demise, shall be equally divided between the children of [2] J. H. and of K. H. N., and M. H. H. and E. H. K.

2. Does this mean the estate will be divided under the four children and the share which should go to Joseph and Katherine be divided under their children? Or should it be divided under the 11 grandchildren? My sister Elizabeth has three children. I have one boy.

If it is divided under the grandchildren [4] what could I do, as I assisted my mother and father financially seven years, as my stepmother has a first cousin who is still living?

3. Can he do anything against the will? Stocks have been drawing dividends the last year.

4. Has the lawyer a right to hold the cash of these checks in his name, as I am the executrix of the will? Checks were made out in my [?] mother's name. Lawyer told me to indorse same, and he would take me in the bank to be identified as executrix, but as it was so late he told me to come two weeks later as we had other business to attend to. When I came back two weeks later he had cashed the checks and put it in an account in his name. He told the bank people and bank he was representing us. Can he do this? If not, what can I do?

5. Will I get any fee for my time and money I spent in the last year handling matters on the estate? MRS. F. H. H.

1. We do not clearly understand whether you mean your mother or your stepmother.

2. The relationship of these parties to your mother is not clear.

3. We suggest that you submit the entire wording to an attorney in a personal interview.

4. Your right to compensation depends on the understanding which your services were rendered.

5. If your father left everything to your stepmother, then your stepmother was in a position to leave you out, except as you may be able to claim as a creditor.

6. In general, no.

7. See 1.

8. The Illinois statute fixes the executor's fee at not more than 6% of the personal property.

TVA DAMS' POWER SHORTAGE DUE TO DROUTH IS DENIED

Tribune Stories Disputed by Chief Engineer.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 17 [Special].—J. A. Krug, chief power engineer of the Tennessee Valley authority, today termed "absolutely unfounded" recent stories and an editorial in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE saying TVA is faced with a shortage of hydro-electric power because of the drouth.

The stories and the editorial said lack of rain has lowered water levels to the point where power houses at the dams are not supplying market demands and TVA is generating power in steam plants acquired this year to produce part of its current.

Due to a low river, the stories said, between 25 and 30 per cent of the electric power produced at the present time is being derived from steam generating plants bought or rented from private interests. These figures were largely supplied to the Tribune reporter by TVA and other experts. The reporter visited the TVA project and made a personal investigation before writing his stories.

Cites Power Sales.

"When the authority purchased the steam plants," said Mr. Krug, "it intended to use them, of course. Much of the steam power generated by TVA is being sold at special power rates to neighboring private power systems to help them maintain their power supplies.

"Commonwealth and Southern subsidiaries are taking over 50,000 kilowatts of steam generated power from TVA. The Aluminum company is buying steam power from the authority rather than curtail its manufacturing because of shortage on its own hydro system. This power is being sold to the advantage of the authority at rates above its regular wholesale rates."

The sale of steam generated power by TVA was the subject of an editorial in THE TRIBUNE entitled "Another Yardstick Bites the Dust," which Mr. Krug criticizes. This editorial said the dry spell and the necessity of using coal and steam reveals the TVA as a project to put the government in the power business, instead of being merely a hydro-electric development with navigation and flood control on the side.

Replies to Editorial.

"A short time ago THE TRIBUNE had TVA 'biting the dust' because it had a tremendous amount of power and no market for it. Now it is biting the dust, says THE TRIBUNE, for precisely the opposite reason," Engineer Krug declared in replying to the editorial.

Mr. Krug said Norris reservoir level, which on Nov. 8 was 45 feet below the spillway level, is exactly on the rule curve which controls operation of the Norris project. This corroborates what one Tribune story said, as follows: "The present reservoir level is at almost the exact spot called for on the TVA engineers' curves for the level at this period." The story said the present dry spell is not unusual, according to engineers' figures.

"The present season is dry," said Mr. Krug, "but not the driest we have had. We expected dry years and planned accordingly."

12 GIRLS FORM SCOUT TROOP IN A HOSPITAL

For a month 12 bedridden girls, patients in the Home for Destitute Crippled Children, 970 East 59th street, have worked to qualify for membership in the Girl Scouts. Yesterday they repeated Scout oaths, pinned to their gowns the coveted trefoil pin, badge of the tenderfoot, and became the first official troop ever to organize in a Chicago hospital.

The children are receiving treatment for infantile paralysis, curvature of the spine, tuberculous bones, and congenital afflictions. "Scouting means more to them than to most girls," said Miss Margaret E. Horn, head of the home's nursing division, "because they are often lonely. Now, when they leave the hospital, their membership will be transferred to a troop in their neighborhood so they may continue to have the companionship of other children."

Both the scouting program and the medical treatment is partly financed by the Community Fund, which is will into its 1939 campaign to raise $1,611,000 for 178 health and welfare agencies.

FLOWER SCHOOL HOME MAKING SUITES SHOWN

Students of the Lucy Flower Technical High school at 3545 Fulton boulevard, their principal, Dr. Sophie A. Theilgaard, and teachers held a housewarming yesterday to show off three new housekeeping suites. Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, and Miss Frances L. Swain, director of household arts for the board of education, attended. Among other guests were George F. Cassell, assistant superintendent of high schools, and Arthur Sullivan, director of vocational education.

Each of the new suites at the Flower school is a full sized apartment. Two, a modern and an early American suite, are completed and equipped with home making devices. The third will be known as the traditional suite. "They are to be laboratories of modern housekeeping for the home arts students.

WOMAN DEMANDS HER OWN FROM BROKER'S ESTATE

Friend for 51 Years Wins Court Order.

Judge John F. O'Connell in Probate court yesterday authorized Attorney David J. A. Hayes to make a demand on the estate of John D. McDougall for any property that may belong to Miss Josephine Dalton, 73 years old, 1482 Summerdale avenue.

McDougall, a member of the Chicago Board of Trade died Aug. 13 at the age of 87. He was the son of Alexander McDougall, another Board of Trade member, who died in 1913. The younger McDougall, for sentimental reasons, held his father's membership, as late as 1934.

Widow Named in Order.

The order yesterday names McDougall's widow, Mrs. Elsie McDougall of Highland Park, as executor of the estate, and Attorney Ernest S. Hodges, Thomas L. Milne, and Theodore Kachiroubus. Attorney Hayes obtained the order in behalf of Miss Dalton, who was adjudged incompetent on Nov. 8.

In asking for the court order Attorney Hayes told of a friendship between Miss Dalton and McDougall that dated back 51 years, prior to McDougall's marriage. He said McDougall acted as confidential adviser to Miss Dalton and that the two visited almost daily during their friendship.

Two Bank Books Found.

Hayes said two bank books belonging to Miss Dalton were found among McDougall's effects. One of them showed a deposit of $13,008.83 in the Continental Illinois National bank and the other showed a deposit of $1,926.91 with the Emigrant Industrial bank of New York.

These books have been turned over to Miss Dalton, Hayes said. He declared it may be possible that further assets belonging to Miss Dalton may be found in McDougall's estate. Judge O'Connell ruled that if no assets are turned over to Miss Dalton, a cititation to discover any possible assets belonging to her will be issued.

JUSTICE BUTLER FUNERAL RITES HELD IN CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—The Supreme court and administrative officials paid final tribute today to Pierce Butler before the body of the 73 year old associate justice was started toward St. Paul, Minn., for burial. Justice Butler died early yesterday morning after a long illness.

Two retired justices, Willis Van Devanter and George Sutherland, also attended the solemn high requiem mass at St. Matthew's cathedral, where the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward L. Buckey officiated. Others at the mass were Attorney General Frank Murphy and Postmaster General James A. Farley.

Monday morning another mass will be sung at St. Luke's church in St. Paul. Justices McReynolds, Stone, and Roberts will accompany the body to Minnesota.

President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N. Y., today said he would not appoint a successor to Justice Butler until congress meets in January unless an emergency makes earlier action imperative.

BABSON BLAMES JOBLESS ARMY ON U. S. SCHOOLS

Boston, Mass., Nov. 17 (AP).—Roger W. Babson, investment specialist, threatened today to halt his speech before the closing session of the New England Association of School Superintendents' convention when he became annoyed by audible protests over some of his statements.

"Any time you want me to quit, I'll quit," he said. "My car is right at the curb outside this hotel now."

Babson charged school systems in the United States were "primarily responsible for at least 7,000,000 of the 10,000,000 unemployed" because the "young people are being graduated from our schools today as goods are being sold by department stores."

"Politically minded school committees are giving these children—not what untrained children need—but what misled parents think they want them to have," he said.

LIQUOR STORES NEED LICENSES TO OPEN TODAY

Taverns or retail liquor stores without licenses for the current period, which started Nov. 1, will not be allowed to open today, Police Commissioner Allman said yesterday. City Collector Louis Rixmann announced last night that 975 retail liquor licenses were issued yesterday, bringing the total for the current license period to 7,814. In the preceding period, which ended Oct. 31, there were 9,091 licenses issued. In accordance with a city council order, board of health inspectors started investigating retail liquor package stores yesterday to enforce the regulation that any selling liquor for consumption on the premises must have toilet and washing facilities.

Maj. T. M. Ring of Michigan Reported Drowned in West

Las Vegas, N. M., Nov. 17 (AP).—Maj. Thomas Merrill Ring, 55 years old, member of a prominent Saginaw, Mich., lumber family, was reported to have drowned in Cueva lake, 30 miles northeast of here, today. A sheep herder told officers he saw Ring, hunting alone, topple from a canvas boat after shooting at a duck. Darkness halted an unsuccessful search for the body. Ring, world war aviator, retired about seven years ago and came to Santa Fe for his health.

ROLOSON ESTATE PUT AT $5,673,926 IN COURT REPORT

Federal and State Tax Over a Million.

Robert Marshall Roloson, investment banker, who died in 1935, left an estate of $5,673,926, it was disclosed yesterday in a final accounting to Joseph F. Geary, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell. The estate has paid a federal estate tax totaling $755,094 and a state inheritance tax of $273,749—more than $1,000,000.

Geary approved a statement of the disbursement of $42,345 which had been withheld for the payment of taxes. This action is the final step in the probation of the estate. First estimates of the estate in 1935 placed the total at $1,500,000.

Starts as Bank Messenger.

Mr. Roloson began his business career as a messenger for the Continental National bank in 1901. At the time of his death he was president of Lane, Roloson & Co., investment bankers. His home was at 1114 Lake Shore boulevard, Evanston.

Mr. Roloson's will provided for a trust of $500,000 for his widow, Adele, and an additional award of $75,000. A son, Robert M. Roloson Jr., received $500,000. Robert M. Roloson III., a grandson, was left $100,000, and Cary Bell Roloson, a granddaughter, $100,000.

Bequests to Charity.

Numerous bequests were made to other relatives and institutions, including $25,000 to the endowment fund of the president and fellows of Harvard university, and $25,000 to St. Luke's hospital. Any remaining amount was to go to the widow and son.

The accounting was filed by the law firm of Cameron and Heath, representing the Northern Trust company, and Robert Roloson Jr., co-executors.

CHARGE LETTER PROVES POLITICS LURKS IN WPA

The Better Government association yesterday made public photostatic copies of a letter they said proved their charges that the Chicago Democratic organization uses WPA jobs for political purposes.

The letter, said to have been addressed to an applicant for help, bore the signature of Congressman Arthur W. Mitchell of the 1st district. A part of it read as follows:

"It is an unbroken rule of the Democratic organization in Chicago that each person seeking help from his congressman must first get a letter from his ward committeeman requesting the congressman to take care of the matter.

"I must, therefore, insist that you get a letter from your committeeman first and then I shall be very glad to do everything in my power to help you."

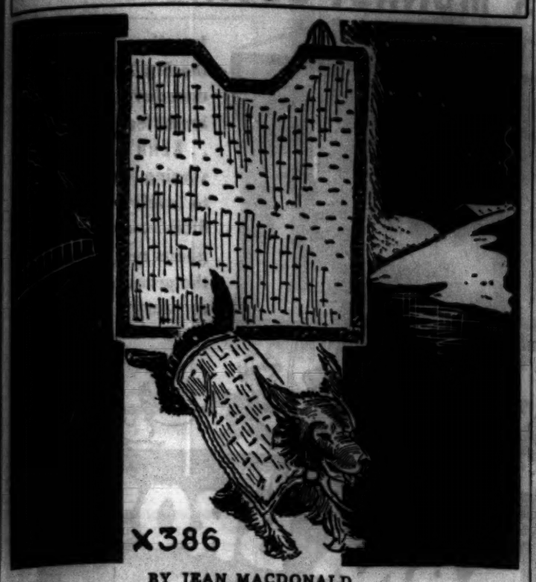
Blanket to Keep Fido Warm



BY JEAN MACDONALD.

If a turtle neck sweater is unbecoming to your dog, perhaps this knitted blanket is more his type. It is a simple knitting trick, using two shades of green, and combines the seed and stockinette stitches in a new and unusual manner. This blanket is suitable for terriers, cocker spaniels, bull dogs, and poodles.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Objection Overruled

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 17. — The greatest theater in the world, from the standpoint of stark drama, is a courtroom, and you can excuse the playwrights for employing it so often as a tried and true device. . . . In history and in civil life, court trials have produced some of the most gripping moments of the world. . . . The trial of Joan of Arc was one case in point.

More recently, we have had the Bruno Hauptmann trial, the Sacco-Vanetti trial, the Hall-Mills trial in each of which human lives were at stake and in which every element of drama was at play.

Anger, humor, pity, suspense, treachery, sex, loyalty, and its running mate, disloyalty, appeal to passion and prejudice—all of them are in attendance in a courtroom and no matter how poor a script, the fact that a life is at stake makes for a terrific curtain.

The dramatists, understanding this, and yet being compelled to attack the theme from varied angles, have give to every treatment. . . . In "Madame X" first played by Ruth Chatterton, and later by Gladys George, we had a son unwittingly defending his mother to sharpen the dramatic values. . . . In "Les Miserables" it was Frederic March brought face to face with a buried past.

"Mutiny on the Bounty" gave us an English court listening coldly to the plea of Franchot Tone.

"Maid of Salem" was still another version of trial by jury, Claudette Colbert arraigned before a witchcraft jury. . . . In "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," the highlight was the trial of Gary Cooper, in which he proved that if he were pixillated, as the old maids insisted, then every one in the courtroom must be indicted too, because each one of his accusers was a "doodler."

Frank Capra who directed "Deeds," found the device so excellent that in "Mr. Smith goes to Washington," he made continuous use of it, because Jimmy Stewart, in the biggest scene of the flicker, actually is on trial before the U. S. senate. . . . In "The Awful Truth," the divorce trial of Irene Dunne and Cary Grant was given comedy overtones by the employment of a dog.

These courtroom scenes, because of the sharp dramatic impacts that are often obtained, sometimes permit a player to become a star overnight.

Henry Fonda and the late Alice Brady injected tremendous dramatic drive and fire into "Young Mr. Lincoln" in the courtroom scene which dominated the flicker. . . . Lionel Barrymore won the Academy award in the courtroom passage of "A Free Soul."

William Powell in "The Great Mouthpiece" won a huge laugh in the courtroom, as you may recall. . . . Powell, defending a client charged with poisoning another man, swallowed a mouthful of the vial of poison and then said melodramatically: "Gentlemen of the jury, if this is the poison that allegedly killed the victim, then I should die before your eyes." . . . The jury acquitted the defendant.

The audience mirth stemmed from the scene immediately following, showing Powell rushing thru the streets in search of a doctor and a stomach pump.

In all fairness to prosecutors and attorneys for the defense I've defense I've known and met in real life, none of the movie stars are half the exhibitionists that the real article are. . . . Go to any big trial and you'll find more "ham" than you'll find in any movie studio, because lawyers in real life turn in more Academy award performances than Hollywood, altho they're only playing to newsreel and "still" cameras.

Good Morning!

Every so often a fascinating picture filmed in the Alps makes its appearance. "The Challenge" is such a one.

It is an engrossing out of door action melodrama based on historical fact and its subject is the conquering of the Matterhorn in 1865 by the English climber, Edward Whymper.

A title tells you that the picture treats the historical facts rather broadly, referring, I suppose, to the insertion of some romance and occasional provocative incidents thrown in for coloring. But the actual feat —and its tragical sequel are true, and all the story's roads lead up to these.

On the summer before he makes his successful climb, Edward Whymper, scaling the mountain on its Italian face, runs into Guide Jean Antoine Carrell, whose life ambition it is to be the first to reach the summit. . . . He steers Whymper wrong. . . . The latter recognizes deceit and confronts the guide with accusation. A quarrel ensues.

Finally the Britisher goes on alone, falls, and would have met his death but for the intervention of Carrell, who saves his life. . . . The two become fast friends and plan to scale the mountain together the following summer. . . .

Thinking the matter over in the meantime, Whymper decides it would be better to climb it from the Swiss side. Carrell demurs at first, for to climb successfully from the base of his home town of Breuil would mean prosperity for that village—as it would to Zermat, the Swiss town at the foot of the mountain's other face. He puts aside his qualms, however, for he has never been treated kindly by his townspeople—why, I couldn't make out—and he turns down the offers to head an Italian expedition, planning to make the climb from Breuil. . . .

But the father of his fiancée, an innkeeper of ill repute, is determined that he shall not guide the English—for, should they be successful, tourist trade would be lured to Zermat instead of Breuil. By an ingeniously cooked up scheme he convinces Whymper and Carrell that each is a traitor to their friendship. . . . Carrell guides the Italians—who lose.

During their descent, after having planted the flag of victory on the Matterhorn—at that time called the Becca—a rope breaks, and part of Whymper's party are hurled to their deaths. . . . Whymper is accused of having cut the rope to save himself. . . . It is Carrell—determined to learn the truth—who finds that the line is frayed and not cut.

Ten weeks were spent on the Matterhorn filming this picture. It is a magnificent thing as to scenery and photography, and I thought the acting exceptionally good. Robert Douglas, said to be the youngest actor-manager on the British stage, is a handsome chap. He plays Whymper with force and disarming sincerity.

Luis Trenker, whom you will remember most favorably for his work in "The Doomed Battalion" and "The Rebel" and who refuses to leave his home in the Alps for Hollywood, gives a grand performance as the guide. It was under his supervision that most of the scenes of actual climbing were photographed. . . . Joan Gardner, 21, and a wisher on white horses, so gossip has it, is vivid as the fiancée. All other players were intelligently cast. Splendid direction!

"The Challenge" is one of those productions I'd let you lure me to twice with never an outcry.

See you tomorrow.

Enjoy House Parties at Williams College.

Football luncheons a thousand miles from the campus are lots of fun, but they are a poor substitute for actual attendance at the game. This is especially true in the case of the Amherst-Williams game at Williams today, for the college's annual fall house parties always are held at the time of this gridiron battle.

Feminine guests have been invited to join Amherst and Williams alumni at a luncheon and broadcast of the game today in the Louis XVI. room of the Hotel Sherman.

A number from Chicago are enjoying the gay whirl at Williamstown, Mass. They include Miss Priscilla Blackett, a debutante of the season; Miss Ruth Rockwood, Miss Sally Perry, Miss Georgette Hill, and Miss Barbara Willson. Miss Nathalie Bell, Miss Patty Austin, Miss Theodosia Burr, Miss Peggy Neilson, Miss Anne Wilder, and Miss Jean Mitchell are others.

Lake Forest Academy Homecoming Today.

The annual homecoming at Lake Forest academy and the 50th anniversary of the introduction of football at the school will be celebrated today. Lake Forest will meet the Cranbrook School of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., in a football game. A tea and reception will follow.

Dr. Rudolph D. Lindquist, headmaster of Cranbrook, and Mrs. Lindquist will be week-end guests of Headmaster John Wayne Richards of Lake Forest. Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, Mrs. Willard N. Boyden, Mrs. Edmund J. Rendtorff, and Mrs. Lloyd M. Bergen will preside at tea tables

Pacifist.

The possibility of the United States becoming involved in the European war was being discussed in the barber shop, John Bernbom relays. The colored porter spoke up, Rochester fashion:

"I ain't gonna go to no war. I ain't mad at nobody; nobody's done nothin' to me. And if they did I'd forgive 'em."

Nostalgic Note.

One of the most personal, sincere, and imaginative of the tributes paid the exhibit of Italian masterpieces that opened at the Art institute last evening was that of Margaret Ayer Barnes, Pulitzer prize winning author, to Chauncey McCormick, Art institute vice president, who has been concentrating for some months on getting for Chicago the exhibit that was a sensation of the San Francisco Fair:

"I must thank you for the efforts that have brought all this glory about," Mrs. Barnes said. "I think 'The Birth of Venus, the most beautiful painting in the world, and it always fills me with nostalgia, for it makes me remember being a very Walter Pater-ish Bryn Mawr undergraduate in Italy for the first time and simply gooty about Botticelli!"

All Night Card Game.

That famous Danish card game, L'hombre, which continues for long hours at a stretch, is on again in Fred Chramer's apartment on an upper floor of the Kungsholm with the arrival in town of Lauritz Melchior, great Wagnerian tenor and L'hombre player. A pheasant dinner at 5 o'clock last evening preceded the game, which probably lasted all night, and the L'hombre players will be at it again this afternoon. Melchior and pretty, petite Mrs. Melchior — "Kleinchen" to her husband and friends —depart for the east Sunday. Other players are A. K. Moss, Roger Chaveau, and Capt. Spange, traditional L'hombre companions of Melchior when he is in Chicago.

Thumbnail Description.

"The other day," writes Esther Palmer from Ithaca, N. Y., "I met a visitor named Claire Sheridan from Taos, N. M." (Surely it was the woman of Mayfair to Moscow fame.)

"'That's the place,' she said by way of explanation, 'where Mabel Dodge Luhan, 600 Indians, 400 artists, and a few people live'."

* * *

All right for a quip, but you can't dismiss Taos like that—or any of the Santa Fe country. Land of pink cliffs and purple distances, of the fragrance of burning pinon wood, of such a combination of the historic and exotic as sets one to dreaming of the cultures that stamp the country—Indian, Spanish, Mexican, and American pioneer. . . . See? We burst into enthusiasm about the Rio Grande country at the drop of a hat.

Expert Finds Party Slippers at Low Prices

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Because good party slippers are strictly in the luxury lineup, they often are a problem for the career girls who work on a limited clothes allowance. But finding good slippers with low price marks isn't so difficult this season. Good slippers are available for less than $5.

If you're tall enough to prowl about when you go forth at night, there are the flat wedge soles in gold or silver kidskin and some whites ready to be dyed as well as dead black satins. The high heeled beauties come in two stunning affairs made of inch wide braid . . . gold or silver.

Flirtatious cocktail sandals are made of black satin with bits of gold kidskin for accent. Some have teetering high heels of the gold. Festive duets to wear with very dress parade gowns are made of brocaded metallic cloth in several beautiful designs, floral, an effective check, and stripes. Also in the high heel showing come the gay Christmasy looking sandals of red or green velvet trimmed with either silver or gold kidskin.

There are plenty of tricky white sandal models, made in draped or swathed formation over the instep with high, low, and medium heels. These are the obliging slippers that can be dyed the most difficult or unusual shades to match the particular dress with which they are to be worn. And the same shop boasts a slick assortment of beautiful evening bags.

Danger on the Border

By FREDERICK R. BECHDOLT

[Copyright: 1939: By Frederick R. Bechdolt]

SYNOPSIS.

Leonard speeds west by car after finding that the sample of ore sent to him by his sick friend, Dillon, is rich in gold. In Copper City he picks up two strange companions, fat Mrs. Sebastian, and Louis Mestres, who claims to be a line jumper. They pull out just after the pay car of the Golconda mine. In a lonely spot they come upon the car—all occupants murdered, and the three bandits still on the scene. They chase Leonard's car with a machine gun. Mestres drops tacks in the road and stops their pursuit. Mestres recognized one bandit as the mine's paymaster. Paul Collins, a crooked local assayer, tests Dillon's ore. He enlists the aid of another rascal, Kent, to cheat Dillon.

INSTALMENT VI.

A DANGEROUS PROJECT.

"See here, Dillon," Collins turned in his chair. "I know the way you feel. It's always like that. If the assayer gives a good report, he's a fine fellow, if he gives a poor one he's a dirty crook. You'll do me a favor if you send a sample to the Selby Smelter."

Dillon remained motionless, staring at him as if he found it hard to understand what he was saying. At length he seemed to comprehend, he shook his head wearily and he looked like an old man.

"I know," he said. "It's the same old story." He turned toward the door and his voice sank to a murmur. It was as if he were thinking aloud. "I'll go out and gather up my stuff. I know when I'm licked."

"Hard luck." Collins was bending over his desk again. "You put in a long time on those claims. By the way, where are they?"

But the visitor made no reply, he opened the door and passed out into the black patch of shadow on the sidewalk. A pair of Yaqui laborers who were standing in the doorway of the company store watched him go by a few moments later. Their strong white teeth gleamed and their dark features were wrinkled with mirth.

"He is drunk, that one, Antonio," the older one murmured.

"Very drunk, yes, Miguel," his companion sighed. Their black eyes followed the slight figure as it lurched down the street, they were alight with friendly envy.

The town of Golconda lay along the foot of the mountain, a crescent shaped patch of raw new houses fringing the single business street, and beyond the eastern end of this thoroughfare there was a barren stretch of hillside where creosote bushes grew. At the further end of this there were the remnants of another town which had sprung up in the days before the copper deposits had been proven to the satisfaction of big business.

The collapse of the premature boom and a fire which had followed thereafter had swept away all the buildings of the old camp save one. This was a three story stone hotel. It stood alone, with the bleak mountain behind it; its glaring windows looked out on blackened foundation walls, on a myriad of broken bottles which were turning violet under the sun rays, and on beyond these to vast empty expanses of plain where tall cacti stood against the pale sky. The shadow of the walls lay black across a few yards of wooden sidewalk. A girl was sitting here in a wide armed chair beside the hotel entrance. She watched the lurching figure and her eyes widened as it drew nearer.

Dillon saw her face and he pulled himself together. His head was back and his thin shoulders were squared, he was smiling, but there was no joy in the smile.

"You've bad news!" she cried. She was on her feet now, a slight form in a blue dress. If you looked closely you would detect several places where the plain fabric had been mended. For the moment the color had departed from her face, her eyes were alight with sudden anxiety.

"Bad news!" Dillon smiled bitterly. "A trace, that's all." He stood before her, and their gaze met. There was something pathetic in his attempt to keep his lips from shaking. "I ought to have known better. I ought to have taken my own chances, Pat."

"That assayer!" There was anger in her face now, but he raised a thin hand.

"They always curse the assayer," he reminded her. He shook his head. "No, he's got no axe to grind. He doesn't know where the vein lies. Nobody knows except you and me." And then he added, "I thought it was worth so much to keep it quiet!" He dropped the hand and clenched his fists. "I thought I was being so wise when I didn't record the claims. And I was so dead sure I was doing you a favor when I let you in on it. Well, I've managed to spend your money—I was a pretty smooth promoter, wasn't I?"

"It was a gamble," she told him bravely. "You said it was a gamble. So did I. And I was the one that offered the grubstake, you didn't ask for it. And if it hadn't been you it would have been some one else. I got that gambling instinct from my father; he always took a chance. And—" her voice broke—"his luck was always bad." She thought of something and the color returned to her face. "See here," she went on quickly, "you sent a sample to your friend. He was going to come——"

"I asked him to come, Pat. He didn't say that he was going to. He didn't answer my letter. And you can bet that he'd get an assay on that sample before he did anything. And when he gets it, he'll sit down and write me a nice note of condolence. No, we're licked. Me, I can take it, I'm going out tonight. I'll gather up my tools and grub. I'll come back and—some day I'll make another stab at it. But you——"

He sat down on the sidewalk's edge. They remained thus for some time, talking it over while the shadows from the west grew longer and the high lights on the wide plain changed into duller hues of gray and mauve and purple. It was getting on toward evening when they shook hands. Dillon went to the rear of the building and she heard the noise of a starting motor. A few moments later he drove into the road. He waved his hand at her. The dust rose in a brown cloud, obscuring the battered little car as it rattled off along a pair of ruts that wound through the creosote bushes and the giant cacti down to the wide flat lands.

The car became a speck in the middle of the plain. The girl sat with her chin in her cupped hand, watching the spot grow smaller.

She remained thus for a few minutes when another car sped by the old hotel. It came from the raw young town and there was a recklessness in the speed which was unusual even in this country where many drivers handled their vehicles as carelessly as if these were saddle horses. Near by where the roads forked, it took the lower branch and plunged down the hill, it darted out upon the flat, surrounded by a dense cloud of dust. In the instant of its passing she had gotten a bare glimpse of the two men on the driver's seat.

"Drunken miners," she told herself, but there was something in the manner of the driving which suggested purpose rather than whisky. She remained watching the two automobiles. Then the color began to grow higher in her face, a new light was coming into her eyes.

An idea had occurred to her. It was born of nothing logical, it was based on mere instinct—a prejudice for its foundation, that was all. But she had heard many tales of crooked mining deals along the border, of defrauded prospectors, of claim jumping.

"I never liked that assayer's looks," she reflected.

A slight figure in her faded blue dress, but the thoughts that came to her were large, and now the light of resolution had transformed her. It was like an invisible garment which made her formidable. Just when the project had occurred, she never knew, but it was taking hold of her, possessing her entirely. In the beginning it had seemed appalling. As she considered it, the dangers which it held for her ceased to intrude into her thoughts, she forgot the disgrace which awaited her if she were to fail.

"I'll have to wait until long after dark," she was thinking.

The two cars were melting out of sight.

. . . . . .

It was at this time that Leonard was setting forth from the green house of Mrs. Sebastian to cross the narrow strip of borderland into Golconda. He was thinking of the little man with the blond mustache who had been engaged in wrecking the pay car when the sedan came on the scene. Mestres had said he was the paymaster.

If this robbery, whose sequel he and his companion had witnessed, were an ordinary crime, his own course of action would be plain enough: go straight to the officials and report it. But with the paymaster involved, the affair took on a different complexion: a conspiracy which included a heavily bonded employé was more than likely to be far reaching. This was an out of the way place, and he remembered that there had been hints of scandal concerning the local administration south of the line lately. There was no telling what sort of riffraff might have drifted into such a neighborhood. [Continued tomorrow.]

NEW BOOKS:

"Your Child's Food," by Miriam Lowenberg, McGraw-Hill Book company, Inc., $2.50.

What foods are good for youngsters, how to get them to eat properly, how to build the right food habits, how to prepare foods palatably for the young ones, and other similar problems are discussed in this new enlarged and improved version of Miss Lowenberg's earlier book, "Food for the Young Child." Menus for a year and recipes are included, and there is a chapter on food allergies by a pediatrician.

Miss Lowenberg's years of experience in supervising the meals of children in the nursery school at Iowa State college, where she is assistant professor of foods and nutrition, qualify her to write such a book. It will be of invaluable help to mothers of small boys and girls.

Lovable youngsters appear in the photographs which illustrate the book. Verses by Lorraine S. Beckman begin each chapter. They are the kind of jingles children love, and they're all about eating.

"Chef's Cook Book," by E. P. De Gouy, published by the Dahls, Stamford, Conn., $3.00. Here are 1,500 recipes and ideas for hotels, restaurants, clubs, and similar institutions. Many of the suggestions can be used by the homemaker. The author, now an American chef, was educated and trained in France and in famous European restaurants and casinos. He is consulting editor for several hotel and restaurant magazines.

The sentence construction and grammar used in this book smack of the foreign or, perhaps, of haste in some cases, but this does not impair the usefulness of the suggestions. Examples, at random: "All these individual aspics must be served well chilled, as are any kind of appetizer." "Don't put French dressing on tomato salad, and in fact any kind of salad, served as appetizer or as a course, eat it until the last minute before serving." "Broccoli are cleaned and prepared for cooking just as you would any other vegetable." "Cucumbers may also be cooked like squash or baked when they are sometimes stuffed with bread crumbs after the seeds have been removed."

Honor Work of Women in Building City

Outstanding women of Chicago's first 100 years were given credit for their contributions to the city's development when the Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago celebrated its 17th anniversary with a dinner last evening at the Palmer House.

Seven women, Mrs. Bertha Baur, Mrs. Mary Hastings Bradley, Mrs. William S. Hefferan, Mrs. Bertha E. Jaques, Mrs. Margery Maxwell Moorehead, Dr. Maud Slye, and Miss Harriet E. Vittum, were special guests and spoke briefly.

They and five others, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Mrs. Margaret Ayer Barnes, Miss Sophonisba P. Breckenridge, Mrs. James Ward Thorne, and Dr. Bertha Van Hoosen, had been chosen by vote of the alliance as 12 of Chicago's most prominent women.

In a pageant presented by Mrs. Anna M. Schmidt, alliance member, other members portrayed 24 women who have figured conspicuously in the history of Chicago. Mrs. Anne V. Zinser, president of the alliance, conducted the meeting, and Miss Jeannine G. Hoagland, a charter member, presented the guests.

Bali Dancers Are Perfect in a Strange Art

BY CECIL SMITH.

An entire new world of dance, both enchanting and exciting, was revealed to an intimate audience at the Arts club last night, as the Bali and Java dancers, with Devi Dja as their star, introduced their perfect art to Chicago. A larger public will have opportunities to see the same program at the Civic theater this afternoon, tonight, and tomorrow afternoon.

Superficially the dancing—which is primarily Balinese—resembles that of Shan-Kar and his group. The women's bodies, exquisitely controled down to the most subtle nuance, are used with the same flexibility of torso, the same soft, yielding tread of the feet, the same sidewise movements of the head. The eyes, now flashing, now downcast, now fanatic in their concentration upon some imagined point of focus, play an important rôle in their expressive art.

On the other hand, the women's dancing is more fluent, more rhythmically sinuous tha nthat of the Hindu dancers. In all of its moods it is unfailingly hypnotic.

The men dance with primitive vigor and power. Two different dagger dances left the audience gasping with the force and realism of their dangerous pantomime.

Exotic, richly colored costumes and varied headdresses lend constant interest to the eye picture. The native gamelan orchestra of percussion instruments is a fascinating law unto itself.

The Bali and Java dancers are worth seeing again and again, for while their appeal is immediate, there is no end to the subtlety and refinement of their movement and gesture.

Grace Moore, Burdino Share Opera Triumph

BY EDWARD BARRY.

A performance of Massenet's "Manon" at the Civic Opera house last night resulted in personal triumphs for Grace Moore as Manon and for Andre Burdino as the Chevalier Des Grieux.

This was not at all surprising in the case of the former, for nearly every Grace Moore performance here turns into a triumph, and we have learned to take her somewhat earthy, perhaps overly robust Manon in our stride just as we take her moving Mimi and her magnificent Louise.

But Burdino's vogue has been a slower growth, and it seemed last night as if the town recognized for the first time what a tremendous asset he really is. Here was a patrician type of art which becomes emotional yet remains fastidious, which is communicative and contemplative at the same time. So enthusiastically did the audience react to Burdino's superb singing of "The Dream" that the show stopped dead.

Leon Rothier was a dignified Count Des Grieux, George Czaplicki a swaggering Lescaut, Reinhold Schmidt a persuasive, courtly de Brétigny.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Puttering about one of our favorite retreats, a small space in a shop that has been converted into a perfect heaven for people who like herbs and all things herbal, we found something most unusual in toilet waters. There are several of them, all English, but of them all our favorite is the one called "night scented stock."

This is a fragrance distinctly sweet, and while we know there are people who just don't like sweet perfumes, we feel that for those who do this is a find. It's not cloying, tho the scent is unusually concentrated for such a lotion, but it's very much on the old fashioned garden order. It's one of the few definitely romantic scents we ever really liked.

Of course, you know what stock smells like; it's one of the softest, most pervasive fragrances to be found in a good garden. This toilet water captures it perfectly. Every flower lover we urged to try this went into rhapsodies about it, not only because of its fidelity, but also because of its endearing charm.

One thing about it which surprised us a little is the lasting quality of the scent. Usually, in toilet waters, the perfume fades away quickly. Not so with this one. It lingers in all its sweet beauty for hours on end.

Because it is such an unusual fragrance and so beautifully but simply bottled, this will make a grand Christmas gift for those women of all ages who like sweet scents. We know we're going to surprise a few with it!

Study for Sex Teaching Held Parental 'Must'

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A large majority of today's parents were brought up with an attitude toward sex that was anything but natural. A Victorian supermodesty and a mass of taboos were passed on to them by their own parents. Some of today's mothers and fathers have liberated themselves from this attitude and achieved a naturalness that they have thought out and which is enabling them to satisfy their children's very normal curiosity on this subject, and to introduce certain necessary information even where it is not asked for.

These questions of your children [that is, if they feel free to ask] range far and wide. On examining them we find that they fall into groups.

There's the whole set of questions that starts with, "Where do babies come from? Where did I come from? Why do people get sick when they have babies?" and so on.

Then there are the more searching questions, such as "How does the baby get fed before it's born? How does the baby have room to grow?"

Next come more mechanical questions. "Where does the baby's milk come from?" A score more come in this set.

Later come the questions that search for answers, why people who have babies are always married, and so on.

Now, not only do parents need help in the actual answering of these questions. They frequently need help of a different sort. That is, they need answers to questions which they are pretty sure to put to themselves—questions such as:

"Shall I answer Janey's question before all these people [at dinner, perhaps, or at tea]?

"Ought I to tell Bob not to talk to other children?"

In a sketchy way I have covered here the range of questions that mothers find difficult to answer. For those who would like to prepare themselves for practically every contingency [not only questions but situations] that may arise in the sex education of their children the book, "New Patterns in Sex Teaching," by Frances Bruce Strain, meets their need. This book is also valuable for teachers.

For those mothers who want a shorter and simpler book there is the one called "Being Born" by the same author. Tho it is written for preadolescent children to read themselves, it contains in text, diagrams, and pictures the information parents often lack, and of which I am continually aware from their letters.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The inclosed hand was played at match-point duplicate. My partner and I [North] failed to reach game.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	2 diamonds	Pass	3 spades
Pass	Pass	Pass

"As North, I contend that my bid was forcing. If my 'jump take out' in spades was not forcing, tell me, please, how I should have bid the hand to reach game. With a free bid from my partner and a hand as strong as I held, even tho East had opened the bidding, I felt that there was a possibility of a slam, and for that reason did not jump to four spades. I hoped that the three spade bid, which I considered forcing, could give us more time to exchange information.—Mrs. R. B., Texas."

My correspondent neglected to state whether or not she and partner were using the Culbertson system. If they were, the three spade jump take out was an absolute force. It did not use to be, but was made a force under a convention introduced and announced thru newspapers, latest editions of books, and The Bridge World Magazine about a year ago. At that time, having recognized the need for a bid that would insure the bidder another chance, even though his partner had made only an overcall, I stated that the "jump take out of an overcall was absolutely forcing for one round." Thus, technically speaking, North's three spade bid was adequate, and South should have responded with the least of all evils, four spades. But this is not the whole story. North's hand was so strong, in conjunction with South's overcall at the two level, that North should have done more than insure reaching game. She should have made a bid that would have simultaneously held the bidding open and conveyed a better impression of her great strength. That bid would have been a cue bid of the opponents' suit, hearts. In short, the bidding should have gone:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	2 diamonds	Pass	2 hearts
Pass	2 no trump	Pass	4 spades
Pass	Pass	Pass

In this sequence, North would have investigated slam possibilities and insured a game contract for herself.

Don't Sit Too Much; It's Harmful to the Silhouette

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The great temptation of the home woman with a maid at her beckoning is to use that second person to run every little errand for her, such as going upstairs to get the scissors, bringing in a glass of water, calling the youngsters in from play, and so on. Or, it may be one of the children who is called upon to perform these small duties by a mother and housewife who does so to the detriment of her figure and looks generally a "sitter."

This habitual sitter isn't an isolated case. She's detected everywhere. You find her in offices where she has the privilege of asking the office boy to do this and that for her. It's an easy habit to fall into, but it is a fairly fatal one, because this sitting habit gets you and swallows up any number of your girlish charms.

General flabbiness sets in when one belongs to this class. And hippiness is bound to follow. As a hip-spreader, there's nothing equal to the habit of refusing to get up on one's own feet and performing those small duties referred to. There's opportunity many times in the course of a single day in every woman's life to get up out of that chair and move around. So, we'd plead that the woman go get her own glass of water; that she run upstairs herself for the scissors or the darning thread; that she run down to the corner to get the paper or do the shopping errands. And in the office, we'd urge the sedentary worker to keep that hip-spread constantly in mind as the penalty for her chair-hugging.

A Bachelor Tells Why He Stays Single

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

If your husband or sweetheart is drifting away from you, and you don't know the reason why, listen to the plaint of bachelor-bandleader Jan Savitt, who prefers the blessedness of single life until the things he speaks about are remedied.

Men, says Savitt, will stand for almost anything, but some of the things women try to get away with are akin to the proverbial straw that broke the camel's back. In short, they exasperate a man beyond endurance.

Chief among these things is personal criticism. A man realizes no one is perfect, yet he likes to imagine he is closest to that status. And when a woman coyly remarks: "Goodness, where did you get that awful looking necktie?" or "My, but you need a haircut!" she gets a huge black mark beside her name in the man's mental book.

How much better to remark casually: "Beautiful necktie you're wearing, but I'm afraid the shirt [or suit] doesn't set it off to full advantage." A woman clever in thinks like that can have any man she sets her cap for.

In the same category as personal criticism is criticizing a man's friends. The average woman thinks nothing of telling her husband or fiancé: "Must you go with that Smith fellow? He's not your type." Or else she'll loudly remark, in his presence: "O, tomorrow night we've a date to play bridge at the Watsons. Some friends of Jack's, very stupid people."

Another feminine trait that Savitt complains about is a complete disregard for punctuality. Man, steeped in the tradition of business that demands things done to the exact second, will never be able to understand what can possibly make a woman continually late for appointments.

Columbus, O., Nov. 17.—Coach Bob Zuppke and his University of Illinois football players tonight are encamped at Magnetic Springs, 35 miles outside Columbus, and they aren't there to take the baths.

Esco Sarkkinen.

Tomorrow the Illini will meet Ohio State before a homecoming crowd of 50,000 in a game that will have an important bearing on the Western conference championship. The Buckeyes are the only undefeated team in conference competition and they could insure a tie for the highest honors in that organization by a victory tomorrow. They could clinch the title next week by defeating Michigan.

You Wouldn't Know Illini.

Neutral observers concede Ohio State a distinct edge in tomorrow's contest. The Buckeyes have one of the best back fields in football, an All-America candidate at end in Esco Sarkkinen and a line that has stood up valiantly thru a severe schedule. Don Scott, quarter back, can pitch a football like a baseball. He has completed approximately half of his forward passes this season.

Against this is an Illinois team that three weeks ago seemed hopeless, but which has improved so rapidly it practically is unrecognizable. Win or lose against Ohio, the team from Champaign is definite tribute to expert coaching. Tied by Bradley and defeated by Southern California, Indiana, and Northwestern, Illinois seemed doomed to a miserable year, yet it rallied from these trouncings to whip Michigan, previously undefeated, and to eke out a victory over Wisconsin. If the Illini take Ohio State—and, don't sell them short—the story will be epic.

Bob Makes a Speech.

The team that will represent the Orange and Blue tomorrow has cohesion, sound coaching, refusal to quit, and a belief in themselves. These are powerful attributes in a tough football game.

The Illinois squad arrived on a special train at 3:30 and the players were taken to their suburban retreat. Zuppke left the party only long enough to appear at an alumni dinner.

There is more excitement attending the game than Columbus has known since Notre Dame's historic invasion of this football capital in 1935. The university district tonight was a blaze of color. Sixty fraternity and sorority houses were decorated lavishly for the old grads.

While the gatherings in hotel lobbies and other downtown congregating centers were strongly pro-Ohio State, there was unmistakable evidence of jitters among the Buckeye partisans. They have learned thru long experience to take nothing for granted when Illinois is the opponent.

Zuppke has sent 25 Illinois teams against Ohio State with a record of 11 victories, 13 defeats, and 1 tie.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 17.—Detroit, self-acclaimed as the city of champions, is having its troubles. . . . Seven of its favorites—Michigan, Michigan State, Wayne, Detroit Tech, University of Detroit, Ferris Institute, and the Lions—all went down in defeat last week-end. . . . Bob Zuppke, who always addresses the Ohio alumni branch of the University of Illinois on the eve of the Ohio State-Illinois game, was encamped tonight with his players 35 miles from town. . . . He didn't want to leave them long enough to drive 35 miles to the banquet, so they have moved the banquet to Zuppke. . . . It will be held in Delaware, only 12 miles from Zuppke's quarters. . . . Erwin Prasse, who played 60 minutes at end for Iowa against Notre Dame, slept in a chair the night before the game. . . . So many alumni came back for the game that all beds were taken in his fraternity house. . . . Eddie Brannick, traveling secretary of the New York Giants, who spent last winter in Italy, had planned to winter in Egypt this year, but is sunning himself at Miami instead, what with the war and everything. . . . Football fans are warned to look out for pickpockets, who are reaping a harvest this fall. . . . Their favorite technique is to jostle their way out of elevators, claiming they have forgotten their glasses or some other personal property. . . . A fan was taken for $135 in Iowa City last Saturday. . . . President William Harridge will be host at luncheon Dec. 14 when the American league's 1940 movie, edited by Lew Fonseca, will have its première. . . . It will be an invitational affair as usual. . . .

John Drake of the Cleveland Rams needs only one more touchdown to tie Don Hutson's all-time National league mark of nine for a season. . . . Fritz Crisler never has been the winning coach in a Minnesota-Michigan game. . . . His Minnesota teams were defeated in 1930 and 1931, 7 to 0 and 6 to 0, and his Michigan teams have lost 7 to 6 and 20 to 7 the last two seasons. . . . Add sport similes: As insignificant as one more point scored against the Maroons. . . . John Grabowski, who used to catch for the Yankees, is employed in the Watervliet, N. Y., arsenal. . . . Seabiscuit started 17 times as a 2 year old before he won a race. . . . Lionel Conacher, oldest of Canada's famous athletic brothers, has been named chairman of the Ontario athletic commission.

When Father Carves.

When father carves, it is a time
That teems with tense delight,
The seeming docile, still that bird
Gives dad an awful fight.

With voices hushed we huddle round
The scene of carnage rife;
It is a battle royal, but
Pop wields a wicked knife.

He feints and parries, thrusts and jabs,
But when it seems a cinch,
The turkey turns a somersault
And goes into a clinch.

And when at last the struggle's o'er,
The pater beams with pride,
Altho there's gravy on his vest
And dressing far and wide.

"Some folks make such a fuss about
This carving job," sezze,
"When once you get the knack, why, shucks,
It's simple as can be."

Each year we live, it thru anew,
In just the same old way,
When father carves the turkey on
Our glad Thanksgiving day.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 17. — Iowa's Hawkeyes, runners-up to Ohio State in the Western conference standings by virtue of having won three out of four Big Ten engagements, tomorrow afternoon will seek to carry on against Minnesota's eighth place but still mighty Gophers, whose only Big Ten victory was over Michigan, the only outfit that has beaten Iowa.

It will be Iowa homecoming and a crowd bigger than the 47,000 which saw the Hawks beat Notre Dame last Saturday is forecast by the boys in the counting room. Only a few tickets in the stands parallel to the end lines are unsold.

Iowa's grand little crew of sixty minute men, conquerors of South Dakota, Indiana, Wisconsin, Purdue, and Notre Dame, is eager to halt Minnesota's string of eight straight victories over Iowa. But there doesn't seem to be anything like as great a hunch hereabouts that the lads will succeed as there was last week in anticipation of the Irish invasion. The betting is two to one on the Gophers and some of the pros are giving seven points.

New Slick Stuff Ready.

It should be emphasized, however, that Coach Eddie Anderson and the iron men do not share the temerity of the betting ilk among their supporters. They have a lot of new slick stuff ready and certainly have the spirit. Last night every spectator was bounced off the practice field, newspaper kibitzers and all, to give the football teachers a chance to polish off their sly blueprints, prepared especially for the Gophers.

Indications are for perfect weather, so the game can be played on its merits, no matter what techniques are ordered by Coach Anderson and sobbing Bernie Bierman, Gopher coach who will be seeking to mend his broken heart by a riotous showing against the famous Hawkeyes.

The Hawks never have beaten a Bierman coached team and if they should do so tomorrow Mr. Bierman doubtless will become more hysterical than he ever has in the face of defeat. Incidentally he's billeting his boys tonight in Des Moines, 120 miles from here, where their slumbers may or may not be shattered by raucous Iowa partisans.

George Franck Well Again.

Keeping ball players far from Iowa City tonight probably was a good idea. Twelve thousand fans, the largest ever to attend a pregame rally here, turned out tonight to pay tribute to Coach Anderson, who was presented with an automobile by the alumni.

Both coaches announced lineups which check with their recent starting arrays. Included in the Gopher list is George Franck, until several days ago an inmate of the sick bay. This probably should come under the head of bad news for the Hawks, sympathetic as they may be about a fellow Iowan's discomfort. Franck hails from nearby Davenport, and his enrollment at Minnesota long has been a Hawkeye headache.

Get Last Crack at Each Other Today

Rivals for three years, these players will square off against each other for the last time when Notre Dame and Northwestern clash today at Notre Dame. Steve Sitko (upper left) is Notre Dame's regular quarter back, and John Haman (upper right), Northwestern center, is rated one of the best in the country. Tad Harvey (lower right) is Notre Dame's right tackle.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—The Badgers, who thus far this season have accumulated a staggering total of yards but not a Big Ten triumph, will be out again tomorrow—not so much for the purpose of adding to their mileage as for a few touchdowns with which to garnish the annual homecoming. Whether it will be yards or points, both or neither for the Badgers will be up to Purdue's Boilermakers, a talented aggregation which thus far has had its own disappointments in a milder way.

But Wisconsin is not down. Adversity which set in with a defeat at the hands of Indiana and has carried on thru engagements with Iowa, Northwestern, and Illinois, has toughened up the lads who wear the Cardinal flamed jerseys. They've been told they're good, altho not lucky. Their yardage deeds make them believe what they've been told must be true and to prove the truth with a few victory points is their intention or hope.

For the fifth time this year a different starter will be at left half tomorrow for the Badgers. Tony Gradisnik, now definitely side lined by an injury, had a starting fling at the important post. Bill Schmitz was moved back there after an experiment that involved him as a right half. Bobby Cone had a piece of the bothersome position. Johnny Tennant was there last Saturday when the Badgers were flopped by Jimmy Smith's eighty-two yard meander at Illinois. But when the Boilermakers square off for bat-

BILLY CONN WHIPS LESNEVICH AND KEEPS HIS TITLE

New York, Nov. 17 [Special].—Billy Conn of Pittsburgh tonight defended his championship successfully in one of the most exciting light-heavyweight battles in New York in years.

The grim faced Irishman from the coal region hammered and boxed his way to the decision over Gus Lesnevich, Cliffside, N. J., challenger. The 15 rounds of fighting held every thrill short of a knockout to satisfy a crowd of 13,704. Gross receipts were $45,067. It was Conn's second successful defense of his title.

The battle went its scheduled 15 rounds only because of Conn's notoriously weak hitting and the ability of Lesnevich to absorb punishment.

Proves Conn No Puncher.

If this battle was calculated to establish Conn as a threat among heavyweights, it failed. The Pittsburgher left the conviction he is not now and perhaps never will be a puncher for heavyweight circulation. There are many heavyweights Conn can now outstep and outstab, but he is far from the goal some set for him—a crack at Joe Louis and the heavyweight title.

Conn won on a unanimous decision of the three officials and every observer at the ringside agreed. The champion did everything but knock out his challenger. Referee Johnny McAvoy gave Conn eight rounds, Lesnevich five, and called two even. Judge Marty Monroe gave Conn ten rounds and Lesnevich five. Judge Joe Lynch gave Conn nine rounds and Lesnevich six.

Australian Champion Draws.

The battle was cleanly though bitterly fought and expertly paced by the champ who boxed or slugged as the occasion demanded. Blessed with tireless energy and with amazing strength for the frail lad he looks, Conn won all but the first three rounds and the tenth and eleventh.

Conn weighed 171¼ pounds and Lesnevich 174½.

Fred Henneberry, Australian middleweight champion, made his American debut in an eight round draw against George Abrams of Washington, D. C., in the semi-final. The visitor was not particularly impressive. His body blows were erratic and cost him the first, sixth, and eighth rounds in penalties.

Charities Get $34,574 from All-Star Game

The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., yesterday sent checks totaling $34,574.16 to the United Charities, Catholic Charities, and Jewish Charities of Chicago. The sum represented the profits of the sixth annual All-Star football game, played in Soldiers' field Aug. 30 between the College All-Americans and the New York Giants, champions of the National Professional league. Each organization's check amounted to $11,524.72.

This year's profit was the largest the game has returned. The 1938 figure was $27,093. The three Chicago charities have received a total of $170,284.49 since the All-Star game was originated in 1934.

Teams Now All Even.

The 1939 contest, played before 81,456, was won by the Giants, 9 to 0, on three field goals. The series stands at a tie after six years of competition.

The 1940 game will be played in Soldiers' field the last week in August between the 1939 professional league winners and the best of this year's collegiate graduates, who again will be chosen in a national poll.

What the Game Costs.

Major items of expense in the presentation of this year's game included $15,089 rental of Soldiers' field; electrical, carpenter, and miscellaneous labor, $3,200; compensation to All-Star players and coaches, $15,779; transportation, rooms, and meals and incidental expenses of All-Star squad, $15,000, and equipment, $4,124.

The professional team received 23 per cent of the net receipts, its share approximating $34,000. Out of this sum it must assume all expenses, including transportation, housing, boarding, salaries, etc., of its players.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 17.—At 1:30 tomorrow afternoon, before a crowd of more than 50,000, Northwestern's football men will open their annual attack on the Irish of Notre Dame. Perhaps there is no rivalry in football which exemplifies better the adage of "Try, try again." Certainly there is none that has been more closely contested and with one sided results unless it be Army's ineffectual assaults against this same stronghold.

Hope must spring eternal for Northwestern's loyal adherents, since no undergraduate today recalls the last victory of the Wildcats over Notre Dame. That stirring conquest in 1935 ended Notre Dame's undefeated march and its value is tripled since the decision had gone to Northwestern only once before. No matter to what other foemen the Irish have lost, they always seem able to beat the Wildcats. In the series of 18 games, 14 have been won by Notre Dame and two were tied.

Margin Usually Close.

The rivalry, however, has been significant because of the narrow margin of Notre Dame victories. In the last six years, for instance, one touchdown or less has separated the teams on four occasions. Typical of the games is the 1934 Notre Dame victory when the Four Horsemen came from behind to win by a touchdown in Soldiers' field.

Last year's game in Dyche stadium is even more illustrative of Northwestern frustration. Bill Hofer, Notre Dame substitute quarter back, scored all the points as Northwestern was whipped, 9 to 7. One mistake led to the Wildcats' defeat when seemingly they had conquered the jinx that follows them in this series.

Beaten by Mistakes.

Tomorrow the rival teams may join in the hope that neither commits an irreparable mistake. Because of error in judgment by Notre Dame's Steve Sitko, followed by his fumble, the Irish lost to Iowa last week. Because of mechanical errors Northwestern lost scoring opportunities against Purdue and was beaten by a fourth period place kick.

Northwestern faces another mental handicaps for Notre Dame has lost two games in succession only once since Elmer Layden took charge in 1934. In that year Pittsburgh and Navy won on consecutive Saturdays. If you are allergic to previous scores, then Northwestern scarcely can follow Iowa's success with another victory. Moreover, it has been two years since Notre Dame lost in its own stadium. Pittsburgh, in the 1937 game, which ended that series, whipped the Irish in a fourth period rally, 21 to 6.

Students Rally Team.

Tonight's student rally in the gymnasium, before which appeared coaches and players, was more enthusiastic because by losing to Iowa there was reason to rally the team. And the final drill, which ended shortly after the practice lights had been turned on, showed definitely that the squad had reacted from the disappointment of defeat last week.

While Layden has announced he probably would start Sitko, Harry Stevenson, outstanding against Army and Iowa; Lou Zontini and Joe Thesing in the Irish back field, it would not surprise if Bob Hargrave, sophomore quarter back; Ben Sheridan, left half; Milt Piepul, full back, and Zontini were to form a unit some time during the game. Piepul is without question the hardest hitting full back the Irish have had in at least a decade. He was the leading ground gainer against Iowa, he ripped Navy's line, and he has been stopped with a loss on only one play this year.

With Tad Harvey definitely ready to play and Tom Gallagher likely to see action, the Irish line will be at its fullest strength. Jim Brutz and Paul Lillis, sophomore tackles, may not be displaced in the opening lineup, however.

Despite Northwestern's running attack, which ripped thru Minnesota's and Purdue's line, the best weapon of the Wildcats would seem to be the forward passing which supports Don Clawson's rushes. And, correspondingly, Northwestern must check reverses by Zontini and Piepul if it expects to win.

The Northwestern team will not arrive until shortly before noon and will go directly to the stadium.

2 THANKSGIVING DATES SHUFFLE FOOTBALL CARDS

Here's the Way Schedules Have Been Settled.

New York, Nov. 17 (AP).—College football authorities had as hard a time making up their minds what to do about the President's brand new Thanksgiving day as did the governors of the 48 states. Some of them decided to stick to the original date, Nov. 30; some of them switched to the new one, Nov. 23, and others decided to ignore both and play either on Saturday, Nov. 25, or Saturday, Dec. 2.

Four major changes occurred in the east. Pennsylvania and Cornell, traditional Thanksgiving day rivals, instead will play in Philadelphia Nov. 25; New York university and Fordham, and Duquesne and Detroit moved their dates to Dec. 2, and Maryland and Syracuse, scheduled to meet in College Park, Md., Nov. 25, instead will play two days earlier, and will start their game at 11 in the morning.

Two Take Nov. 30.

In the south, the Richmond-William and Mary game in Richmond and Virginia Military-Virginia Tech in Roanoke were moved from Nov. 30 to Nov. 23; in the midwest Missouri and Kansas switched from Nov. 30 to Nov. 25, and St. Louis and Washington university from Nov. 30 to Dec. 2. Out in the mountain states' Big Seven, Denver will play on both holidays, meeting Idaho on Nov. 23 [shifted from the 18th] and Colorado on Nov. 30, while on the west coast Oregon and Washington shifted their Seattle game from Nov. 25 to Nov. 23, and Washington State and U. C. L. A. scheduled to meet in Los Angeles, Nov. 30, decided to make it a night game.

The oddest shift of all removed the Maryland-Washington and Lee contest from the schedule entirely. First listed for Nov. 30, then moved to Dec. 2, it now has been canceled.

UNEARTH FILMS SHOWING MAULER BEATING WILLARD

New York, Nov. 17 [Special].—A little group of newspapermen, fighters, fight managers, and old time fans today relived a thrill of 20 years ago when motion pictures of the Jack Dempsey-Jess Willard championship battle in Toledo, O., on July 4, 1919, were given a private showing.

After watching the lithe young Dempsey, who had not yet acquired his title of Manassa Mauler, batter the huge but defenseless Willard into a helpless hulk in three rounds, ringwise veterans immediately revived the never-to-be-solved question: Could Dempsey in his prime have whipped Joe Louis? The consensus was that Jack, as he appeared in this flickering old film, could have chopped down the Louis of today, altho the pro-Dempsey faction admitted their man would have taken some telling blows in the process.

The films, made at the order of Promoter Tex Rickard, have lain in a vault for years because of the stringent laws against interstate transportation of prize fight movies. Now that the laws have been relaxed, promoters plan to distribute them for national showing.

MOLINE, ROCK ISLAND TIE.

Rock Island, Ill., Nov. 17 [Special].—Moline and Rock Island High schools battled to a scoreless tie this afternoon in a Northwest end Quad City conference league game. The game was scheduled three weeks ago but student rowdyism caused a postponement.

Homecomers See Wisconsin, Purdue Today

tle tomorrow on Camp Randall they'll see Bob Peterson in the spot that has been Coach Harry Stuhldreher's personal headache since late in September.

Peterson's promotion to a starting rôle is reward for the fashion in which he threw panic into the Illini ranks in the closing minutes of play last Saturday. Being seven points in arrears the Badgers had to pass and Illinois appreciated that would be the procedure. Long Bob, a sophomore from Aurora, sailed three successful aerials, the last of which was in the air as time expired and would have been a touchdown if Rettinger of the Illini hadn't been cagey enough to bowl over Claude York so that the receiving back tumbled on the 1 foot line instead of over the goal.

Doyle Replaces Murray.

A desire to reward faithful service will be evidenced by the presence of a different starter at another position. John Doyle, a guard in his sophomore year, will be at center instead of his roommate and fraternity brother, Jack Murray, who last season was spoken of as one of the Big Ten's best. Murray, presumably as the result of a midsummer operation, has been below form and this also has entered into Stuhldreher's decision to let the second fiddle carry the lead as well as perform as acting captain. It might help to change Wisconsin's miserable luck.

If what Wisconsin did while losing to Iowa and what Purdue didn't do while being bogged down by the same batch of tireless Hawkeyes means anything, the Badgers have a big bulge on their foes. The Badgers harvested fourteen first downs to Iowa's seven and rushed 177 yards from scrimmage to Iowa's 85. The Hawkeyes rolled up 11 first downs in their Purdue battle, the latter collecting four. From scrimmage Iowa pushed the Boilermakers around for 179 yards. Purdue's scrimmage total was 59 yards.

Purdue to Watch Paskvan.

By giving Bob Peterson a starting rôle Coach Stuhldreher has furnished a broad hint to the Boilermakers of the kind of an offense they can expect, but the latter probably will not be misled easily. They aren't overlooking the Badgers' possibilities overhead but their big concern is the fellow named George Paskvan, the Cardinal full back who as yet hasn't been stopped. He beat his way for 125 yards against Illinois. He has a season's total of 362 yards, the best in Big Ten society. So the Boilermakers, if they don't forget their orders, will keep an eye on the 200 pound junior from La Grange.

That Letter of Shaughnessy's Is Just a Hoax

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 17 (AP).—Clark Shaughnessy, whose University of Chicago football team has been shut out five times this fall, may have a license to do some moaning, but he isn't doing it in writing. So that announcement awarding Shaughnessy second place in a national coaches' moaning contest is all a mistake.

Joe Albi, president of the Spokane Athletic Round Table, admitted today that a letter which the round table said was written by Shaughnessy, Chicago coach, actually was written by a Chicago sports writer.

BEARS PREPARE FOR A BUSY DAY AGAINST EAGLES

O'Brien, Mates Menace Title Prospects.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The Philadelphia Eagles, comparative strangers on the list of professional football visitors to Chicago, arrive in the loop today accompanied by such well known practitioners as Davey O'Brien, Bill Hewitt, Bree Cuppoletti, Fran Murray, Emmett Mortell, and their jolly little chatterbox, Coach Bert Bell.

This is the Eagles' first appearance in Chicago since 1935 and they come with the best wishes of the Detroit Lions and Green Bay Packers, who will be grateful for any little favors as the Philadelphians attempt to knock the Bears out of the championship race on Wrigley field tomorrow. An Eagle victory would leave the western division title strictly up to the Packers and Lions.

Bree Is No Weakling.

While O'Brien and Hewitt are the men of the hour on this trip, it will behoove the Bears to pay a little attention to an old enemy, Cuppoletti, who earned a reputation as one of the finest guards and line backers in the league before the Cardinals decided to cut him loose, and also to Murray, the former Pennsylvania full back and kicking specialist.

Mortell, a former Wisconsin star, also will be deserving of special attention. In fact, the Bears, who are inclined to regard the remainder of the schedule as a mere formality on the way to a tie for the title, can ill afford to be indifferent tomorrow. Altho beaten six times, the Eagles have been shut out only once. That was in their first Washington game, in which the Redskins got away with a 7 to 0 decision. The Eagles' second Redskin game ended 7 to 6. This is the same Redskin team that defeated Brooklyn, 41 to 13, and 42 to 0.

Maniaci Is Out.

Joe Maniaci will be missing again from the Bear lineup. The big full back has been getting into a uniform against orders and insists he is ready to play, but Coach George Halas has ordered more rest for his injured leg. If the Bears succeed in getting into a playoff for the division champion ship Halas wants Maniaci in first class shape. Until that time he will not risk further injury to the former Fordham star.

Tomorrow's game will start at 2 o'clock, Coach Halas announced yesterday.

In Washington, where the Cardinals make another attempt to get their running attack functioning with four full backs in the back field, Coach Ernie Never announced his squad was in good shape following the 17 to 7 defeat in New York last week. Andy Sabodos, rookie guard, who was carried off the field with an injured leg, is said to be ready to take his place in the starting lineup.

Hunting Mishaps Kill 23 in New York This Year

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 17 [Special].—Twenty-three persons were killed and 122 injured in hunting accidents in New York state during the 10½ months ended Nov. 15, the conservation department reported today. In 1938, the open hunting season resulted in 30 deaths and injuries to 152 persons. Five of the fatalities on this year's list were due to drownings in the Hudson river near Catskill.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 17.—Indiana university's Hoosiers and Michigan State college's Spartans, who have been travelling the by-ways of football for much of this 1939 season, will try to get back on the victory highway tomorrow when they meet on Macklin field.

For the Spartans the game will carry special significance. It is their homecoming and they aim to try to please the anticipated gathering of 20,000. For the Hoosiers it will be a question of pulling a rather hectic season out of the fire, one which will be climaxed by next Saturday's old oaken bucket struggle against Purdue in Bloomington.

The two coaches, Bo McMillin of Indiana and Charley Bachman of State, are included in several interwining events involved in the morrow's argument. Bo succeeded Charley at Kansas State more than a decade ago. It's Bo's second appearance as a tutor in East Lansing, his Kansas State lads having played a scoreless tie against the Spartans in 1933.

Hoosiers Won Two Others.

The game will bring the first Western conference eleven to play here since Michigan came over to help the Spartans dedicate Macklin field in 1926. The Hoosiers and the Spartans have played just two games previously, Indiana winning both, the 1922 contest by 14 to 6 here and the 1927 match by 33 to 7 in Bloomington.

Wyman Davis, one of the Dundee, Mich., twins [the other is Wilford, a quarter back] is the main hope of the Michigan State attack. The Spartans have no Johnny Pingels or Ole Nelsons in this year's lineup, but Sophomore Davis Work, particularly in recent games, has enabled them to come this far with a record of victories over Wayne, Illinois Wesleyan, and Syracuse, against defeats by Marquette, Michigan, Purdue, and a tough 6 to 0 loss at Santa Clara last week. Wy Davis is one of the three sophomores Bachman plans to start, the others being Left End Lew Smiley and Quarter Back Bob Sherman. Right Half Back Ed Pearce is the veteran of the team, Junior Jack Amon completing the back field.

While the Spartans will be at full strength for the first time this season, the Hoosiers are not so well off. McMillin left three handy lads at home with injuries. They are Full Back Joe Tofil, who has been bothered by a bad leg most of the season; Sophomore End Mike Dumke, brother of Ray, who will start at right half, and Guard Charles Steele, who was injured in last night's final drill.

Three Others Injured.

In addition, the McMillin collection of pore little boys includes Capt. Jim Logan, guard; John Janzaruk, end, and Emil Uremovich, tackle. All, however, were included in the party of 36 players who arrived this morning and worked out on Macklin field this afternoon.

Marquette to Oppose Texas Tech in Final

Lubbock, Tex., Nov. 17 [Special].—Marquette's Hilltoppers of Milwaukee, for whom victory will mean an even break for the season, face a formidable Texas Tech eleven in an intersectional homecoming battle here tomorrow afternoon. A crowd of 25,000 is anticipated.

Marquette is hoping that a continuance of the offensive improvement it showed in the Duquesne and Iowa State games will carry thru its final contest of the year. Texas Tech is playing at home for the first time in four weeks. It was tied last Saturday by Centenary.

Coach Paddy Driscoll has his Golden Avalanche in good shape. Capt. Gil Burke will be at right end in place of the veteran Gil Thompsen, who was left at home because of an injury. Driscoll will alternate 145 pound Johnny Maltsch and 155 pound Jimmy Richardson at left half back. The Hilltoppers are seeking to avenge last year's setback by Tech there.

BILL MACKENZIE REJOINS HAWKS; TO FACE BRUINS

Bill MacKenzie, recalled by the Blackhawks from Providence last night, arrived by plane to replace Earl Seibert, who was injured in Thursday's 3 to 2 victory over the Rangers in New York. MacKenzie will team with Art Wiese on a defense line in tomorrow night's game against the champion Boston Bruins in the Stadium.

Seibert, who suffered a torn leg ligament, was met at the depot when the Hawks arrived in Chicago yesterday afternoon, by the club's physician, Dr. H. F. Meacham, who announced after an examination that Earl would be out of the lineup for at least two weeks.

The Hawks came from behind twice to win over the Rangers on a blistering shot by young Doug Bentle.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The enterprising young men who handle the publicity for the University of Chicago and for Oberlin college have introduced a refreshing note into the advance gossip about the football game between these institutions which will be played this afternoon on Stagg field.

In keeping with the scholarly tone of the occasion, they scorn the hackneyed methods used by 99.9 per cent of college publicity departments. They make no mention of the half back's wrenched knee or the center's bruised shoulder. They don't try to scare their followers with forecasts that most of the members of the first team will be unable to start. Possibly that is because the difference between the Maroons' first and second team is almost indistinguishable, but, in any case, the publicity men will have none of those banalities in their copy.

It's Sort of a Reunion.

Instead, they inform the football fans that President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, widely acclaimed as one of the leading educators in the United States, spent two of his formative years as a student at Oberlin college.

They go on to point out that Ernest H. Wilkins, president of Oberlin, was once a University of Chicago man. Indeed, he served for a time as a dean following his graduation.

This all gives the feeling that the football world is a cozy little place and that Oberlin, after all, isn't so very far away.

They're All Scholars.

These data about the presidents of the universities inspired some independent investigation which will give even more angles of interest to today's football game.

It has been learned from an impeachable source that a member of the Maroon back field, who prefers to remain anonymous, has just finished a corking term paper on "The Nature of the Change in English Literature Between 1840 and 1850."

At the same time an equally impeachable source reveals that a member of the Oberlin line is just starting a term paper on "The Nature of the Change in French Literature Between 1850 and 1860."

Be There If You Can.

All of these little coincidences go to make football a more interesting game you know. By the way, the kickoff is at 2 p. m., and may heaven protect the hindmost.

Altho the Maroons have lost their last four games by spectacular scores, they are loking forward with optimism to today's engagement. They were beaten, 61 to 0, by Ohio State, 85 to 0, by Michigan, 47 to 0, by Virginia, and 61 to 0, by Harvard. Previously Beloit had overcome them, 6 to 0, making the total score 260 to 0 for the five games. But it takes more than that to discourage the Maroons because, after all, they did beat Wabash 12 to 2.

Oberlin has won three, tied one, and lost two.

PRINCETON HAS A RIGHT TO FEEL IT CAN BEAT YALE

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 17 (AP).—A favored Princeton team is prepared to go out in the Yale bowl here tomorrow and capture the 1939 gridiron supremacy of the traditional Big Three.

In fine physical and mental condition, and paced by the brilliant Dave Allerdice, Princeton quarter back and passer extraordinary, the conquerors of Harvard are confident that they will avoid the misfortune that fell upon the 1934 Tigers, who lost their only game of the season to the Elis in an upset, perhaps the biggest in this long series.

Yale's hope for pulling another surprise was based mainly on the unexpected return to action of Star End Brownie Brinkley, who underwent an appendectomy shortly after the season began. The squad is also reported to be on the rise again after having spent several weeks in the doldrums.

Some 35,000—a small crowd for this event—are expected. Coach Tad Wieman sent the Princeton team thru a light drill today at nearby Cheshire academy, while Yale limbered up under the surveillance of Coach Ducky Pond in the bowl.

ARKANSAS ADDS TO WOE OF S. M. U. ELEVEN, 14 TO 0

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 17 (AP).—The University of Arkansas scored a 14 to 0 upset victory over Southern Methodist before 8,000 today. The Razorbacks excelled on the ground and in the air to turn back a stunned Methodist eleven which penetrated deep into Arkansas territory only once and that in the final minute of play. It was the Razorbacks' third victory in nine games.

Kay Eakin starred but he received plenty of aid from Ralph Atwood, a back whose forty-eight yard run in the third period set up the second Arkansas touchdown.

The Razorbacks stormed down the field at the start. Repulsed on the 13 yard stripe, they came back after a punt with a sustained fifty-five yard drive for a score when Eakin passed twelve yards to Estes McDoniel of the S. M. U. 1 yard line. Eakin went over on the first play of the second quarter. Simington kicked the point.

Arkansas clinched it in the third period with an eighty yard march featuring Atwood's long dash which carried to the Mustang 32 yard line. Eakin and Atwood ran for a first down and then Aubrey Neal, substitute back, went around left end for the touchdown. Miller added the point.

Fenger Meets Tilden; Austin Faces Schurz

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Prep football's biggest week-end has arrived. Six teams, survivors of an original field of almost 50 which started early in September to reach the all-city charity contest on Dec. 2, will make their final efforts to gain championships in the Catholic and public school leagues today and tomorrow.

A total of 60,000 from all sections of the city are expected to watch shifty, fleet footed ball carriers and hard charging linemen who have led their squads to sectional titles. Two of the three games will be played in Soldiers' field and the other contest in Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue.

25,000 See Fenger, Tilden.

Twenty-five thousand will gather in the lake front arena this afternoon to see Fenger, 1938 champion, battle Tilden Tech in one of the two semi-final games for the Public School league title. Another 10,000 will tax the capacity of Mills stadium for the contest between Austin and Schurz.

Tomorrow afternoon in Soldiers' field Mount Carmel and St. Ignatius will draw an additional 25,000 for their Catholic league championship game. St. Ignatius will be seeking its first league title in 19 years. Mount Carmel, defending title holder, appeared in the all-city contest last year and lost to Fenger, 13 to 0.

Ball Toters Aplenty.

The dazzling array of the city's outstanding ball carriers who will be seen in action in the three games include Fenger's Donald [Flash] Griffin and Ray Florek; Tilden Tech's Al Specius and Ed Cycenas; Austin's Casey Peifer and Tony Rotunno, and Schurz's Jack Vanderpool and Jack Thompson.

The Catholic league's highly publicized back field stars are Mount Carmel's John Andretich and Francis Meakim, and St. Ignatius' Ray Pechous, Bill White, and Chick Jacoby. St. Ignatius' leading player in the drive to the north section title was Ray McCaffrey, but the little left half back suffered a broken collar bone against St. Mel two weeks ago and is out for the season.

Fenger, Austin, and Tilden Tech enter the Public School league semi-finals with perfect records. Austin and Tilden Tech each won seven straight games, the former scoring 187 points to opponents' 7, and Tilden Tech, 183 to opponents' 12. Fenger scored six consecutive victories in the south section, piling up 224 points to opponents' 13. Schurz won six and lost one in the north section, scoring 107 points to opponents' 27.

On the basis of records in the sectional races, Mount Carmel and St. Ignatius are evenly matched. Each team has won five games and was tied once. Mount Carmel scored 96 points to opponents' 19 and St. Ignatius, 86 to 24.

WABASH MEETS DE PAUW TODAY IN 46TH GAME

Crawfordsville, Ind., Nov. 17 [Special].—The Little Giants of Wabash will endeavor to close their season with a victory tomorrow in their 46th annual game with DePauw in one of football's oldest rivalries west of the Alleghenies. Wabash has won 22 of the games, DePauw 18, and 5 have been ties.

The Monon Bell, symbol of victory, is now held by DePauw, which won last year's game, 7 to 0. DePauw, coached by Gaumy Neal, former Wabash college star, also won in 1937.

Michigan Faces Revised Penn Lineup Today

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 17 [Special].—Pennsylvania and Michigan, each hoping to regain some of the prestige it lost in recent weeks, will meet tomorrow afternoon in the eighteenth game of their series. Accompanied by its 136 piece band and a large group of rooters, Michigan arrived this afternoon and worked out on Franklin field.

There was some doubt in the mind of Coach Fritz Crisler, regarding the starting of Forest Evashevski, ace blocking back and signal caller, who was unable to oppose Minnesota because of an injured ankle.

Tom Harmon, regarded as one of the best backs in the country, and Paul Kromer, fleet running back, will start in the Maize and Blue back field along with Bob Westfall.

Pennsylvania will start a lineup changed in four places from the one that lost to Penn State last week. Jack Cohen, sophomore tackle, will play at left tackle in place of Cliff Engler; Bob Hunt, veteran guard of last season, will start at left guard in place of Albert Brechka; Walt Daly, senior blocking back, will replace Gene Davis at left half back, and Ed Allen will start at right half back, in the position occupied for several weeks by Bob Stephens.

Pennsylvania leads in the series with eight victories against seven defeats. Two games have resulted in ties.

LEADERS PREDICT CONTINUED GAINS IN CONSTRUCTION

Labor Chief Cites Success of New Union Plan.

Thomas S. Holden.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—Leaders of the construction industry declared today that business wants no war boom, but expects 1940 to bring continued industrial and commercial improvement. This was the theme running thru addresses at a construction conference at the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Thomas S. Holden, vice president of the F. W. Dodge corporation, said that 1940 should bring increases in nearly all construction lines.

Other analysts said there was every likelihood that construction activity would be maintained for several years at a rate of 10 to 12 billion dollars annually.

New A. F. of L. Plan a Success.

John Coyne, president of the American Federation of Labor building and construction trades department, told the conference that a new "no stoppage of work" plan of the federation had been "remarkably" successful. The plan, he said, had eliminated 90 per cent of the jurisdictional union disputes during its first 45 days of operation.

"This is probably the greatest single accomplishment, if it works out as planned, in the history of organized labor in the building industry," he said.

Under the plan, there must be no stoppage of work and the trade or union first on the job continues work until the dispute is finally settled.

Melvin H. Baker, president of the Buffalo, N. Y., chamber of commerce and head of the National Gypsum company, warned of factors which might "nullify" the favorable business outlook.

Decries Government "Spying."

He described these as government competition in the building field, restrictions under SEC regulations on raising new capital, tax burdens, and "government spying on industry."

C. G. Conley, Mount Vernon, O., president of the American Institute of Steel Construction, and Robert W. McChesney, of Washington, president of the National Electrical Contractors' association, urged that building and costs be kept at a steady level to assure volume expansion with business improvement.

CONTINENTAL MOTORS.

What connection is there between Continental Motors corporation and Continental Aeronautic corporation? Does Continental Motors make airplanes? Please furnish me with a report on this company.—F. M. T.

Answer: Continental Motors corporation was reported to have received early this year 8 per cent of the stock of a newly organized company, Continental Aeronautic corporation, at Burbank, Cal. The stock payment was for use of the Continental name, it was said.

Continental Motors at one time supplied a considerable portion of the engine requirements of the automobile manufacturers. When this lucrative market dwindled because of the depression and the trend toward self-sufficiency in the automobile industry, the company turned to making light airplane motors, radio speakers, and power and light units for farms.

About three-fourths of the company's sales are of engines and parts, mostly for farm machinery, trucks, automobiles, and aircraft. Because of the recent emphasis on aircraft, the firm has broadened its production to include engines of as much as 1,000 horse power. The company, however, does not make airplanes.

Plant facilities for aircraft engine manufacturing were moved recently from Detroit to Muskegon, Mich., where the company's operations are now centered. To finance this shift in plant, the company issued 551,348 shares of $1 par common stock and borrowed $300,000 from the RFC. On Oct. 28, 1939, the company filed with the securities and exchange commission a registration statement for the issuance of additional 350,000 shares. The net proceeds were to be used to pay off notes and to provide working capital.

The latest financing exhausted the authorized limit of stock which the company can issue—3,000,000 shares. Funded debt consists of a first mortgage loan of $1,044,950 from the RFC.

Continental Motors has operated unprofitably every fiscal year since 1929, except in the 1937 fiscal year. Net loss in the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1938, was $548,287, compared with net income of $71,335, or 3 cents a share in the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1937.

Net loss in the 10 months ended Aug. 31, 1939, was $169,791. No comparison was available for the corresponding period of 1938. Current assets on Aug. 31, 1939, of $1,629,690 exceeded current liabilities by $222,013. Unfilled orders on Oct. 20, 1939, were more than $4,500,000, the firm reported.

No dividend on the stock has been paid since 1929.

DISCOVER FIFTH LAYER OF OIL IN CENTRALIA AREA

Pool May Become Nation's Richest.

BY MORRIS GREEN.

Illinois oil producers rushed preparations for a drilling race yesterday as the Lake Centralia-Salem pool's fifth oil bearing layer was discovered. The fourth layer was uncovered Thursday. Oil men, kowled over by the rapidity of developments in the already rich producing field, predicted the Salem pool will be the nation's largest producer.

William R. Boyd Jr. asserts need for oil proation.

The East Texas field is much larger than the Salem pool, but is divided into sections. The largest section, Longview, produces about 148,000 barrels daily, compared with the Salem pool's 180,000. The Salem pool's reserves total about 200 million barrels, compared with about 2 billion barrels in the entire east Texas field.

Thought Fully Developed.

With wells in the Salem area previously drawing oil from three formations between 1,700 and 2,000 feet deep, the pool had been considered almost completely developed.

Yesterday's strike was made in the St. Louis lime formation at a depth of 2,209 to 2,245 feet. The well was drilled by Lewis Armstrong & Day Co. The company announced a Devonian lime test for the same well, which may then be drawing oil from five strata. Thursday a 1,500 barrel producer was brought in at the Devonian limestone, 3,405 to 3,430 feet deep. The St. Louis lime well's output has not been announced.

The relative depths of the five producing formations in the Salem pool are:

Aux Vases sand, 1,840 feet.
McCloskey limestone, 2,000 feet.
St. Louis lime, 2,209 to 2,245 feet.
Devonian limestone, 3,405 to 3,430 feet.

Earlier Wells Disclosed.

An independent producer was reported to have brought in two wells in the St. Louis lime recently, obtaining 720 barrels a day from each well. The results were closely guarded, however, and yesterday's strike was credited with the discovery.

Representatives of major oil companies said they expect to begin drilling for the Devonian limestone shortly. Another independent company is already drilling, and two independents have let contracts for drilling.

Due to the fact that leaseholds in the Salem pool are "checkered," with competing companies operating on adjoining sites, the completion of a single well in a new formation is the signal for a drilling boom, oil men explained. Those who don't drill lose fortunes, as the oil is drained from beneath their land.

A representative of one of the major companies said, "Hell's going to pop down there!"

Production in Illinois had leveled off in recent weeks after reaching a peak of 344,267 barrels daily in the week ended Sept. 30. Output in the week ended Nov. 11 was 328,959 barrels daily, of which 179,178 came from the Salem pool's 1,400 wells.

Independent Makes Strike.

Thursday's 1,500 barrel producer was brought in by the Kingwood Oil company, an independent. Most of the Salem pool acreage is controled by larger companies.

Drilling to the Devonian limestone will be more expensive, oil men said. They estimated the average minimum cost at $15,000 a well, compared with $8,000 for drilling to the shallower Benoist and McCloskey formations.

Agitation for proration of Illinois output was given a boost by the new discoveries. The Chicago Association of Commerce urged Gov. Horner to make oil legislation a chief objective of the special session of the legislature he is expected to call soon. The association said owners of 90 per cent of the state's production fear that a continuation of present conditions without state control will have a serious reaction."

Stresses Need for Proration.

William R. Boyd Jr., executive vice president of the American Petroleum Institute, said opening of the new producing layers stresses the need for proration.

In one year Illinois has jumped from seventh to fourth place among the nation's oil producing states. In the oil crisis last August, when several states closed down production, producers in other states charged that unrestricted Illinois output was disrupting the market. Farmers and landholders who have received more than $12,000,000 in royalties made no objections.

Typical of overnight fortunes was that made by Young's Chapel, site of yesterday's strike. The church announced that the congregation voted to build a new brick church on the location of its money-making oil wells.

Big Gas Well Brought In.

Vincennes, Ind., Nov. 17 (AP).—Indications in the Russellville, Ill., gas field, nine miles north of Vincennes, were boosted today when Horatio Bowman of Alton, Ill., completed the Scott City No. 5 test as a 24,067,190 cubic foot gas producer. The well was the second largest in the field, rivaling the Hilary Hayes 30,640,000 cubic feet producer completed last January.

President Puts German Areas on Blacklist

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—Germany and all the territories Hitler has acquired in the last few years were lumped together today on the United States economic blacklist.

In proclaiming the recent trade agreement with Venezuela, President Roosevelt excepted Germany and the territories under her control from the tariff concessions granted the South American country.

"Because I find as a fact," Mr. Roosevelt said, "that the treatment of American commerce by Germany is discriminatory, I direct that such proclaimed duties [in the Venezuelan agreement] shall not be applied to products of Germany. Products of territories now under the de facto administrative control of Germany shall be regarded as products of Germany for the purpose of this paragraph."

Benefits Are Withheld.

Consequently goods coming from the Germany of the Versailles treaty, plus the Saar, plus Austria, plus most of former Czecho-Slovakia, plus most of Poland, must pay the tariffs of the 1930 tariff act, and may not receive the benefits of reductions in duties made under the trade agreements the United States has concluded with 20 nations.

Under most favored nation policy, the reductions apply to all the world aside from Germany.

In addition to not receiving the benefit of the tariff reductions, German products must pay the 25 per cent countervailing duties imposed this year on the grounds that German exports were being subsidized.

Orders Duty Reductions.

The President's announcement was contained in a letter to secretary Morgenthau directing him to apply the duty reductions in the Venezuelan agreement.

An official said that the President's lumping together of Germany and the territories she has absorbed does not imply a recognition by this government of the conquest of those lands.

The Venezuelan agreement becomes provisionally effective Dec. 16, and fully effective when ratification is made by the Venezuelan government. The principal concession granted by the United States was a 50 per cent cut in the excise tax on petroleum imports up to 5 per cent of domestic production.

LATIN AMERICAN LOAN PLAN IS MAPPED WITH UNITED STATES AS 'KEY'

GUATEMALA CITY, Nov. 17 (AP).—A resolution proposing extensive capital investments to develop industry and agriculture in Latin American republics was agreed on informally today at the Pan-American treasury conference.

Eduardo Villasenor.

The United State "plainly is the key" to financial arrangements foreseen in the resolution, said Eduardo Villasenor, Mexican minister of finance, who advanced the declaration. It was assured of adoption at a formal plenary session Saturday or Monday.

The conference agreed that Villasenor's original project for a central inter-American bank to stabilize currencies and promote investments was too complicated for a commitment without extended investigation.

The resolution read:

"The conference declares that as a means to promote and create favorable conditions for solid economic development of the American republics and consequent stabilization, internal as well as external, of the respective currencies, it is desirable to invest essential capital for the stimulation and development of agriculture and industry in the various nations of the hemisphere."

SEC WILL PUSH ITS CASE AGAINST TRANSAMERICA

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—Announcement by Attorney General Murphy today that he had conferred with various officials concerning the Transamerican corporation cases brought a statement from the Securities and Exchange commission that it "intends to proceed with the conduct of these cases in a regular order."

Murphy said he had talked with treasury, SEC, and controller's office officials, and with A. P. Giannini, head of the Transamerica.

The SEC began action to suspend trading in Transamerica stocks on the ground that false statements had been made in registering them with the commission.

"Whatever settlement might be made," Murphy said, "would have to be on the basis of [Transamerica] coming within the law and all regulatory procedure."

MILLS CONSUME STEEL SCRAP IN RECORD VOLUME

Steel mill, blast, and foundry furnaces consumed 3,974,000 tons of iron and steel scrap during October, the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel estimated yesterday. This was "apparently an all-time record," and represented a gain of 68 per cent over October, 1938, the institute said.

War in Europe has figured only slightly in the increase, according to the institute. Domestic consumption of scrap has totaled 27,176,000 tons during the first 10 months of the year, compared with 16,385,000 tons in the 1938 period.

On the basis of the 10 month rate, consumption of scrap will total 34,000,000 tons this year, according to the institute. The current ratio of domestic consumption to exports of scrap is approximately 11 to 1, it was said.

ROOSEVELT KIN TO PROBE COAL FIRM FOR COURT

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP).—Federal Judge William H. Kirkpatrick has named Nicholas G. Roosevelt, a distant cousin of the President, as special examiner to make a complete investigation of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company now seeking reorganization under the bankruptcy laws.

Roosevelt is to determine whether the company can be reorganized and whether its officers and directors have been guilty of waste and mismanagement which would entitle bondholders and stockholders to sue them for any losses. He is a special partner in the Philadelphia brokerage firm of W. H. Newbold's Son & Co.

The naming of an examiner was at the instance of the Securities and Exchange commission. It also sought an explanation of why the company assertedly has lost upwards of $68,000,000 in the last 10 years.

AIRCRAFT FIRM GETS 17 MILLION BRITISH ORDER

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 17 [Special].—Expansion of Great Britain's royal air force today brought the North American Aviation corporation of Inglewood a $17,000,000 order. The order, placed by the British air ministry, is for 400 training planes, and duplicates a similar order last year. They are low-wing, two-place ships similar to those used by the United States army.

Local officials of the aircraft company reported the new business will increase the corporation's backlog to approximately $47,000,000.

Strikes at Chrysler Plants Hold DownAuto Production

Strikes at the Chrysler corporation's plants, now in their 44th day, continued to hold automobile production down this week, Ward's Reports said yesterday. Production for the current week was placed at 86,700 units, up only 500 from last week. A ; ar ago production was 96,735 units, and two years ago at this time it was close to 100,000 units a week. Output of leading companies compared as follows:

IMPOSE $5,000 FINES ON FOUR G. M. COMPANIES

Defense Paves Way for Appeal.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 17.—Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley today imposed $5,000 fines each on the General Motors corporation, General Motors Sales corporation, General Motors Acceptance corporation, and the General Motors Acceptance Corporation of Indiana. The companies were found guilty by a federal jury yesterday of violating the Sherman anti-trust act. Seventeen General Motors executives were found not guilty.

With the opening of court for a brief session this morning attorneys representing General Motors took the first steps which are expected to lead to an appeal of the jury's verdict.

Court Overrules Pleas.

John Thomas Smith, general counsel of the corporation, asked for an arrest of judgment, but his request was overruled by Judge Lindley. The judge also overruled a motion asking for a new trial.

Smith asserted the jury's action in acquitting the individual defendants while finding the companies guilty had taken all the punch out of the government's case.

"The government charged conspiracy to restrict interstate commerce," Smith declared. "But the corporations could not conspire. The individuals alone could have conspired and the individuals were acquitted.

"Acquittal of the individuals has taken the flesh and blood out of the government charges and left only a disembodied spirit of the corporation. The alleged crime has vanished into the thin air. The ghosts that are left should not be sentenced."

Upholds Split Verdict.

Judge Lindley in refusing to vacate the sentence, said the jury had a right to acquit the individuals and convict the companies. He said the jurors may have felt that certain underofficers of the companies may have gone beyond their capacities in committing the acts charged by the government without the knowledge or consent of executives named in the indictment.

"However, whether a court of review will sustain the verdict, I don't know," he added.

Judge Lindley gave General Motors counsel 90 days in which to file a bill of exceptions. Smith indicated an appeal may be made to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago.

In the meantime enforcement of the judgment was held up with the posting of $2,500 bail for each of the corporations. In addition to the $5,000 fines, General Motors and General Motors Sales corporation must pay the direct court costs. Each was assessed half the costs.

Criminal Indictments.

There is no question of a cease or desist order involved in the case. Indictments were brought against General Motors and the 17 executives, including Alfred P. Sloan Jr. and William S. Knudsen, on criminal charges. If the government had wanted a cease and desist order, it was stated, it would have handled the case in chancellery. Sloan is chairman of the General Motors board and Knudsen is president.

A verdict of guilty opens the way for further trials should charges of coercion of dealers be brought against the companies. The government alleged that General Motors coerced its dealers into using the service of GMAC, using threat of cancellation of dealer contracts as a club, but based the indictment on charges of conspiring and restraint of trade.

CONSENT DECREES STAND.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—Justice department officials said today that the split verdict in the anti-trust case against General Motors corporation appeared unlikely to have an effect on previous consent decrees signed by the Ford Motor company and the Chrysler corporation. These companies, with their affiliates, had been indicted on similar charges.

A justice department official said since the operations were "held illegal" there seems to be no reason to suppose that the Ford and Chrysler consent decrees will be affected. These decrees were signed by Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick at South Bend Nov. 15, 1938.

PROPOSES SHARP CUT IN CAPITAL OF NEW HAVEN

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—An Interstate Commerce commission examiner proposed a plan of reorganization today for the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, calling for sharp reductions in capitalization and fixed charges.

The examiner, Harvey H. Wilkinson, proposed a capitalization of 365 million dollars for the reorganized company, as compared with $475,871,842 as of Oct. 23, 1935 [date of filing petition for reorganization], and fixed charges and guarantees of $6,385,019, as compared with $20,329,920.

Wilkinson said the equities of holders of both the common and preferred stock "are found to have no value." He made no provision for the present stockholders to participate in the reorganized company.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17 (AP).—Prolonged debate by the Mexican Supreme court today brought forecasts of a hard fought battle before it reaches a decision on legality of the government's expropriation of the foreign oil industry.

After arguing for more than an hour the court countermanded a move to recess until Wednesday and decided to resume tomorrow its discussion of a proposed opinion by Justice Rodolfo Asiain upholding the government.

Justice Asiain's opinion recommended compensation to the companies for their properties, but not for the oil underground.

(Story in adjoining column.)

Howard Firm to Increase Plane Output

With approval of their newly designed airplane last week by the Civil Aeronautics authority, the Howard Aircraft corporation, Chicago's lone airplane manufacturer, demonstrated improvements in its product yesterday at the Municipal airport and announced plans for stepping up production. Two planes a week is the goal for the near future.

The new craft can easily be outfitted for war, and officials are negotiating with representatives of foreign countries for orders. The rear seat of the five passenger cabin plane is removable, affording ample room for stretchers, cargo, or photographing equipment. Some have attachments for bomb racks and machine guns.

New Planes Improved.

Improvements in the new planes, according to B. D. DeWeese, vice president in charge of sales, are increased vision for the pilot, more interior space, wider landing gear, larger gasoline capacity, greater load carrying ability, and better streamlining.

The new planes are outfitted with 450 horse power Wasp Junior, 350 horsepower Wright, or 330 horsepower Jacobs engines. The most powerful model can carry 1,700 pounds, cruise at a speed of 201 miles per hour at the best altitude, and has a range of 984 miles. The craft equipped with the Jacobs motor can transport a load of 1,500 pounds, cruise at a speed of 174 miles per hour, and has a range of 817 miles.

Seeks Government Orders.

The Civil Aeronautics authority now uses five of the old models for radio range checking, and efforts are being made to sell some of the newly designed planes to the government. Plans are under way also, De Weese said, for a low priced freight plane.

Much new equipment, including saws, lathes, and milling machines, have been added to the plant at 5301 West 65th street during the last few weeks. The 110 employés are divided into two shifts so that newcomers, who are being added steadily, can be taught methods of construction more easily.

Bankers' Acceptances Up for First Time Since May

New York, Nov. 17 [Special].—Bankers' dollar acceptances outstanding in the United States at the end of October totaled $221,115,945 the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported today. This represented a gain of $5,234,221 in the month, and was the first increase since May. The rise was attributed to an increase in bills to finance imports.

AIR LINES ESTABLISH FIFTH CONSECUTIVE PASSENGER RECORD

Air travel in the United States last month established a new peak for the fifth consecutive month, Col. Edgar S. Gorrell, president of the Air Transport Association of America, announced yesterday. Revenue passenger miles flown during the first 10 months of 1939 exceeded the total for all of 1938, he said.

The 16 domestic air line members of the association flew 70,221,520 revenue passenger miles during October, a gain of 1.59 per cent over the total of 69,120,405 in September. The total represented an increase of 36.75 per cent over the mileage of October, 1938.

During the 10 months, the 16 lines flew 551,690,659 revenue passenger miles, an increase of 38.85 per cent over the comparable period last year. In all of 1938 the lines flew 476,039,901 revenue passenger miles.

SECURITY TRADE COMMITTEES TO SET UP CODES

The National Security Traders' association, whose 2,300 members are associated with both stock exchange and over the counter firms, has completed formation of the municipal and public relations committee for 1940, Edward D. Jones of Edward D. Jones & Co., St. Louis, announced yesterday. Jones is president of the association.

The municipal committee will act to encourage better trading practices, establish codes of trading ethics, and promote good will among municipal traders. Its chairman will be Roger Phelps of Campbell, Phelps & Co., New York.

The public relations committee will promote public understanding of the scope, need for, and efficiency of the over the counter market. It also will emphasize the work of the association in encouraging voluntary regulation of the unlisted markets by its members. Its chairman is Leo J. Doyle of Doyle, O'Connor & Co., Chicago.

PORK AND HOGS DECLINE TO NEW FIVE YEAR LOWS

Pork and hog prices dipped again yesterday to new five year lows as the movement of supplies from farms continued heavy. The $6.05 top for selected light hogs, off 10 cents for the day, stood lowest since June, 1934. The average fell 20 cents to $5.70. Losses for the day ranged from 10 to 25 cents, heavy "lard hogs" bearing the brunt of the decline.

Best fresh pork loins declined to $13.00 a hundred pounds, showing a loss of $5.00 in about two weeks. The heaviest loins sold at $10.50.

A two-way trend developed for slaughter lambs yesterday. Best grades ruled strong to 10 cents higher, but others sold weak to unevenly lower.

The run of cattle was too small to put prices to a test yesterday. Only 500 head arrived. Most steers and yearlings in the supply brought about steady prices.

5 OIL FIRMS JOIN IN DEVELOPMENT OF SUPERIOR GAS

A new refining process that will ensure plenty of high test aviation gasoline for national defense is being developed by five oil companies.

This information was revealed yesterday in the final day's meeting of the American Petroleum institute at the Stevens hotel. The five companies which have decided to combine their research efforts to expedite the commercial application of the new process are: The Anglo-Iranian company, Ltd., Humble Oil and Refining company, Shell Development company, Standard Oil Development company, and the Texas company.

Representatives of the companies disclosed that their technologists, working independently, had developed methods of producing superior aviation fuel by processes differing in detail and results but basically similar in principle. The companies made their discoveries known to each other and then decided to work together.

GEN. ELECTRIC'S VETERAN CHIEFS RETIRING SELVES

Young and Swope to Follow Age Policy.

New York, Nov. 17 (AP).—Owen D. Young and Gerard Swope, two of the nation's foremost industrialists, today stepped down from the two top posts in the General Electric company, the world's biggest maker of electric equipment and products, and placed the company in younger hands.

Both for years have been advocates of retirement of business executives around the age of 65, and in announcing their action today, they said they were merely following their beliefs. Young is 65; Swope, 66.

Effective Jan. 1, Young, chairman of the board, will become honorary chairman, and President Swope will become honorary president.

Reed and Wilson Succeed.

Philip D. Reed, 40 year old assistant to the president, was chosen by the directors today to succeed Young as chairman, and Charles E. Wilson, 53 year old executive vice president, will step into Swope's place as president.

Said Young and Swope in a joint statement:

"When we took office we indicated our view that it would contribute to the morale and effectiveness of the organization if as a general rule men in important administrative positions would consider retirement when they reached the age of 65. Having adopted that policy of retirement during our administration, we now apply it to ourselves."

Young, who begar life as a farm boy near Van Hornesville, N. Y., said he had no plans for the future "except to devote myself to my outside activities."

Country Life for Young.

He will spend much time, he added, in Van Hornesville, where he has a 1,500 acre farm, and a dairy breeding herd of 200 cattle. Also at Van Hornesville is the school which he built, costing thousands of dollars, for the 400 growing farm children of that section.

Both Young and Swope, despite their retirement, will be available to General Electric for consultation, but plan no active part in the company's operations.

The

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

New York, Nov. 16 [Special].—Selling cropped out in the stock market this afternoon after a moderately higher trend in the forenoon. As a result irregular prices prevailed at the close, with 304 issues higher, 303 lower, and 215 unchanged. Weakness in steel shares was most pronounced in late dealings.

Activity contracted on the reaction. Volume ran to 800,000 shares, but more than half of this was in the first two hours.

Observers were unable to explain the reason for the break in steel shares, which had the effect of imparting softness to other sections.

United States Steel closed with a loss of 1⅛ points. Bethlehem dropped back from a gain of nearly a point to lose ½ point. Other losses ran to a point in Youngstown Sheet and Tube.

Chrysler lost a minor fraction after pointing higher on hopes of early settlement of the strike. General Motors dropped 1⅛ points.

MILK PRODUCERS URGE THE REPEAL OF TRADE PACTS

Unfair to Dairy Farmers, Says Resolution.

Repeal of the federal trade agreement act at the next session of congress was requested yesterday by members of the National Coöperative Milk Producers federation in a resolution at the close of its 23d annual convention in the Congress hotel. The federation represents leading milk producer organizations thruout the country. The resolution said:

"We believe that the present trade agreement of the federal government, as administered by the state department, is detrimental to the welfare of agriculture and particularly to the producers of dairy, live stock, and poultry products.

Assail Duty Slashes.

"The so-called, but misnamed, reciprocal trade agreements are particularly harmful to the economic interest of dairy farmers.

"The progressive reduction of duties on various imported dairy products threatens not only to limit the opportunities of American farmers to find markets in the United States, but is setting a maximum possible income for the average dairy farmer far below the needs of such farmers if they are to have anything that approaches a rightful share of the national income."

In other resolutions the federation condemned the principle of the wages and hours law and requested an amendment to the Agricultural Adjustment act that would protect dairy farmers against overproduction of milk thru the use of land diverted from corn, wheat, and other crops under the crop control phase of the AAA.

TREATIES HIT AT GRANGE.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 17 [Special].—The nation's farm leaders today were urged to support repeal of the reciprocal trade agreement act and other legislation which turns part of the American market for agricultural products over to the foreign producer.

Wheeler McMillen, president of the Farm Chemurgic council presented that suggestion in a speech before the National Grange convention here.

"Exports gained at the expense of domestic opportunity are not worth much," McMillen said.

McMillen said there is no reason why American farmers should not supply the entire American market for cotton, wool, flax, and hemp. American made carpets, rugs, and linoleums are now manufactured almost entirely from foreign raw materials, he said.

When Pioneers Meet

3 MERCHANTS MEET; CAREERS ADD TO 206 YEARS

Three men with a combined total of over 200 years of department store experience shook hands yesterday when H. Gordon Selfridge, 86 years old, owner of England's largest department store, arrive din Chicago.

Selfridge, who was one of the city's pioneer merchants, will address the seventh annual dinner of the State Street Seniors, a group composed of department store workers with 40 years or more of experience, on Nov. 27 at the Palmer House.

The veteran merchant was met by 93 year old Henry C. Lytton of the Hub, honorary chairman of the Seniors, and Charles Hitney, 87, of the Boston store, vice chairman of the group.

Each of the three veterans exchanged pleasantries—then launched into a discussion of department store tactics and how up to date methods must be adopted by the younger generation of executives if the stores are to be successful. Each of the three men started in the store business by or prior to his twentieth year, making a total of 206 years of store experience among them.

Majestic Radio Trustee to Continue Operations

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday authorized Trustee Claude A. Roth to continue operations of the Majestic Radio and Television corporation. James A. Sprowl, attorney for the company, said it had obtained loans to finance production and would increase its pay roll substantially on Monday because a large volume of orders had been received.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BOB BECKER

Homing Bluejays.

Nov. 17, 1939.

EXPERIMENTS conducted by bird banders prove that bluejays have a homing instinct, but these birds certainly don't break any speed records when it comes to getting back home.

James Mooney, a bird bander whose station is located in Highland Park, which is approximately 25 miles north of Chicago, has banded many bluejays and lately he's been testing them for homing instinct. Last August he trapped and banded four bluejays and transported them to the Du Page county farm to be released. He freed them just a few yards from some of our bird banding traps on the farm. The four jays were released on Aug. 29. One of the four never was heard from. One bird promptly flew back to Highland Park and was retrapped by Mooney several days after its release. A third bluejay stayed right on the Du Page county farm. It was caught in one of our traps on Sept. 9.

Gets Big Surprise.

The fourth bluejay was the one that provided the biggest surprise of the whole group. When Mooney failed to retrap the bluejay after three or four weeks he thought that the bird surely had forgotten the way back to his banding station. But the other day when Mooney made the rounds of his traps he found Mr. Bluejay waiting to have his band inspected so he could be released. After more than two months of wandering around the countryside he had decided to return to his original base.

Another bluejay banded by Mooney has proved that birds of this species often stay pretty close to home thru all kinds of weather. This bird was trapped and banded in the spring of 1938. Of course, there is no record of whether or not this jay made a short migration flight during the winter, but several weeks ago it was found dead in Highland Park.

The spot where it was found is just a block and a half from where it was trapped and banded 18 months ago.

When we talked to Mooney this week we were interested in finding out if he had been able to retrap any juncos which he had banded in other seasons. We have trapped, banded, and released many of these birds on the Du Page county farm, but never have retrapped a junco with one of our bands on it. Mooney has banded hundreds of juncos. He reports that he hasn't had much better luck than we have had as far as retrapping these birds is concerned.

However, on Nov. 5 he trapped a junco which he had banded in the fall of 1937, completing the kind of a record that every bird bander likes to make. It is fun to trap and band birds, but the real thrill is to see a bird return to your traps after it has made one of its migration flights.

Activities Slow Down.

Banding activities on the Du Page county farm have slowed down somewhat, except that juncoes continue to visit our station. The most interesting feathered visitor last week was a tufted titmouse, but it slipped out of our hand before we could get the band on its leg.

But even tho the number of birds being trapped is not as high as in the spring and early fall months, we still are getting some interesting visitors. The other morning when we inspected one of our ground traps we found a little brown field mouse [microtus] enjoying a free meal of seeds and grain. The bird traps also have caught rabbits, chipmunks, squirrels, and even half grown opossums.
